IRISH REBELS DEFEATED ON ULSTER LINE

Insurgents Retreating After Being Driven From Petigo by British Troops; 30 Are Reported Slain in Battle

Shells Hurled by Attackers Cause Panic in the Ranks of Fleeing Republicans; Invaders Are Forced Back

BY UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

BELFAST, June 5.—Irish Republican insurgent troops are retreating from Ulster today. Thirty Republicans are reported to have been killed in the battle for Petigo, on the Donegal-Fermanagh border, taken by British troops late yesterday.

A British staff officer who entered the border town furnished latest details of the affair. He said he gave the insurgents fifteen minutes to evacuate. Some retreated but 100 remained.

When the time limit expired, the British entered the town in the face of machine gun fire, whereupon artillery upon the hill to the north was called into action. A British detachment fired a one-pounder over the town, which caught civilians, killing several. Only four additional shells were fired, these bursting in the rear of Pettigo, causing a panic in the ranks of retiring Republicans. Casualty lists are as yet incomplete.

BRITISH PREPARE FOR FURTHER ACTION.

British troops today consolidated their positions and prepared for further action against the invading Sinn Feiners.

Belfast's week-end victims numbered 22, of which three were killed and 19 seriously wounded.

J. W. Flanagan, a local magistrate of Newry, County Down, was shot and fatally wounded as he was leaving the cathedral after mass. Three assailants escaped in an automobile towards Free State territory. Flanagan had been a marked man for some time, having prosecuted several civilians for carrying arms.

A communique issued today said seven of the British troops were known to have been killed on the Fermanagh border and that a Lewis gun was captured. British artillery fired a few rounds against a rebel machine gun firing from a wood behind Pettigo.

INVADERS DRIVEN FROM POSITIONS.

LONDON, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—British troops have driven the Sinn Fein invaders from their main positions in Ulster territory and a large part of the border between northern and southern Ireland now is virtually a battlefront.

The village of Pettigo, on the Fermanagh-Donegal border, was recaptured from the Sinn Fein invaders yesterday and the southern forces also are reported to have evacuated Belleek, ten miles to the southwest.

The discrepancy between the official communique with its statement of three Sinn Feiners killed and one Lewis gun captured, and the more detailed press reports of the British storming the place and inflicting "heavy losses," has yet to be reconciled.

The military has taken over much of the boundary line and the Sinn Feiners now face seasoned and well-armed troops equipped with artillery instead of the special Ulster constabulary men.

AGREEMENT REACHED FOR CO-OPERATION.

DUBLIN, June 5.—(By International News Service.)—While war raged in northern Ireland between British troops and republicans, officials of the free state government were today considering amendments to the proposed Irish constitution which will reach an agreement with the Irish cabinet when the Anglo-Irish negotiations are renewed in London tomorrow.

Richard Mulcahy, minister of defense in the Irish provisional government and Roderick O'Connor, commandant of the republican irregulars, have reached a formal agreement for co-operation between the Free State and republican troops.

Nominations for the Irish general election will be made tomorrow. Laborites are the only contestants of the coalition panel, and there is widely held opinion that the laborites will be defeated.

Belief is even expressed that Jim Larkin, who is very popular in Dublin, especially in labor-republican circles, will be defeated by Collins.

AMERICAN STEAMER SEARCHED FOR ARMS.

LONDON, June 5 (By International News Service).—The American steamer Seattle Spirit, from New York, was reported today to have been held up and searched by the British in Tralee Bay, on the west coast of Ireland, on suspicion she was carrying arms and ammunition for the republicans. It is said that a quantity of munitions were found and seized, but this is not officially confirmed.

"THREE MINUTE TALES" by AD SCHUSTER

THE SLUMP.

JUST when everything was going smoothly and it looked as if he had his place secure, Leo Regan, heavy hitting center fielder for the Bears, had a slump. Men have figured out what makes a prize fruit tree have its off year and the record-breaking hen is excused for an occasional let-up in the production of eggs. What it is that causes the fence buster to lose his batting eye and turns the terror of the pitchers into an easy mark, is subject for debate on the bench and in the stands. There is some agreement that the slump just happens and that its perpetuation is psychological.

"The trouble with Regan," the fans put it, "is he is trying too hard. The longer he goes without getting a hit, the harder he tries. Unless he finds his eye and his nerve pretty soon he is as good as gone."

The big center fielder realized his predicament more keenly than any of the others. He knew he faced the pitcher now without confidence and with nothing but a dogged and desperate desire. The trick that had been so easy was beyond him.

"If I could just lam it out once," he told Barbara, "I'd lose this growing feeling that I can't do it. It is as if I failed before I tried. I wonder what is the matter?"

The situation had its serious side to Barbara, for the two had planned, with the renewal of Leo's contract at the end of the season, to get married. The slump might well mean no contract and a long delay. With his romance and his job at stake, Regan gripped his bat and swung at the balls. It was true, he was trying too hard.

One day Barbara, riding on a street car filled with baseball fans, heard with indignation some pitying comment concerning Leo.

"AND to think," one man said, "Old Dolan paid a big price for him on the strength of his batting average in the brush. Another case of a bush leaguer who can't deliver the goods."

"I don't know," the other answered. "Regan was good un-

WHITNEY CASE IN SUPREME COURT

Syndicalism Law Is Declared 'Repugnant to Every Ideal of American Freedom.'

An appeal to the State Supreme Court was made today in behalf of Charlotte Anita Whitney, Oakland woman, convicted of violating the criminal syndicalism law and facing an indeterminate sentence in San Quentin penitentiary.

Recently the District Court of Appeal affirmed the conviction of Miss Whitney in the Superior Court of Alameda county. In summing their exhaustive brief filed today, the attorneys for Miss Whitney conclude by saying:

"The political features of the original syndicalism law of the state of California today, it is respectfully urged, are not only unconstitutional but 'repugnant to every American ideal of freedom of thought and freedom of speech.'"

"Charlotte Anita Whitney was not an I. W. W. There is no allegation that she was, nor the slightest bit of evidence that she ever had knowledge of the acts of the I. W. W. or approved them.

"Charlotte Anita Whitney, groping for a means to help the poor, entered a public meeting in a convention hall in Oakland and there joined the Communist Labor party. This is the sum of her offense.

"It is respectfully urged that never in the history of California was there a plainer miscarriage of justice. Never was there a more apparent indecent haste to appease public wrath by the offering up of a vicarious sacrifice."

Three San Quentin Men Fail in Break

SAN QUENTIN, June 5. — An attempted escape from San Quentin prison was frustrated here yesterday after three prisoners had made their way through a window and had reached the waterfront. The men were John Wright, Harry Denman and Carl H. Bauer, all of whom have bad records at the penitentiary.

According to prison officials the three prisoners hid between two tiers of cells until noon, when they broke a window and made their escape to the yard. They were carefully working their way along the waterfront when a guard sighted them and sounded an alarm. This is Wright's fifth attempt to escape, according to prison officials, while Bauer and Denman have one attempt credited to them.

VALENTINO SET FREE BY COURT

Actor Mobbed by L. A. Flappers as Judge Holds Proof of Bigamy Lacking; Gushing Girls Hail Star as Hero

Decision Does Not Validate Marriage and Leaves Case Where New Charge May Be Filed if Evidence Had

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—(By International News Service.)—Rodolph Valentino, the "great lover" of the screen, was today freed of a charge of bigamy brought against him as a result of his marriage in Mexico to Winifred Hudnut before his decree of divorce from Jean Acker, his first wife, became final.

The charge against Valentino was dismissed by Justice Hanby in whose court the preliminary hearing in the case was held last week, on the ground that the evidence against the film star was insufficient.

Valentino was also "mobbed" by a score of flappers who sought to congratulate him when the judge dismissed the charge. They swarmed around him in the courtroom until the judge was compelled to ask Valentino to step outside and then they followed him into the street, to his automobile.

Lifting his hat with the air of a courtier, Valentino acknowledged the attentions showered upon him by the women and girls by smiles and nods of his head.

EVIDENCE HELD LACKING BY COURT.

In giving his decision, Justice Hanby said:

"A number of important and perplexing questions of law and fact have arisen in this case. Important because of the demoralizing effect of bigamous marriages on society and perplexing because of the lack of authority and precedent directly bearing upon the questions involved.

"After reviewing the evidence carefully, I am convinced that the charge of co-habitation of the party to the second marriage in this State is entirely inadequate to prove such co-habitation as is contemplated by the section and the decisions referring thereto.

"I therefore feel that I am not justified in holding the defendant to answer to the Superior court. The case is dismissed, defendant discharged and bail exonerated."

Valentino sat with his arms folded, looking impassively at the judge while the decision was being read. When the judge completed reading the decision Valentino arose and smiled at him. Immediately the flappers hurried forward and crowded around the film star.

ACTOR MOBBED BY FLAPPERS.

"Mr. Valentino, I want to congratulate you," lisped a girl still in her 'teens.

Valentino thanked the girl and clasped her proffered hands as her eyes danced and lips smiled.

Judge Hanby frowned down upon this scene from the bench and reminded them that court had not been adjourned and that he had a civil calendar to hear.

More women and girls swarmed about the actor in the corridor and a crowd of fifty women followed him to his automobile.

The question arising after the dismissal of the charge, whether Valentino's bride would return now to California, was an open one. It was pointed out that the judge dismissed the charge solely on the ground that no proof had been produced that Valentino and his bride lived as man and wife upon their return to California from Mexico and that for her to return here would be to furnish the district attorney's office with enough evidence to support another charge of bigamy against him.

In a statement issued after his release Valentino said:

"As I stated before, through ignorance of the law I married Miss Hudnut, not dreaming that I was breaking or violating any California laws," the statement read. "Nevertheless, I do realize now my lack of knowledge of the California laws, and like any other law-abiding citizen, would not, under any condition, assume marital relationship with the present Mrs. Valentino until the time fixed by the law shall have expired, upon which we will be married again, here in Los Angeles."

Two Terrific Eastbay Explosions Kill Four Employees at Trojan Powder Co's Plant

Tribune Airplane Picture of San Lorenzo Powder Plant

TWO DRYING HOUSES ARE DESTROYED

Three Men Instantly Killed, Five Are Injured, One of Whom Dies in Hospital; Jas. Toon, Chemist, Victim

Second Blast Occurs Just Three Minutes After the First; Women Seeking Loved Ones Threaten Gate

In two terrific explosions which rocked the entire Eastbay district shortly after 8 o'clock this morning, three men were instantly killed at the plant of the Trojan Powder Company between San Leandro and San Lorenzo, and five others were injured, one of whom died later at the county hospital. The explosions destroyed two drying houses at the plant and broke windows in houses in the vicinity.

THE DEAD

H. D. MEYERS, San Leandro; master mechanic at the plant.

JAMES TOON, chemist for the Trojan Powder Company.

MANUEL SILVA, San Lorenzo; laborer.

ALBERT SILVA, San Lorenzo; died at the county hospital.

THE INJURED

TONY DE COSTA, San Leandro; injured internally.

H. A. BRONSTEIN, general manager of plant; crushed and burned on the head and legs.

FLOYD COOPER, employee in the drying plant; internal injuries from concussion.

M. C. VOTTENFIELD, superintendent; badly shaken up.

Many of those killed or injured were prominent in the Eastbay district. Toon was well known as a chemist.

GUARDS AT GATES THREATENED IN RUSH.

A few moments after the first explosion, which was followed by the second after a short interval, the wives and relatives of the men employed by the Trojan Powder company were en route to the plant. The guards at the gates were threatened for a time with mob violence because of their refusal to let the women enter, or give out any information as to who had been injured.

The explosions threw up a cloud of black smoke which climbed into the sky and whose mushroom shape could be seen and understood for miles. To the eyes of those living in the valley it was the sign of disaster.

The first explosion occurred at 8:10 and the second at 8:13. Two versions of the cause of the first explosion are advanced by employees. Until a late hour today the officials of the company had issued no statement and had given out no information. One version is that the powder on the drying rack exploded by spontaneous combustion, due to the improper mixture of the dynamite. The other is that it was caused by fire which started from unknown causes.

DEATH IS DEALT BY SECOND EXPLOSION.

It was not definitely learned today whether or not the first explosion did any damage other than the destruction of the drying plant. It is believed, however, that no one was killed by the first explosion. Those who were killed or injured had rushed out following the first explosion for the purpose of saving the second dry house. The first explosion threw fire in all directions, and those killed and injured were working frantically to put out the flame when the second dryhouse exploded. Meyers, Toon, the two Silva brothers and De Costa were nearest the building. They were hurled several yards. Some of the bodies were so badly mangled that identification was almost impossible.

It was through the quick work of William Smith, driver of the county hospital ambulance, and Peter Wadlinger, attendant, that transportation of the injured from the plant to the county hospital was accomplished as soon as the injured could be brought across the marsh strip that separates the main plant from the dryhouses. This strip is 150 yards wide and

UNIONS LIABLE UNDER TRUST LAW

Supreme Court Finds Labor Is Bound by Sherman Act Restrictions.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Labor organizations are not exempt from prosecution under the Sherman anti-trust law, the Supreme court today announced.

The court held that labor organizations can be held liable for property and other damages caused by the acts of members during strikes. The decision was delivered by Chief Justice Taft. The case was brought against the United Mine Workers of America by the Coronado and other coal companies, arising out of the Arkansas strikes of 1914.

Chief Justice Taft, in delivering the opinion, stated that there had been no misjoinder of parties in the suit as brought. He discussed at length the question of the suability of the National and International unions if the unions were responsible for what was done, pointing out that in common law unincorporated organizations could be sued as individuals, but from necessity of existing conditions it was utterly impossible to do justice otherwise than by holding labor unions liable.

With regard to the U. M. W. of A. the court found that the international organization and its officers did not order the strike or ratify it and that they should not have been made parties to the suit.

No dissent was announced.

The strike which gave rise to the case grew out of the attempt of the coal companies to operate on the "open shop" plan in 1914. Lawlessness reigned, and much destruction of property followed. Machinery, tipples and mine equipment were destroyed, the companies placing their losses at $740,000.

The jury awarded $200,000 damages, which was tripled by the coprt under the Sherman law.

WOMEN BECOME FRANTIC WHEN BARRED AT GATES

While guards at the plant of the Trojan Powder company stood in front of the gates threatening violence to anyone who insisted on entering the plant following the two explosions there early today, which resulted in the death of four persons, two score women, wives and relatives of the men at the plant, threatened to rush the gates.

The women rushed to the plant soon after the two explosions. They demanded of the guard at the front gate to know if anyone was killed, and who. The guard shook his head and ordered them away. Appalled by what appeared to be an effort on the guard's part to keep from them the real news of the disaster, the women gathered just outside the gates. Other guards came forward to block their way.

The threat of the women to rush the gate and gain entrance was blocked by the closing of the gate. Completely shut off, several women threw themselves on the ground, moaning and sobbing.

The situation gradually became more manageable as the husbands and relatives of the workmen appeared. Of those killed and injured, but two relatives were at the gate to receive the news of the disaster. Their names were not known. One woman fainted, and was carried away by friends.

An amendment was adopted to the McKellar investigating resolution recently passed giving the committee power to subpena witnesses and pay for having a record of the hearings made.

SUICIDE CAUSED FORMER DISASTER

Explosion at Trojan Works on November 15, 1919, Caused Damage, Death.

J. J. Rodrigues, an attendant, was killed and $2000 damage caused by an explosion in the Trojan powder works on November 15, 1919, when two of the dry houses containing about a ton of powder each exploded shortly before the employees appeared for work.

On this occasion the concussion was felt as far away as North Richmond and the Presidio, and windows were shattered for miles around the powder plant. Chimneys were knocked down in San Leandro and Hayward.

At this time an investigation was held by the police and powder authorities, and the theory advanced that the explosion was the result of a desire on the part of Rodriguez to end his life. Rodriguez had recently been haled into court and tried and acquitted on a technical charge of assault on a 17-year-old girl.

Rodriguez, a widower with a boy 9 years of age, was instantly killed by the explosion. He was an attendant at one of the two dry houses that exploded. His body was blown to pieces.

The attendant at the other dry house, which exploded an instant later, escaped death by being detained by the watchman of the plant, who stopped him to chat about the events of the night. He was on the way to the dryer and both he and the watchman were thrown to the ground and sustained cuts and bruises by the shock.

According to Howard Brodenstein, one of company officials at that time, said that he believed the drying house became overheated, the customary cause of such explosions, according to his statement.

is traversed by small trucks that run on steel tracks. It was necessary to take each body across on the small trucks.

HURRY AMBULANCE TO POWDER PLANT.

Smith and Waldinger heard the first explosion and saw the cloud of smoke leap into the air. They climbed into the ambulance and headed for the powder plant. In the meantime officials at the county hospital telephoned to see if anyone had been injured, and were informed that the ambulance was not needed as no one had been hurt. No preparations were made to care for the injured, and when the ambulance arrived it was necessary to improvise operating tables.

Guards at the plant said they were instructed to let no one enter and to give out no information. They threatened on two occasions to shoot if relatives did not refrain from their threats to enter and seek for information concerning those injured.

W. P. Mulhern, general manager of the company, with offices in San Francisco, rushed to the plant as soon as word of the disaster arrived. He was able to gather but meager details of the explosion due to the absence of both officials in charge of the plant who were injured Both were taken to Oakland for treatment.

Rebels in Tobasco Routed in Battle

EL PASO, Tex., June 5.—Mayor Antonio Wade was executed as a rebel sympathizer, seven rebels were killed, five wounded and four taken prisoner when a band of 60 followers of General Carlos Green, insurrection leader, attacked Jalapa de Mendez, Tobasco, last week, according to press despatches received today in Juarez. The rebel army was led by Ramon Mareno.

Firing from advantageous positions on roof tops and from the belfry of the church, the federal soldiers routed the revolutionists after the latter had succeeded in fighting their way to the plaza in the center of the town.

Following the battle the mayor was executed on a charge of attempting to incite the people of the town against the federal government.

Three Minute Tales

till a few weeks ago. You weren't knocking him then, if you'll remember. Funny how a fellow falls off in his hitting and nothing save a jolt can restore his confidence. I'm willing to bet if somethihng would happen to make him mad, careless, maybe; instead of so blamed intent, Regan would start lifting them over the fence again. He'll have to start soon, though, or it's back to the sticks for him all right."

That evening when the disconsolate ballplayer called on Barbara, he found her dignified and tense.

"I have been thinking it over, Leo," she said with effort, "and have decided we have made a mistake. I am too much wrought up now to discuss it. Please try to understand." She handed him his ring and turned her head.

To the ballplayer this was the crowning, the unbelievable blow. It hurt—and it made him angrier than he had ever been.

"I've thought I might get fired," he said, "and I've known the fans and the papers would roast me, but I didn't count on you to turn me down because I had a batting slump. It was for you I have been trying so hard to make good."

Regan took his anger to the field next day. The incentive of the game was gone. He looked at the crowd in the stands and wondered why he had ever valued their opinion. Let them hiss or cheer, what did it matter? What did anything matter, contract or bushes? He would go through the motions, and if the Old Man fired him, all right. There were other things in the world besides baseball and girls.

THE center fielder glowered at his teammates who nudged each other and talked low out of the corners of their mouths. Only the Old Man smiled.

When Regan came to bat with two men on and two outs, there was a groan from the stand and calls for a substitute batter. The centerfielder grinned insolently at these men he had tried to serve and let the first ball go by for a strike. There were more groans. Why should he have to stake his future on popularity with men who were calling on the manager to take him out? What did he owe to them or the manager? Fans and women are fickle, thought Regan, and he swung viciously at the next ball and sent it soaring over the fence. It still stands as the longest hit on the grounds.

When Regan, panting after the four base circuit, sat on the bench again, the slump was ended. Baseball looked good and the cheering fans were friends. The confidence he had missed for weeks welled within him. He thought of Barbara. "She might want to take me back," he thought. "Not if I know myself!"

In the dressing room Dolan, handed him an envelope. "Lady told me to give it to you."

"Dear Leo," Regan read, "I don't know, of course, whether you made a hit or not. They told me if you could be made angry you would lose the jinx. But, anyhow, whether you lost it or not, come to see me this evening. One day of being 'mad' is all I can stand."

FILIPINOS WILL ASK ABSOLUTE INDEPENDENCE

Insular Mission of 21 Members Arrives to Insist U. S. Keeps Promise.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—The Philippine mission, comprising 21 members, who arrived here yesterday from Manila en route to Washington, D. C., will ask for immediate and absolute independence for their islands, it became known today. The delegation, headed by Manuel L. Quezon, president of the Philippine Senate, and Sergio Osmena speaker of the House of Representatives, arrived on the steamer Tenyo Maru.

Manuel L. Quezon.

The party will be granted an audience with Pesident Harding on June 16. Including the two presiding officers the independence mission is made up of six senators, nine representatives and one honorary member, the secretary of interior. All of the political parties in the Philippines are represented in the mission. It is the second independence mission, and, according to Pesident Quezon, is carrying instructions from the Filipino people to work for absolute and immediate independence for the Philippine islands.

DELEGATION WELCOMED.

When the steamer carrying the party docked, a large crowd of Filipinos was at the pier to welcome the delegation and greeted the members of the party with cheers. The freedom of the port was offered to the delegation by the customs officers. Quezon was accompanied by his wife and two children.

"In 1916, the American people," said President Quezon, speaking of the mission, "through their constitutional representatives, the Congress of the United States, solemnly promised in the Jones law, the organic act of the Philippines, to recognize the independence of the Philippines as soon as a stable government could be established in the country. The people of the Philippine islands have abundantly demonstrated their capacity to set up and maintain a stable government; in fact such a government has been established by the Filipino people and has been in operation for several years.

"The Filipino people have thus more than sufficiently fulfilled the sole condition precedent to the recognition of Philippine independence. The Filipino people confidently hope that America will no longer delay the performance of her own part of the agreement between the two countries."

OPPOSE COASTWISE LAWS.

Quezon and Osmena are lined up with strong propaganda movement against the extension of the American coastwise laws to include the Philippines. Nor do they wish the Philippine government-owned railroads to be sold to private companies. Quezon said the extension of the coastwise law would be detrimental to the trade of the Philippines.

Principal figures in the mission are:

Manuel L. Quezon, president of the Philippine Senate, president of the nationalist liberty party and formerr resident commissioner in the United States and chairman of the independence mission on behalf of the Philippine Senate.

Sergio Osmena, speaker of the Philippine House of Representatives, president of the nationalist party, and chairman of the independence mission, on behalf of the Philippine House of Representatives.

Pedro Abad Santos, member of the House of Representatives.

NOTED MEDICAL MAN.

D. Antonio G. Sison, professor of the College of Medicine and Surgery at the University of the Philippines and technical adviser of the party.

Dr. Justo Lukban, former mayor of the city of Manila and adviser for the mission.

Maximo Rodriguez, governor of the povince of Tayabas.

There are several secretaries and newspaper men with the delegation.

Other members of the independence mission who came via Seattle were on hand yesterday when the Tenyo Maru arrived. All the delegates, numbering 36, will remain here until June 9 beforer leaving for Washington.

Quezon and his party are determined to make a strong plea to President Harding and Congress, despite the report made by the Woods-Forbes mission, that the Filipinos were not yet ready for independence.

Charges of Fortune-Hunting Roil Oser

ZURICH, Switzerland, June 5 (By the Associated Press).—Max Oser expressed indignation today over a current report that Mrs. Harold F. McCormick had asserted that his purpose in marrying her daughter, Mathilde, was to obtain her money. Oser declared that he had sufficient money for himself and his bride if they lived simply, as, he said, they purposed to do.

He had not asked Harold F. McCormick, father of Mathilde for any dowery, which is the usual Swiss custom. Denial was made by Oser of a report that he had sought to marry another wealthy American girl prior to his engagement to Miss McCormick.

Oser added that his attitude had not been changed by the opposition to his marriage to Miss McCormick. On the contrary, he was more determined than ever to marry her unless she herself refused him, which, he said, he believed improbable.

PIEDMONT'S HIGH DEDICATED WITH FORMAL SERVICE

$200,000 Structure Opened to Public; Speakers Point Out School Features.

Piedmont yesterday dedicated its new high school, educators, municipal officials, students and the public participating in the formal exercises. Piedmont Park, the once famous pleasure ground of the Eastbay cities, has become the site for the important educational plant which has assembled all modern equipment, including a complete theater. The building represents an investment of more than $200,000.

H. W. Jones, superintendent of Piedmont schools; Walter Brann, president of the Board of Education; Mayor Oliver Ellsworth, and Charles Bradley, president of the Piedmont Civic Association, were the principal speakers on the dedication program.

The facilities which the building afforded for educational work were pointed out by Superintendent Jones. According to President Brann, the high school faculty which will open the fall semester has been recruited from all parts of the United States.

Congratulations to those who have carried out the project of building the new high school and putting Piedmont on the "educational map," were offered by Mayor Ellsworth. The part which the building will play in the community life of the city was reviewed by Bradley. The dedication prayer was offered by Rev. C. D. Milliken. The High School Glee clubs furnished the musical program.

A tour of inspection of the building and grounds followed the program. A double athletic field is a feature of the plant.

U. S. VALOR MEDAL GIVEN TO VERDUN

America Pays High Tribute to Valor of City's Defenders in 1916.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

VERDUN, June 5.—The first and only medal ever given by the United States government to any community in the world has taken its place among the cherished possessions of the city of Verdun. It was presented yesterday by Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, "in the name of the congress and the people of the United States" to the municipality of Verdun "as a mark of America's appreciation of the valor of its defenders."

"It is the whole of the United States which pays this honor," the ambassador said in his speech of presentation. "It is our supreme authority, our congress, and our president, and with them our people."

The fame of Verdun and the glory of its defenders dates from February 21, 1916, when the German high command began its colossal battle to crush the city, annihilate the French right wing and win an immense military and moral victory, which had it been successful, might have meant a different ending to the war. The defenders proved to be invincible.

General Petain had spoken for France, "They shall not pass."

More Monkey Love Is Held Need of World

By F. A. WRAY,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, June 5. — Monkey love is what this old world needs today to set it morally straight. You may take this from Dr. Bernard Hollander, a distinguished psycho-analyst.

"When we can love like monkeys we shall be nearer to perfect monogamy," Dr. Hollander said. "Man, constituted as he is now, can and does love more than one woman simultaneously.

"The ordinary man can share his love between the tender and true woman who makes the ideal wife, and a second woman who thrills him and stirs his emotions.

"The ideal of mankind should be monogamy, but the love of two or even more women, at the same time, is a psychological fact that cannot be controverted.

"We have much to learn from the lower orders of nature regarding perfect monogamy. Among anthropoid apes, for example, you have the most perfect example of the single attachment of male and female. There are no divorces in the jungle. The mother love of the ape is unparalleled in the animal world and scarcely equaled by mankind. Birds, too, are perfect monogamists.

"We need a restoration of the plain old fashionedd sense of loyalty. The loyalty that makes men stand by each other in peril should make men stand by teir chosen partners in the battle of life.

"This war has created an artificial sense of independence among women, but it is the national home life environment that will pevail over what I believe is a passing phase."

Slaying Recalled By Stockton Murder

STOCKTON, June 5.—The body of the murdered Italian, found near this city in a rubbish heap, now is believed to be that of Pietro Secretti, former boarder at the home of Mrs. Rosina Salvino. Mrs. Salvino recently was pardoned from the penitentiary after serving a year for the murder of Thomas Pizzi, with a hammer in the basement of her home, in the district where the body was found last night.

Mrs. Salvino, since her recent pardon, has resided at her ranch home. At the time Pizzi was killed officers expressed the belief that jealously existed between him and Secretti. Mrs. Salvino declared she killed Pizzi because he had criminally assaulted her a few days before.

This morning District Attorney Edward Van Vranken and a swarm of deputy sheriffs were out in the country following up every angle of the mystery.

The body was found last night in a rubbish pile in a lonely spot about three miles from Stockton, where it had been dragged. On the body was found a newspaper clipping of the recent pardon by Governor William D. Etephens of Mrs. Salvino.

BERRY GROWERS ARE ACCUSED OF BIG DECEPTION

Warrants Are Issued for 32 Japanese Who Violate State Packing Law.

A campaign to force the berry growers of this county to conform to the state laws in packing and giving the correct sized boxes was launched today by the sealer oof weights and measures and the horticultural commissioner.

In raids made today by D. P. T. McDonald, deputy horticultural commissioner, and E. K. Strowbridge found evidence of 50 berry growers who are violating the laws. Warrants were sworn to by McDonald against thirty-two violators who are charged with deceptive packing. The warrants were signed by Police Judges Tyrrell and Smith.

According to McDonald the strawberries which are being shipped into this city do not conform with teh standard packing law. He says that the boxes have large berries on the top and small ones on the bottom. Of the thirty-two warrants which he secured today, thirty-one were for Japanese. The warrants will be served within the next few days.

Eighteen of the violators were charged by Strowbridge with shipping strayberries into this city in eight ounce boxes when they should have been in twelve ounce boxes.

In the future deputies will be stationed at the commission markets in order to secure evidence against the violators.

Grand Jury Forced To Drop Ward Case

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 5. The June grand jury empanelled today declined to hear evidence in the Ward shooting case, after County Judge William Blakely, who charged it, pointed out that he formerly had been a law partner of John F. Brennan of Yonkers, counsel for Walter S. Ward.

It thereupon was decided to issue an emergency call for the May grand jury, which has not yet been discharged. District Attorney Weeks plans to submit the case to the May jurors tomorrow.

ROTARIANS OF MANY COUNTRIES ARRIVE IN L. A.

Special Trains Bring Delegates to International Meet of Society.

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—Los Angeles, bedecked with flags of many nations and clothed in holiday attire, today welcomed thousands of delegates from twenty-six countries to the thirteenth annual convention of the International Association of Rotary Clubs, which opens here tomorrow.

The first of the special trains bearing the Rotarians to the convention city, arrived yesterday with delegations from the New England states, this valley and the Middle West.

The convention crowd, estimated at 10,000, was expected to reach its height at noon today, following the arrival of Crawford C. McCullough, of Toronto, Ont., international president of the association.

While the convention will not convene until tomorrow, today was designated as assembly day, and important committee and board meetings were on the program. Among these were meetings of the international board; chairman of the international committees and the committee on proposed legislation.

The international board and chairmen of its committees were to be guests at a luncheon in Los Angeles at noon, while the Pasadena Rotary Club will entertain this evening with a dinner and reception for all registered delegates.

To detract from the possible tedium of business sessions, sightseeing trips, social affairs and a golf tournament have given a prominent position on the week's program.

Weakness and Stomach Troubles Are Things of the Past Since Taking Tanlac, Declares L. J. Smith.

"When I started taking Tanlac I was suffering from the after-effects of diphtheria and was as weak as a kitten, but now I have actually gained sixteen pounds in weight and am feeling as well and strong as I ever did," said L. J. Smith, for thirty years a resident of Berkeley, Cal., residing at 807 Delaware street.

"For over a year my stomach was in such a terrible condition that what little I ate seemed like poison to my system. I would bloat up as tight as a drum, suffer intense pains, and could hardly get a deep breath. I had rheumatism in my shoulders so bad I could scarcely use my arms at times, and my back hurt so bad I could hardly stoop over. I couldn't sleep at night and always felt tired and worn out.

"However, all that's over now, and Tanlac has rid me of all these pains and put me in fine condition in every way."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.—Advertisement.

HARDING JOINS IN TRIBUTE TO GRAY VETERANS

President Stands Beneath the Stars and Bars as He Tells of United Nation.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The president of the United States, himself the son of a Union veteran, joined with gray-clad, gray-haired veterans of the confederacy, who stood with bowed heads at the graves of the comrades in "the Lost Cause" yesterday, in Arlington cemetery to pay their annual tribute of love and remembrance to those who had gone on the last long march.

Standing beneath the dropping folds of t he Stars and Bars, President Harding uttered a prayer of gratitude for a reunited nation whose founadtion, he said, had been cemented by the blood of Confederate and Federal alike.

Harding spoke extemporaneously. He was not on the program to make a speech, and his appearance on the rostrum of the open air amphitheater was a surprise to the crowd which had gathered for the ceremony in the Confederate section of the cemetery.

To the sons and daughters of veterans Harding added a word of tribute.

GOOD WORK IS DONE.

"Speaking as the son of one who fought in the Union cause," he said, "I want to say that I have only gratitude, commendation and the sincerest tribute a man can utter for their sons and daughters who have lived in the great aftermath and ably assisted in turning disunion into union, turning discord into concord and reclaiming for posterity all those things so essential to the welfare of this republic."

Tribute to the spirit of the veterans and sons of the gray in turning defeat into rebuilding of the nation was spoken by the prisedent, who declared he wished to pay "the greatest tribute to you of the gray," and his tribute was one for the man who bore up as a loser. "It is easier to forgive and forget if you are on the triumphant side," said Harding, "but it takes a bigger heart to forgive and forget if you have gone down in defeat in the lost cause. I would like to see more of this fellowship and comradeship which marks a united America."

BITTERNESS IS GONE.

The address of Judge Edgar Scurry, of Wichita Falls, Texas, commander-in-chief of the Sons of Veterans, held a renewal of the pledge of fealty to the Union of the veterans and the sons of the Confederacy. Addressing the president, he declared:

"I bring to you a message from the sons of the Confederacy, to you as the son of a brave Union soldier, that the time has passed for bitterness. The time has come when every American's great deeds should become the heritage of other Americans, no matter in what cause they were performed."

Bergdoll's Mother Loses Her Appeal

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The Supreme Court of the United States today denied a review of the appeals of Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll, mother of Grover C. Bergdoll, and others for relief from payment of fines in connection with alleged violation of the selective service law. Mrs. Bergdoll, Charles A. Braun and James E. Romig of Philadelphia, paid fines assessed against them while they had an appeal pending in the higher court. Their appeal to the Sureme Court, which was rejected, was to reverse convictions in lower courts and to recover the fines paid.

PENSIONS BOARD FILE SAPPEAL IN WHITEHEAD CASE

Supreme Court Is Asked to Rule on Former Fire Chief's Fight.

The appeal of the Pension Board of the City of Oakland in the case of former Fire Chief Elliott Whitehead was submitted to the California supreme court today on briefs.

Chief Whitehead's contentions that he was entitled to retirement on pension recently was upheld by the district court of appeal.

It was the contention of the Pension Board that the office of Chief of the Department was not a civil service post and that in accepting it he lost his privileges under civil service regulations, which would have given him a pension, and that the time he acted as chief must be subtracted from the period of his service.

The court is expected to render an early decision.

IN COURT 11 MONTHS.

Whitehead's pension fight to determine whether or not the twenty-five year pension clause in the city charter dates from the time of service, or from 1919, when the provision was made, has been in the courts for eleven months.

Legal action was taken by Whitehead immediately after his demotion from the position of chief of the department on July 1, 1921. He had been chief for six years prior to the assumption of control by the present City Council.

In a decision handed down by the District Court of Appeals on February 15 of this year and signed by Presiding Judge John F. Tyler and Justices Kerrigan and Richards, Whiteheand's contention was upheld.

SERVICE POINT SETTLED.

According to the decision White head is entitled to retire at one-half the fire chief's pay. This would give him $150, which is just $25 less than his present salary of $175 a month as battalion chief.

The decision settled a new point in that years of service performed in the fire or police departments prior to the amendment of the city charter may be included in computing twenty-five years of service, entitling a member to a pension.

The city commissioners acting as trustees of the firemen's relief and pension fund contended that Whitehead was classified as an "extra man" prior to 1911, when the charter was amended to take in the volunteer and regular branches of the department.

The commissioners also held that a member of either department who is elevated to the position of chief, a non-civil service position, cannot compute in his service period that time that he spends in the non-civil service position.

Iowa Voting on Six Senate Candidates

DES MOINES, Ia., June 5 (By the Associated Press).—Iowa's six aspirants for the Republican nomination for United States Senator brought their campaign to a close last night with statements that indicate that each is confident of victory today.

One candidate must receive more than 35 per cent of the total number of votes cast to be nominated. The Republican party's candidate will be made at the state convention to be held August if nomination fails.

The candidates seeking nomination to fill out the unexpired term of Senator W. S. Kenyon are: Colonel Smith W. Brookhart of Washington, Charles E. Pickett of Waterloo, Burton E. Sweet of Waverly, Clifford L. Thorne of School Contract May Be Let Tonight

Contracts for the construction of elmhurst school on Ninety-eighth avenue are expected to be let tonight by the board of education. The board will also discuss contracts for school books, following President Harry Boyle's recent assertion that the school histories are "misleading" and are full of "propagando." It is admitted, however, that there is no option except to contract for the books which the state department of education specifies.

TAKAHASHI GAINS DOMINANCE FROM JAPANESE CRISIS

Support of Party Insures His Authority to Control Cabinet Policy.

TOKYO, June 5 (By the Associated Press). — Leaders of the Seiyu-Kai, the present majority political party of Japan, today agreed to continue Premier Takahashi in office and to give him complete authority to decide the policy of the cabinet. This means that the premier will be empowered to expel recalcitrant members of the cabinet.

This action followed the premier's renewal Saturday of his previous suggestion, first voiced on May 2, that the entire cabinet resign because of its divergence of views. In May several of the cabinet ministers offered their resignations, but they were withdrawn temporarily at the request of Premier Takahashi, who decided that urgent public business required that the cabinet be held together for a while. The cabinet was understood to have split over domestic policies. Reorganization of the ministry had been contemplated by Takahashi in May, but was not carried out.

The vernacular press agreed today that the premier's resignation was made imperative by his loss of prestige incident to his failure to carry out the cabinet reconstruction scheme during the May crisis.

Wilbur Shows New Skill In 'Boomerang' at Fulton

"It is wonderful, doctor, simply wonderful!"

This is the "tag-line" in "The Boomerang," the last to be spoken in the play and in a measure it serves to describe the production at the Fulton theater last night where Crane Wilbur opened a special engagement with Mlle. Suzanne Caubet.

Last night's performance sent the audience home impressed not only with the play but the players. "The Boomerang" stands on its merits, a clever comedy drama, sparkling with wit, marked with dramatic incidents, and enlivened by bits of "hokum." It was an ideal opening bill for Wilbur.

This actor returns to Oakland changed in many respects. It was chiefly to see him and his leading woman that the first-nighters turned out en masse last night. There was conjecture as to the sort of performance he would give since he has plunged into the playing and playwright pool of New York.

In "The Boomerang" he is playing the role of a struggling young physician who acquires fame through his strange prescriptions for a wealthy client. The role is one that taxes the abilities of the performer to the utmost. In the parlance of the stage it is "tricky."

Despite the nervous tension of an opening night, Wilbur gave an easy, polished, clever performance. The tendency he once had to be "stagey" has been completely overcome.

Wilbur still can play on the emotions of his audience, still can move them to tears and laughter, but his modus operandi is different. He is more repressed, more reserved, less pedagogical and, as a natural result, infinitely better. His performance won uniform acclaim and the welcome he received was enthusiastically sincere. He responded briefly and appropriately.

While he dominates "The Boomerang," however, his is not the only exceptional performance. Interest entered next in his leading woman, Mlle. Caubet. Her personality alone would serve to "get her over" but in addition she seems to have been happy in a choice of aunts in Sarah Bernhardt and association with this notable in French productions has made of Mlle. Caubet a technical artist such as is rarely seen in local presentations.

Mlle. Caubet wears clothes well, has graceful carriage and enunciates clearly, speaking English with a faint and delicious accent. Her presentation of the role of "Virginia" was entirely different from that of Martha Hedman, the creator, and just as acceptable.

Still another treat was in store for the first nighters in the performance of W. Vaughan Morgan playing the juvenile role. Morgan had a difficult role and played it well. The honors in the first act went entirely to him for a bit of acting as a hysterical, love-sick youth.

The balance of the company was up to standard. John Ivan played the semi-heavy role in a most creditable manner; Henry Shumer brought humor to "Heinrich," Helen Audiffred won attention as the doctor's sister and others were Ann O'Day, George Rand, Eleanor Martin, Lora Rogers, Minnie Mae Sissons, Walter Plunkett, J. Monroe Rothschild and Dora Hazlett.

"The Boomerang" was handsomely mounted and carefully directed and if the enthusiasm of the first nighters can be taken as a barometer will prove a pleasant evening's entertainment for the balance of this week.—W. S.

EIGHTY PERISH ON RIVER BOAT; FIRE ADDS TERROR

Explosion Sinks Steamer on the Parana and Very Few Escape.

BUENOS AIRES, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.) — Eighty persons are believed to have perished in the sinking yesterday of the steamer Villafranca on the Parana river near Posadas. At that point the river forms the boundary between Argentina and Paraguay.

The vessel carried thirty cabin passengers, seventy second-class passengers and a general cargo.

One survivor said the sleeping passengers were awakened at 1:40 a. m. yesterday by cries of alarm, and rushed on deck to find the vessel enveloped in flames. A few seconds later there was a heavy explosion, which caused the boat to fill and sink rapidly nearly a mile from the Paraguayan shore. Some of the uninjured survivors swam ashore. An unconfirmed report said that the only cabin passengers saved were the members of a family of North Americans, and three others.

The steamer had on board tourists for Iguazu Falls.

The explosion occurred at 1:40 o'clock in the morning. It is said the vessel sank so quickly that the passengers had no time to dress or to seek life belts.

DANCE CLOSES SAN LEANDRO'S I. D. E. S. FETE

SAN LEANDRO, June 5.—What is said to be the most successful I. D. E. S. Holy Ghost celebration held in several years ended today with a dance in the lodge hall. The celebration opened Saturday evening with a parade through the main portion of San Leandro. Saturday night an opening ball was held, at which Miss Leona Freitas, queen, presided. During an intermission a fireworks display was presented.

Impressive coronation services were held Sunday morning at St. Leander's church, following a second parade through the main streets. In the afternoon a barbecue and dance was held. It was estimated that approximately 1000 persons were fed at the barbecue.

MISUNDERSTANDING IS FINALLY CLEARED UP

"Honestly, Alice, I have just about decided to be good and mad at you. We have been over to see you time and again. Jack spoke about it last night. He says it is next to impossible to get you and Tom over to see us. We've about decided you want to cut us."

"How silly of you and Jack. You know better than that. We've enjoyed having you over so much and I hope you won't stop just because we don't come often."

"I should say we will stop. We won't do all the calling. If you don't care to come and see us"——

"Now listen, dear, I'll tell you just why we don't come. I didn't intend to, but as you are almost peeved I will tell you. Neither of us has any decent clothes and we decided to stick at home till we got some money that's coming to us in a few weeks."

"For goodness sake is that all that ails you? But why on earth don't you get some clothes at Cherry's, the store for women is at 528 13th street. You know you 528 13th street. Yolu know you can get what you want—both of you, suits, wraps and dresses, etc., as well as suits and o'coats for men, and pay when it's convenient. Credit house, you know, and they allow one to make such convenient terms, too."—Advertisement.

'I CAN IDENTIFY WIFE'S SLAYERS,' SAYS WILKENS

Husband of S. F. Bandits' Victim Positive of Ability to Recognize Trio.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—Henry Wilkens, husband of Mrs. Anna Wilkens, who was murdered at Nineteenth avenue and Moraga street last Tuesday by bandits, told the police today that he is now positive he can identify the men who drove alongside his car just before one of them fired the shot which killed Mrs. Wilkens.

Wilkens stated shortly after the tragedy that he could not make a positive identification of the men. He declared today, however, that he was so dazed at the time he could not give a description of the bandits.

The husband of the dead woman today vigorously denied reports that he and Mrs. Wilkens had lived together unhappily. He said that the action for separate maintenance, which was made public following the tragedy, would not have been filed at all had his wife's attorney complied with her request that the matter be dropped.

"Any married couple has a few misunderstandings," said Wilkens, "and the separate maintenance suit was begun as a result of one of these misunderstandings. It was all straightened out, however, and we were happy."

Police detectives are running down every tip which comes into the central office. Many reports of men who answer the description given the police by Wilkens have been received from various sources, but so far none has been of aid to the police and other officials in the state-wide search for the slayers.

Investigation continues as to the source of three $100 bills found by detectives the night of the tragedy, on a trio of men who got into an argument with a man in charge of a gasoline filling station. The men deny knowledge of the Wilkens murder. An effort is being made to trace the bills from the time they were issued by a Sacramento bank.

What My Neighbor Next Door Taught Me—

Like most women, I hated the drudgery of washing and ironing—it seemed that I would no sooner get through with one week's work than the next week was upon me.

For a time I had a woman come in and do the washing. Still there was the same old Monday Wash Day muss and clutter, plus the uncertainty as to whether the woman would appear for work or not. And I still was left with most of the ironing on my hands.

Then I experimented with home washing machinery and found that a woman does not understand machinery and that she is in frequent danger of physical injury when she uses it.

I also found to my amazement that while the wash woman did all the washing and part of the ironing, the machinery left me with quite a bit of actual rubbing to do and all of the heavy work connected with handling the clothes. It was up to me to make sure the dirt was out, then hang the wash on the line and later iron it.

About this time I began to wonder at MY NEIGHBOR NEXT DOOR. She always seemed to have so much time to herself. Then one Monday morning I saw the laundry wagon at her door.

I am experimenting no longer. Today my neighbor's laundry driver calls at my house. I have learned what every woman will sometime learn and that is, that there is nothing, absolutely nothing, that can satisfactorily take the place of the laundry.

ALIENS WARNED OF NEW BATTLE IN NORTH CHINA

Wu's Forces Prepare for An Attack on Rear Guard of Chang.

TIENTSIN, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—All foreigners have been warned to leave Shanhai-kwan, Chihli, on the Manchurian border along the gulf of Liaotung, because serious fighting is expected between the advance guard of General Wu Pei-fu's invading army and the retreating troops of Chang Tso-lin, the Manchurian war lord. The warning was telegraphed from Changli by the commander of the Chihli column.

The Chihli advance guard at noon Saturday had reached Liuahoying, the next station from Peitaiho. General Chang's Fengtien troops were retiring toward Shanhai-kwang.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

PEKING, June 5.—The troops of General Wu Pei-fu have invaded Manchuria. It was announced today in official circles that Wu Pei-fu's main army, which was sent in pursuit of Chang Tso-lin, the Manchurian war lord, has reached a point near Chinchowfu, 150 miles southwest of Mukden, after marching overland. Another division of the army is moving northward along the Mukden railroad. Altogether sixty thousand troops are advancing toward Mukden. Chang Tso-lin himself is in Mukden.

PEKING, June 5.—(By the Associated Press.)—Sun Yet Sen, first president of the Chinese republic leader of the Canton government, loomed today as the one man whose word may bring peace in China.

Li Yuan-hung, ousted by the militarists' monarchial coup in 1917 in response to the appeal of Wu, announced yesterday that he was ready to resume office provided he did so as the leader of an United China. Telegrams to this effect were despatched to Dr. Sun's headquarters in Canton. This involves Dr. Sun's resignation as leader of a faction engaged in strife with the Peking government headed until recently by Hsu Shih-chang.

A direct refusal, it is believed, would cause General Wu Pei-fu to take steps to redeem his recent promise and use force against Dr. Sun.

WEEK-END AUTO ACCIDENTS ARE FEW AND SLIGHT

Several Persons Receive But Minor Injuries; None Badly Hurt.

There were fewer automobile accidents in the bay district over this week-end than for many weeks. There were no persons seriously injured.

Edward Grekel, 9431 Cherry street, Oakland, was slightly injured when the wheel of an automobile he was driving struck a street car track and caused the machine to overturn. David Davis, small son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Davis, who were also in the car, suffered minor injuries.

Leroy Falconer, 7525 East Fourteenth street, was injured last night when struck at Seventy-fifth street and Fortieth avenue by a machine driven by Lewis Gianbastiani of San Leandro. He suffered cuts and bruises.

W. C. Wright, sign painter residing at 529 Ninth street, and Frank C. Dickerson, 499 Howe street, a creamery employee, were injured last night when struck by a machine driven by Edward Garrigues, Hotel Royal. The accident occurred at Eighth and Clay streets. Garrigues was arrested and charged with operating a machine without a drivers' license and without a registration card.

Jack Val Preta, 1130 Fifty-third street, and C. A. Christensen of Livermore were badly shaken up and the small son of Christensen was cut by flying glass when Christensen's machine struck one driven by Val Preta. The accident happened at Forty-sixth and Market streets.

REPORT MADE ON WAITERS' STRIKE

The industrial relations board of the Chamber of Commerce announces that it has just completed an extended investigation of conditions surrounding the recent walkout at Richard's Cafe and the Marine Grotto.

In a statement given to the press the board states:

"Those conducting the investigation interviewed striking waiters, other waiters and the chefs who did not walk out, and have listened to the statements of union officials and have examined books and working schedules in the restaurants. The investigation proves that the eight-hour day prevailed in the case of every employee except two, one of whom was working eight and one-half hours and the other seven and one-half hours. The time of these two men has since been arranged so that each is now working eight hours. The board also found that the wages paid were those stipulated by the unions for restaurants of this class.

"The strike was brought about, in the opinion of the industrial relations board, because of the refusal of the proprietor to permit union officials to interview his employees inside of his house during working hours for collection of dues from union men and the solicitation of memberships from others, and through the employer's demand that the unions' business agents take up their business through his attorney and not with him personally."

The findings of the board are being sent both to union officials and to the proprietor of the two cafes.

FILM STUDIOS MUST CLEAN UP, DECLARES HAYS

Ultimatum Issued by Head of Movie Association to Purify Screen.

NEW YORK, June 5.—An ultimatum from Czar Will H. Hays to the movies to "clean up and stay clean" was posted today in studios of New York and Los Angeles.

Hays, in a letter to the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, representing 75 per cent of the industry in this country, said in part:

"We can make the greatest immediate progress in establishing and maintaining the highest possible morale and artistic standard of motion picture production if those charged with production make sure they do strive for this very thing.

"Pictures being made now will come out soon and will be proof either of our ability to correct our evils ourselves or of our inability to run our own business."

The following motion picture organizations are among those backing Hays in his "morality" move: Fox, Educational Film Exchanges, Universal, Metro, Vitagraph, Goldwyn, Select Pictures and the Famous Players-Lasky corporation.

SUIT FILED BY NEBRASKAN FOR WAR DONATION

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., June 5.—C. Lawrence Stull, well-known Cass county farmer, wants $1000 he contributed to the Red Cross during the war, back, and has brought suit against five individuals and the Plattsmouth State Bank.

His petition alleges that the derendants, excepting the bank, accompanied a crowd of 100 persons that, in June, 1918, visited his farm and "demanded" that he contribute $1000 to the government war work. He further alleges that members of the crowd stood with "ropes and revolvers," and that he was forced to sign two checks, one for $1000 to the American Red Cross and the second for $1800 for war securities.

Stull asks judgment of $1000 and costs.

Second Obenchain Jury Being Chosen

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—With the defendant declaring she is ready for a "fight to the finish," the selection of a jury to try Madalynne C. Obenchain a second time on the charge of murdering J. With three Kennedy trials in local courts during the past eight months, and each trial consuming from six to eight weeks, considerable difficulty is expected before a full jury in Mrs. Obenchain's present trial is obtained. In her former trial and in the two trials of her co-defendant, Arthur C. Burch, the selection of the juries took from one to two weeks' time.

SPOUSE ROUGH, SAYS WIFE; IS GIVEN DECREE

Mrs. Sue H. Stacey, suing Albert H. Stacey, ferry-boat deckhand for divorce, said on the witness stand today that her husband's amusements were entirely too rough.

When out for a walk with her, Mrs. Stacey said, her husband would dart from her side at sight of a passing switch engine, swing aboard the cow-catcher and steal a ride.

Whenever he saw two strangers fighting in the street, she declared, he would "mix in" himself and settle it with his own fists.

Once when searching for the keyhole after he had returned home intoxicated, said Mrs. Stacey, her husband plunged head first through a glass door. The door was ruined, the plaintiff asserted, but Stacey escaped without a scratch.

Mrs. Stacey was granted an interlocutory decree.

'Curses Turned to Blessings'

CURSES TURNED TO BLESSINGS

"Curses Turned to Blessings" was the sermon theme of Rev. Edward C. Phillieo, pastor of the Centennial Presbyterian church, yesterday morning. The talk was based on the discourse—The story of Balaam's futile attempt to curse Israel (Numbers 22 to 24). Rev. Phillieo said in part:

First of all, there is a mighty message here as to the security of God's people.

Israel was the people whom God had chosen. He had called this nation to a place of special privilege and blessing, and He had for it a great and a far-reaching purpose. Moreover, they were now in a general way, at least, keeping in line with that purpose.

Wherever such a condition obtains there must be security. God is pledged to protect and care for His own. He will not allow His purposes to be defeated by any enemy that may cross the path of His people. He is Almighty, or He is nothing. All the minions of hell may be massed against such a man or company of men, but between the two stands God saying, "Thus far shalt thou go, and no further."

And has this no message for us? Were those ancient Israelites God's only loved ones? Our Lord said to His disciples, as He says to all who have followed them in the ages since—"Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you." You and I have a part in God's great plan as truly as ever Israel had. And if we keep in line with that plan, if we follow His leading and obey His voice, we have a right to count on His care and protection to the utmost.

That means that my life and health are in his keeping. No enemy can touch me here without His permission. I shall live until my work is done, and when it is done it is time for me to go.

It means that I shall be kept from any overwhelming temptation. God is faithful, Who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able.

But there is more in the story than this, for that which was intended for a curse here was not only defeated, but it was actually turned into a blessing. The fiercest onslaughts of the enemy will be made a means for the advancement of the divine purposes in our own lives and in the world if only we keep in harmony with God.

Price of Progress Is Sacrifice

With "sacrifice" as the keynote of modern and past advancement Dr. Frank M. Silsley, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, spoke on "The New Song of the Redeemed" yesterday morning. He said in part:

"The Elders' Chorus sung the song of triumph over the sacrificed Christ. Our redemption was purchased at the price of sacrifice, and no true progress is made in this world without sacrifice and endurance. For material progress we pay the price of sacrifice. How many lives are sacrificed to manufacture the steel beams of the skyscrapers? Scientific progress is at the price of sacrifice. The yellow fever germ carried by the mosquito was conquered only through the price of precious human blood. We speak of free England, free France and free America, but freedom has been purchased at the price of streams and fields reddened by human blood. The spirit of 1776 was the spirit of sacrifice for the ideal America. The spirit of 1918 was the spirit of sacrifice for the ideal of the world made secure for democracy, and civilization today leans on the tombs of those who gave their lives yesterday.

"The greatest song in the world is not the mere passing song of the day. It is the song of the redeemed. All the popular songs of today pass away. Many of the habits and characteristics of earth cease at death. There will be no fiction reading, no golfing, no motoring and many other popular things in Heaven, but we shall keep on singing the song of the redeemed. One of the tendencies to be regretted today is that anyone desiring to live a better life should ignore the inspiration of the atonement of Christ."

Dr. Snape Talks on Purifying Hope

"The secret of greatness is the clear recognition of greatness unattained," said Dr. John Snape, pastor of the First Baptist church, yesterday in his sermon while speaking on "The Purifying Hope." Continuing, he said:

"Every man who has amounted to anything in this world owes everything to inspiration. He accomplishes much because he wants to accomplish more. He was ever goaded to duty by the knowledge of duty unperformed and urged to do better by the inspiration to do his best.

"Builders of air castles ought to make the best sort of earth builders, since they are accustomed to work according to high and lofty plans. The man who dwells in daily fellowship with God above the skies will be of most service to his fellowmen beneath the skies. The man who reaches the highest up will stoop the lowest down. At our best we think we are the worst men in the world, and in one sense we are if we think so. We must see ourselves as God sees us, in the face of the pure and holy Christ. We shall gain the highest heights only as we yield to holiest inspirations.

"Hope is a compound of desire and expectation. And hope is a purifying process. The purity of Christ is the purifying standard, and it is reached when we see our own reflection in the face of Jesus Christ."

'California Our Holy Land,' Topic

Delivering his first sermon yesterday after returning from an extended motor trip through California, Rev. Clarence Reed, pastor of the First Unitarian church, compared the beauties and resources of California to that of a modern "promised land." Using "California, Our Holy Land," as his subject, Rev. Reed said in part:

"Our task is to make of California the modern Holy Land. A state is great, not on account of its size and its material resources. Are we striving to reach in California a civilization as great as that of the Hebrews and the Greeks? Are we aiming to become the great industrial, educational, artistic and idealistic center of the world? Are we seeking to develop the noblest types of manhood and womanhood? Are we possessed with an all-consuming passion to discover and express a message that will spiritualize human life as the messages of Isaiah, Amos and Jesus influenced the life and thought of past ages?

"It is not easy for persons living in California to appreciate the smallness of Palestine. Nearly all the events recorded in the Old Testament took place in a land not any larger than Fresno county. If a person goes only ten miles, south, east or west of Jerusalem it is possible to see the peaks of Lebanon, the valleys where lived the Philistines, the mountains in which dwelt the Moabites and the Mediterranean sea, which forms the boundaries of Palestine.

"There is a wonderful lure about the land of California. It is infinitely more beautiful and grander than the promised land of the Israelites. California is the modern promised land. Compare the river Jordan, which is 250 miles in length and from 90 to 200 feet in width, with the Sacramento. It rises near the base of Mt. Shasta and gathers brooks, streams and rivers to itself until it becomes a majestic river bearing upon its bosom the commerce of the nations. The shores of the Sea of Galilee are barren and the hills are low. Look upon the face of Lake Tahoe in the early morning and it becomes a perfect mirror in which may be seen snow-clad mountains, trees and waterfalls. The cedars of Lebanon that exist today may be easily counted and they are commonplace in appearance. Journey along the Redwood highway from Willits to Crescent City and for almost 250 miles a person may travel through groves of redwoods. John Muir has truly called the redwoods of California 'the noblest of a noble race.'

"These trees impress the visitor by the simplicity of their form, the history of their battling for centuries with storms, lightning and fire so that endurance and strength are written on every trunk and their great age, which makes them the oldest living things on earth."

SAILOR RETURNS 25 CTS. LOANED BY POLICEMAN

BERKELEY, June 5. — A member of Uncle Sam's naval forces made his appearance at police station this morning.

"Here's a quarter I borrowed from one of your officers the other night in order to get back to my ship," he explained to Sergeant C. A. Becker.

He gave his name as Theodore P. Corbaley, sailor on the U. S. S. Mapano, now stationed in San Francisco bay. According to Corbaley, he ran out of funds and approached an officer at Shattuck and University avenues for a "touch." The quarter was readily forthcoming.

"I got paid and want to return the money," explained Corbaley. "I certainly appreciated the loan. It saved me a lot of explaining on my ship."

The Telephone Directory

Good telephone service depends vitally upon care in calling telephone numbers. A wrong number called causes loss of time to you, to the party called and to the operator. Every instance means avoidable inconvenience to all concerned.

It is not the loss of time to you alone or to the operator that concerns us most, but it is the annoyance to the party called. Your mistake cannot be explained to him, and the Telephone Company is held responsible for your error.

Consulting the current issue of the telephone directory, instead of trusting to memory; giving your number clearly, and quickly correcting the operator if she misunderstands your call, will greatly increase the efficiency of the service.

TARIFF BILL TO BE PASSED, SAYS SENATOR CALDER

Declares Profiteering by Importers Will Be Stopped by Measure.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Tariff legislation will be passed at the present session of Congress if for no other reason than to stop peace profiteering, Senator Calder, Republican, of New York, declared in a statement which he said was in reply to current reports that the pending tariff bill was to be sidetracked in the Senate. The country will be shown definitely, he said, that "profiteering of today by importing interests makes war profiteering fade into insignificance."

"The very interests which are today shouting so loudly against tariff legislation," Calder said, "are the ones which are making from 100 to 2000 per cent profit on merchandise purchased abroad and sold to the American consumers. Before the debate ends the country will have all the facts and it will then be evident how these reports originate that the tariff bill will not be passed.

ANXIOUS FOR DELAY.

"Many of these great interests, who are selling these foreign-made goods to American women and men, are very anxious that the tariff be delayed, or defeated or lowered because the tariff will spoil their American market, where they are today enjoying these enormous profits, not only without opposition, but without the consumers knowing how they are being robbed.

"Secondly, much has been said recently about a decline in our importations and about all danger of dumping being passed. These statements are based upon a lack of authentic information. Today at the port of New York, where 75 per cent of all goods imported into this country are appraised, the importations of foreign toys and cutlery are greater than ever before. These goods are coming from Germany, where the retail selling price is infinitely less than the American cost of production.

ACTION IS PROMISED.

"This competitive condition, where the foreign cost is far below the American manufacturing cost, prevails in many industrial lines throughout the country. Some of our great industries, in large and small manufacturing centers, are hanging by their eyelashes, struggling to survive the profiteering competition of Europe. Steps must be taken now to insure the early passage of this bill. In fact, the Senate finance committee has already taken such steps. There will be action and the bill will pass."

Campaign Launched to Obtain Camp for Camp Fire Girls Here

MARY MIDDLETON (left), president of Iyuzunta Camp-fire Girls, and PATTY EDWARDS, another of the maids active in the drive to obtain a camp for the local units.

Donations Pledged; Show Arranged to Raise Funds; Honors Awarded on Week-End Trip

A Camp Fire Girls' camp for the fifty local circles of the organization have become probable as a result of the enthusiasm of the 231 girls who spent last week-end camping at the Boy Scout camp in Dimond Canyon.

The Iyuzunta group has pledged $50 to the camp and will present a play, "The Girls of Glen Willow," Saturday, June 10, at 2:30 p. m. in the auditorium of the Oakland Y. W. C. A. to raise part of the money. Tickets to the play will be sold at the door for 25 cents and the public will be invited.

In addition to the amount the Camp Fire Girls have pledged, $50 was subscribed anonymously.

Honors awarded at the camp council fire are a proof of the success of the first week-end camping trip. The Redwood honor was awarded to 212 girls, and 14 groups of the 21 present received the 100 per cent group honor. K. P. beads were given to the 56 girls who helped the cook. This awarding of honors was in charge of Mrs. Harder, a guardian from Hayward.

Swimming was under the direction of Miss Kelly of the Golden Gate playground, who was also the life guard. Mrs. Emma Rhodes from de Fremery park managed the meals. The fire-side program, which included a talk on "Crawly Things," by Dr. H. C. Bryant of the university extension division, was arranged by Miss Margaret King.

Mrs. A. S. Kibbe, the president of the East Bay Guardians' Association, managed the camp.

BALDY OF NOME TO GAIN FAME IN FILM STORY

BERKELEY, June 5.—"Baldy of Nome," noted Alaskan racing dog, whose sons did valiant service in the world war, is to be made more famous by the depicting of his story in motion pictures.

"Baldy" died recently at the home of A. A. (Scotty) Allan, who for many years drove him over snowy Alaskan racing fields. Previous to his death he was made the hero in a book, "Baldy of Nome," which his former owner, Mrs. Esther Birdsall Darling, of Berkeley, had written.

Now Mrs. Darling has signed a contract with David Belasco to have her famous dog story transferred to the celluloid screen. To get as near a replica of "Baldy" as possible and to secure other dogs to film the picture, "Scotty" Allan will leave shortly for the Far North.

Original drivers and dogs made famous by Mrs. Darling in her book will be brought from Nome by Allan. Mrs. Darling is well known as a member of the California Writers Club and as the author of other poems and books.

Starlight

by Idah McGlone Gibson

Virginia Fairfax, daughter of the first families of Virginia, rebels against the puritanical rule of her grandfather, and lured by filmland, runs away to become a motion picture actress. Arriving in Los Angeles, she meets Gloria Summers, who is in the movies. They become warm friends. They meet Norbert Richardson, who has been interested in Gloria. He marries Gloria. News came of the serious illness of Kitty Dalton—the direct result of a wild party. To prevent a scandal, Gloria volunteered to take Kitty out of town and care for her till she recovers. Virginia meets Theodore Stratton, the great movie star. After a severe illness, during which Kitty won Virginia's sincere regards, Virginia recovered. Theodore Stratton has promised her a place in his cast.

Virginia found herself given a very important place in the Stratton picture.

Kitty again warned Virginia with being in love with Stratton and warned her.

Kitty confesses her love for John Storm, the minister. She rails at the attitude of the world which condemns her and condones Theodore Stratton for identical deeds. A double standard.

Maud Sansom quarrels furiously with Theodore Stratton. She charges him with being in love with Virginia. He denies it and asserts she must get over temperament and proceed with the film or quit.

Anger subsided and Maud Sansom and Theodore Stratton are reconciled.

VIRGINIA'S FIRST KISS.

"Kitty, I think we are both getting into hot water," I said, as I kissed Kitty's tear-stained cheek.

"And we will probably stay there until it scalds us," she added. "By the way, John said he would send his car in for us on Saturday night so we could get an early start Sunday. I think we had better leave about 7."

"Oh, ho, Miss Kitty! So it is John with you as well as Theo with me, is it?"

"It has been John with me since the first moment I saw him." Kitty's face—instead of blushing, grew a little paler. She looked me straight in the face as though she gloried in her love. "What are you going to wear at the studio tomorrow?" She changed the subject.

"I am not going to the studio tomorrow. The director told me that he would only need Mr. Stratton and Miss Sanson for a couple of days and that he would telephone when he wanted me. There will then be a day when Tommy Curtis and I have our scenes together."

"Oh, is Tommy Curtis the juvenile? He is very handsome, isn't he?"

"I don't know. I did not notice him. When you don't work, Kitty, do they take out the salary for the day?"

"No, my dear, a contract means you are on the payroll until you are out of the picture."

"I am glad of that. I want to pay you back your money as soon as possible."

"Don't be a goose. Take your time."

"I filled in the time before my studio call with letters to Aunt Virginia and Naomi, my childhood chum. I told her that I was really a moving picture actress! How the news must have thrilled her in the little town.

At last the summons came. When I heard the assistant director's voice over the phone I almost cried, I was so happy. I had been very much disappointed that I had not heard from Theodore Stratton for the few days that I had not been at the studio.

I had not yet learned that men can be periodical where love is concerned. They can detach themselves from any woman whenever they like and there is nothing so easy for a man as forgetting. He scarcely takes time to throw a shovel full of dirt on the grave of a dead love before he is off after another.

'I have thought of you every moment, Baby-child," whispered Theo as he held my hand an instant longer than necessary. "This place has been a wilderness without you."

As Kitty had told me that Tony had seen Theo and Maud Sanson at the Cocoanut Grove the night after their quarrel, I was not able to accept his protestations with the faith that I would have really liked. But, like all women, I excused Theo to myself by thinking that he had to do something to make up with Maud. And a least I was there, within sound of his voice, within touch of his hand, and I was delirlously happy.

"You are seated on the garden seat, Miss Winston. Turn a little nearer the camera. Look soulfully into the fountain there." That made me smile. "Here, here! That is not looking soulfully. I want to make the contrast of the smile when you hear Allen coming."

For the life of me I could not compose my face into anything like solemnity. I was too happy. But in a moment I got hold of myself and I knew I was an actress because the director said: "Fine, hold it."

"Now, Stratton, you brush aside that bough, making a little noise. Doris, you turn quickly. You see Allen, there, coming toward you. Now you can smile." I did not need his command.

Theo seated himself beside me and took my trembling hand in his, caressing my fingers, one by one, and saying under his breath, "Oh, Virgie, Virgie, I missed you so. It seemed eo me that I would never feel the touch of your hand again."

"Here, Tom, draw Doris' hair across Allen's cheek. Allen, you put up your hand and bring the strand down to your lips."

"Oh, Baby-child, I never thought that rehearsing pictures would be heaven!"

"Stop your talking, Stratton. Your emotion is too great. Doris, move your face toward his. Nearer than that. Now, Allen, push her back. Look into her eyes. Speak your sub-title: "Child, child! Is it possible you love me?"

Never had I heard such music. Never had I dreamed there could be such an emotional thrill as when Theo said: "Child, child! Is it possible you love me?" And I, forgetting all else, said: "Better than all the world."

It was perfectly natural for my head to sink upon his shoulder. I felt his fingers cup themselves under my chin and I raised my lips to his. For the instant before his mouth met mine it seemed to me that I was floating in space. My soul was drawn out of me and rested on my lips in passionate anticipation of his soul that, as his face lowered, seemed to meet mine.

Nothing that I had ever imagined or conceived was like this—my first kiss of love!

HARTMAN SCORES DISTINCT SUCCESS AS 'LIAR BIRD'

"Woodland" Comic Opera at Auditorium More Than Realizes Expectations.

The class in ornithology will please come to order.

Is Ferris Hartman, as a "liar bird," a thing of beauty?

In unison, please—

HE IS NOT!

Correct.

Is he a joy forever?

"That is something else again, teacher."

You may go to the head of the class.

"Woodland" chirped, whistled and cawed its way back to Oakland last night when Ferris Hartman and Paul Steindorf presented it as the second on their list of comic operas. An audience that crowded the auditorium gave more than an ovation to the comedian, the director, a tuneful play, more than a score of twinkling girls and a capable lot of principals.

BIRD OF POLITICIAN.

Hartman, as the Blue Jay, a bird of a tramp politician, clowns through two acts with his old-time vigor and his merry old smile. His are nimble wit and legs; both have a happy time with the famous Pixley and Luders conceit.

"Woodland" gives to a certain aggregation of birds, attributes of humans including the human persistency, in engaging in warfare, gossip, intrigue and bootlegging. King Eagle, who must have a lyre bird at all costs, has palmed off on him an egg that eventually hatches the Blue Jay—"liar bird," diplomat and patched politician. When someone pots off the king, Jay votes himself into office. The plot from here on concerns itself with nothing at all but comedy and Luders' music of measured tread and pleasant sweetness.

You have been singing the songs of "Woodland" for these many years, but not so well as Lillian Glaser, Hazel Van Haltren, Nona Campbell and the rest of them warble them. They are nightingale, turtle dove, peacock and such and they chirp of sunrise, love and other of nature's pastimes. The bachelor birds also have their words set to music and get away with it to the eminent satisfaction of the listeners-in.

SHOW IS SUCCESS.

There is nothing to be desired in talent, costuming and voice of principals and chorus. Ensembles bear the Steindorf mark of excellence. The production savors of Broadway, three thousand miles from here.

They should "pack 'em in" at the auditorium this week. "Woodland" is so very novel, eminently clean and wonderfully tuneful that the children in years and the kids at heart have no better place to go.

And then there is Ferris Hartman, in finer fettle than ever. His antics are too much for word-painting and his grimacing too joyous to express in printer's ink. Hartman is as Hartman does, and you'll have to let it go at that.—L. S. L.

U. S. OPENS WAR ON FISH PIRATES IN ALASKA SEAS

Three Sub-Chasers Ordered to North for Campaign Against Outlaws.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—A declaration of war against outlaws and fish pirates in Southeastern Alaskan waters has been announced by the Department of Justice.

"Vigorous warfare," a statement said, "will be waged the coming summer on those whose depredations since 1919 have worked serious injury to the Pacific fisheries industry. Three government departments, the treasury, commerce and justice, will work together."

"Attorney General Daugherty," the statement said, "has informed Secretary Hoover that there will be close cooperation and that he has instructed the United States attorney and marshal at Juneau to render every possible assistance to the officers of certain vessels of the treasury department, which have recently been designated for patrol duty by Secretary Mellon."

On the request of the attorney general, in which Secretary Hoover joined, three sub-chasers have been ordered to Alaskan waters for patrol duty.

Nevada Ex-Solon Held in Check Case

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The Washington police have notified Tennessee authorities that they are holding Clarence D. Van Duzer, former member of the house from Nevada, arrested here charged with passing worthless checks at Wartburg, Tenn. The Tennessee authorities in asking for the arrest of the former house member declared, according to Washington police, that he had obtained several hundred dollars in that manner.

Police officials here also assert that Van Duzer prior to his arrest was at Liberty on $5000 bond pending the outcome of extradition proceedings in which Baltimore authorities seek to obtain jurisdiction over him to press a similar charge.

KAHN'S

Just 43 years ago (in 1879 to be exact) a little store was opened to the public at Twelfth and Broadway. It had but three salespeople. Its founder, a man of keen insight, rare judgment, determined that in his store nothing but quality merchandise would be offered---and offered at low prices.

Then this little business, based on this principle, expanded and grew beyond its small doors---till a new location was necessary, more employees were needed and a bigger place---this time it moved on Broadway, near 10th.

Still it expanded---and then there was a removal to Broadway, between 12th and 13th---to still larger and roomier quarters---another once again to 12th and Washington.

Again it thrived and prospered to such an extent that it was necessary once more to move---and this time to its present location, on Broadway, between 15th and 16th, and extending through to San Pablo---where it occupies one acre.

So onward through the years has it come, until today, after 43 years, it stands in this community not only as a store but as an institution, and a loved one at that.

Still does that first principle laid down by its founder, Israel Kahn, actuate every movement, every policy---which is reflected in this, the

43rd Anniversary Sale

the great merchandising event of the year

Buyers were sent into the Eastern markets with instructions to buy only that merchandise which was up to the minute, which was new, which was of high quality and which could be sold at a price lower than it had been ever sold before.

They followed their instructions to the letter and they came back with such wonderful merchandise, of such an extraordinary nature, that we ourselves were amazed and proud of their efforts.

The first day of the sale was more than a tremendous success---was greater than we could possibly realize---and the rest of the week went way "over the top."

Now we are starting the second week--- and starting it with bigger, greater and better specials than before. Every day is a Red Letter Day---and every day you will find something new and different in the way of specials---some one thing you've wanted. Tomorrow is a good day, overflowing with all sorts of big specials. Come tomorrow and see what we have for you.

BERKELEY FAIR WINS SUCCESS

BERKELEY, June 5.—Berkeley's second annual Merchants' and Manufacturers' Fair passed into civic history today.

That the fair, which closed on Saturday night with a street carnival, was one of the most successful ever held about the bay was the statement of Manager Anthony Tremp.

Tremp declares that the attendance during the five days of the fair reached the 90,000 mark. Attendance records were broken Saturday night when the American Legion staged a street dance and carnival.

As a surprise feature of Saturday night's program, Miss Mabel Olsen, candidate of the Telegraph avenue district, was crowned queen of the carnival. At the last minute Miss Olsen wrested honors from Miss Dorothy Douglas, College avenue candidate, winning a handsome diamond ring and the privilege of ruling over the festival.

The final standing of the queen contestants was as follows:

Miss Mabel Olsen, Telegraph avenue, 3881; Miss Dorothy Douglas, College avenue, 3183; Miss Alice Bohnet, Dwight way, 3027; Miss Evelyn Erickson, San Pablo avenue, 1702; Miss Sylvia Price, University avenue, 1632; Miss Freda Hoffman, Ashby avenue, 872; Miss Jewel Kirkpatrick, Shattuck avenue, 838.

The injunction was denied and his bill was dismissed. The supreme court's dicesion today held the injunction should have been granted.

OIL CONTRACT O.K.'D BY HARDING DECLARES FALL

Interior Secretary Tells How Government Gains by Wyoming Lease.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., June 5.—The Albuquerque Morning Journal today prints, under a Washington, D. C., date line, a resume of the report which it says Secretary of the Interior Fall will hand to President Harding of how and why the Teapot Dome in the oil fields of Wyoming was leased to the Sinclair-Doheny interests by his department, acting in harmony with the navy department.

The despatch says the report declares that the President was fully apprised of the lease before it was made; that had it not been made, private interests drilling in the vicinity would have drained the dome of its oil, and that the navy will have stored for emergency purposes vast quantities of oil for defense of United States interests on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and on islands.

The secretary also is said to assert that by the construction of a new pipe line, the mid-continent price of oil will be obtained in the Wyoming field, instead of the present price, alleged to be now 60 cents a barrel too low. He is said to declare that a vastly greater income will be assured both for the royalties that accrue to the United States government and to the state of Wyoming by breaking an alleged monopoly.

Berkeley Officials Return From Camp

BERKELEY, June 5.—As the first guests to be entertained at Berkeley's summer camp in the Stanislaus national forest a party of Berkeley officials returned today from a week-end outing. In the party were Professor W. B. Herms, president of the board of education; Charles L. Biedenbach, principal Berkeley High school; Dr. Ernest L. Pape, city health officer, and Carl F. An official report on the health, safety and sanitation features of the camp will be made by the party. Playground Supervisor George Hjelte left earlier last week to prepare for the opening of the camp last Saturday. Many applications for outings at the camp are being received at the playground office and all desiring such an outing have been asked to make early arrangements.

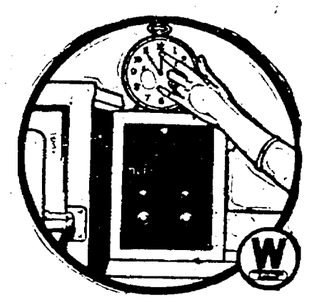
The Range That Works While You Play

If women realized what science and electricity have done for the modern kitchen pretty nearly all the June brides this year would have ranges like this one.

Visit our model kitchens on display at both our San Francisco and Oakland offices and see them in operation.

Just think—you put your dinner in the electric range any time you please—the clock and automatic control starts and stops the cooking at the exact time you specify. Your time is your own for work or play—you are no longer tied to the kitchen.

Incidentally, do you realize that, when you figure the special low rates we offer on current used for cooking, it costs only about $1.00 per person, per month, for a family of four to cook by electricity? This compares favorably, in economy, with either gas or coal, and as for convenience—well, we suggest that you visit our model kitchen and let the demonstrator show you.



The little clock tells this wonderful electric range when it is time to start your dinner. The whole meal can be automatically cooked while you are away from home.

PUBLIC UTILITY PROJECTS STIR UP OPPOSITION

Organized Anti-Drives Being Formed Following Action by Cities' League.

As a result of the meeting of the League of California Municipalities at Stockton Saturday, City Attorney Leon Gray today started preparations for Oakland's part of the campaign against the three "public utility measures" which are, or will be, on the ballot at the November elections. The cities represented at Stockton were against the projects.

Analyzing the projects, Gray comments as follows:

"First, there is the plan to tax publicly-owned utilities the same as privately-owned ones. The absurdity of this, to my mind, is that it transfers moneys from one pocket to the other; and if this is allowed, the county of Alameda could start taxing the city of Oakland, and vice versa.

"Second, there is the plan to give the railroad commission power to regulate publicly-owned utilities as well as private ones. This is planned so that an equality of rates can be enforced where private and public utilities are competing. The absurdity of this project, however, is that it gives one governmental agency the right to regulate another.

"Third, there is the plan to give the railroad commission sole jurisdiction in the granting of franchises. This might give street railroads relief from paving between its tracks, but the whole idea violates the principle of local self-government.

"Altogether, the three projects open the door, to our minds, for greater abuses than now exist. There is government enough in the land, but when one department of government can supervise other departments of government, and even encroach upon the self-government of cities or counties, it might be held that we are getting a new brand of super-government. Where this movement would lead to is problematical."

Campaign committees in each county to oppose the three projects are being enlisted, according to Gray, who plans to lead the Alameda county cohorts.

Cleanup Ordered For Shrine Meet

In advance of the big Shrine festival, City Engineer W. W. Harmon today notified all department heads to see that all streets are clear, all obstructions are removed, all dirt gathered up and all construction jobs be cleared up as nearly as possible.

The letter follows:

"On Wednesday, June 14, Oakland will entertain the Shriners' convention, at which time there will be a mammoth parade, and it is the desire of the city officials that our city look as attractive as possible.

"In a very large way the responsibility of putting the city in shape for that event rests with the street department, therefore please make every effort to put your respective branches of the work in the very best shape possible.

"I am especially interested in seeing that those holding street obstruction permits in the district covered by the parade, be asked to put their jobs in as neat a condition as possible.

"There is a map on file in my office showing the streets to be looked after for this event.

"This work is to take precedence over all other jobs, so kindly make your plans accordingly.

"W. W. HARMON.
"Superintendent of Streets."

Six Arrested on Dry Law Charges

Federal officials, acting in cooperation with the Oakland police, effected a number of arrests for alleged violations of the prohibition law Saturday night. Those arrested were:

Manuel Serpa and Manuel Perreira, owners of the Bon Ton cigar store, 435 Eleventh street, in whose possession a large quantity of liquor was found; William McKernan, Kirkham street, who is alleged to have sold liquor to police officers; L. Barovero, 567 Tenth street, charged with possession and sale of liquor; U. J. Alevizos, 245 Eighth street, charged with possession and sale of liquor, and Walter Pressler, 2955 Elmwood, Oakland, in whose yard a fifty-gallon still is reported to have been found, besides a large quantity of "new" whisky.

Bail in each case was fixed at $1000 by United States Commissioner Albert M. Hardie.

Snow Appreciates Founding of Museum

Appreciation of the establishment of the new museum was expressed to the city council today in a letter from Explorer H. A. Snow, following the recent formal taking over of Snow's African game collection by the city.

"No other city has such a collection," says Snow, who tells of the hardships of collecting the trophies and skins and invites pessimists to visit the present exhibit at 274 Nineteenth street and "judge for themselves whether or not the museum is a worthy project."

"The schools seem to have adopted the museum annex," says Snow. "Already I have talked to nearly 2000 students and many teachers. Recently sixtye principals paid a visit and were most enthusiastic. With this sort of spirit we should forge ahead."

C. of C. to Greet Philippine Envoys

Headed by Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine senate, the members of the Philippine commission will be guests of honor of the Chamber of Commerce at their monthly luncheon in the Hotel Oakland Wednesday noon. In addition to the twenty distinguished visitors from the islands a number of those attending the real estate convention will be guests.

Invitations have been sent out to the 2000 odd members of the Chamber of Commerce and to the several hundred who recently added their names to the roll.

Caesar Ferreira and Billie Stalker Proclaimed King and Queen of Bay Region's Dancers

To Caesar Ferreira, 2513 Boehmer street, this city, and Miss Billie Stalker, 1203 Geary street, San Francisco, go the honors as the premier fox trotters of the bay district.

The two dancers were acclaimed the king and queen of the fox trot kingdom, at the T. & D. theater on Saturday night as the winners of The TRIBUNE and T. & D. contest conducted there during the past week.

Today the two dancers are the proud possessors of silver loving cups awarded to the winners. They were selected from a long entry list. Every night during the week try-outs and preliminaries were held on the stage.

The survivors of the elimination contests held the final competition on Saturday night. The choice at the finals as during the week rested with the patrons, who indicated by their applause their choice for the honors.

The contest was conducted under the supervision of Addison Fowler and Florenz Tamara, professional fox trotters and fancy dancers, who were appearing at the theater.

Theaters

ORPHEUM

Patrons of the Oakland Orpheum theater where Henry Miller will tonight present Henri Bataille's "La Tendresse," are requested by Manager W. A. Rusco to be in their seats at 8:15 o'clock.

"La Tendresse," adapted from the French, was presented for the first time on any English speaking stage at the Columbia theater in San Francisco last Monday night by Miller and his company of stage celebrities. Thus, Oakland is to be the second city in the country which will see this superb comedy by that master dramatist Bataille, produced by one of the foremost actor-managers in the country.

Besides Miller himself there will be Blanche Bates, Ruth Chatterton and Bruce McRae in the four chief characters of the play, supported by an able company including Paul Harvey, former leading man with the Oakland Fulton Players.

AMERICAN

Remarkable bull fight scenes, the color and atmosphere of old Spain and Mae Murray's superb dancing and acting make "Fascination," her newest offering, now at the American theater, one of the really fine photodramas of the year.

Mae Murray has an entirely new portrayal in the role of Dolores De Lisa, born of a Spanish father and an American mother, who combines the warm, passionate blood of the south with a broad dominating streak of Yankee pep.

A special musical program is offered in conjunction with the picture by the John Wharry Lewis orchestra.

NEW BROADWAY

"Travelin' On," starring William Hart, will be seen at the New Broadway theater today for the last time. The program also offers "The Applicant" and the fifth round of "The Leather Pushers."

Hart has the most unusual role of his screen career in "Travelin On." It is that of a man known only by the initials of his name. The story is gripping in its intensity, has the typical thrills of a Hart production and its love interest is well sustained.

"The Sheik's Wife" follows tomorrow and Wednesday. "Jan of the Big Snows" will be Thursday and Friday's attractions.

FRANKLIN

The act that New York raved over is winning praise this week in Oakland. The Original Brown's Saxophone Six, now playing the New Franklin, has brought capacity attendance. With five of the boys dressed in Pagliacci costumes and the sixth one as a black face clown, the act was well costumed. Their playing of both popular and classical numbers won great applause.

Two feature photoplays grace the program. "Other Woman's Clothes," is one which the author of "Main Street" wrote. "Free Air" is the picturization of the Sataurday Evening Post story of the same name.

CENTURY

The most elaborate revue that the Jack Russell company has yet appeared in, opened at the Century theater yesterday afternoon and is called "The Stage Struck Girl," which only tells half of the story because the comedy opens with a real minstrel show, with all the old time "pep," snappy songs and no less snappy jokes, which made the "minstrel show" of a few years ago one of the most popular forms of amusement.

The song numbers are especially tuneful and snappy.

Wild West Show

The most daring cowboys of the '49 camp are coming direct to Richmond and will reproduce the '49 thrills in a two-day rodeo. It will be held on the San Pablo Creek highway; one mile northeast of Richmond, June 10th and 11th, from 2 to 5 p. m. There will be trick riding, tricks by "Luelle," the trained horse; bucking horses, wild bulls, racing and comedy.

Amateur riders will compete with professionals for rich prizes.

LOEW'S STATE

Two famous beauty contest winners, Virginia Lee and Clara Bow, have important roles in William Christy Cabanne's big drama, "Beyond the Rainbow," which opened a week's engagement at Loew's State theater yesterday.

There are sixteen famous stars in this big picture, which is conceded by critics to be the best thing that the famous director has ever made.

Joe Weston and Grace Eline were welcomed by all audiences yesterday in their up-to-date version of "The Upper and Under World Pair." The "Get There" Girls appear in a delightful revue of style, grace and rhythm.

NEW CHIMES

The conflicting desires that control every imaginative and pleasure-loving woman are vividly analyzed through Seena Owen, who has the leading feminine role in "Back Pay," a realistic picture which opened at the New Chimes theater yesterday.

The man who had loved her is near death from wounds received on the fighting line. She goes to him in the military hospital, marries him and takes him to her gorgeous apartment, for he is blinded and has three weeks to live.

He asks no questions and dies with a great belief in her—a belief which is so strong that it is transmitted to her. She flies from her "gilded cage," and turns to another life where everything she gets will be through her own honest efforts and bravery.

PANTAGES

Dancing of the classical type directed by Adolph Blome, former Hamburg ballet master, featured in an extraordinarily good bill at Pantages theater yesterday. Mack and Lane seemed second in popularity. "A Rube and a Ruby" has a freshness which appeals.

Popular airs and some of the older ones were in the repertoire of the Popularity Girls.

Everest's Monkeys conducted a little performance all by themselves.

Mole, Jesta and Mole are cyclists with a series of stunts.

IDORA

And now comes rabbit week at Idora park.

The big annual rabbit show of the Western Breeders and Fanciers association opens Thursday and continues through Sunday. The stars of rabbitdom will be on display.

Meanwhile Idora's funmakers are more popular than ever: There are the whip, the carrousel, captive airplanes, racing horses, dodgem, the big dipper, over the top, Noah's ark, the race through the clouds and dancing, swimming, skating are other pastimes at Idora.

NEPTUNE BEACH

Next Sunday Erma Gage's juveniles will present a revue of all nations, a patriotic and colorful pageant, at Neptune Beach. More than thirty kiddies will take part in the affair, which promises to be one of the most interesting free attractions ever staged at the Alameda resort.

Schultz's band will give a concert from the beach band shell, and there will be aquatic events in the big 100 yard outdoor swimming pool. The new $10,000 filter has been installed at Neptune and the water in the tank is "clear as crystal."

ROTARY CLUBS PLAN CHANGES IN GOVERNMENT

New Constitution Drafted Provides for National Associations.

LOS ANGELES, June 4.—Whether or not there will be national associations of Rotary clubs in the countries of Europe and in South America, Asia, Africa and Australia is the big question to be decided here this week at the thirteenth annual convention of the International Association of Rotary Clubs, which convenes June 5. With the extension of the Rotary idea to 22 countries and the growth of almost 100 clubs in the British Isles alone, this question has arisen.

A proposed constitution and set of by-laws will be presented for consideration on the first day of the convention by Samuel Botsford of Buffalo, N. Y. They provide for a change in the number of directors and give the national associations that are also provided for representation on the board. The national association will take care of certain of the administrative work of Rotary that is now looked after by the international board of directors.

Ten thousand Rotarians have gathered for the convention. The attendance of delegates from foreign countries is the largest ever registered at a Rotary convention. Delegates have come from every section of the world.

Dr. Crawford C. McCullough of Fort William, Canada, International President of Rotary, will preside at the meetings. William Stephens, president of the Los Angeles Rotary club, will welcome the visitors, and William McConnell of Dublin, Ireland, governor of the Rotary district which comprises the British Isles, will reply for International Rotary.

Clark Case to Go To Jury Tomorrow

The closing argument for the defense of Mrs. Virginia P. Clark, on trial for the alleged murder of her husband, was made today by Attorney C. A. A. McGee. That the prosecution has failed to prove conclusively either that Mrs. Clark shot her husband, or that she was sane at the time the shooting occurred, was declared to the jury by McGee. He insisted that the presumption of innocence which the law placed about the accused woman at the beginning of her trial remained unshaken and demanded a verdict of "not guilty."

McGee will be followed by Assistant District Attorney Theodore P. Wittschen, who will make the closing argument for the state. Wittschen's argument is expected to begin tomorrow morning. The case is expected to go to the jury before the close of court tomorrow afternoon.

"The Oakland Chamber of Commerce extends to you a most cordial invitation to be its guest of honor at a noon luncheon some time in the near future at a date convenient to you. One thousand of our leading citizens would be present to greet you and hear your message."

Speeding Up Ship Subsidy Bill Urged

WASHINGTON, June 5.—President Hardings suggestion to House members that speedy action be had on the administration's ship subsidy bill met the approval of Senator Jones, Washington, who declares the executive "fully justified in insisting" that Congress pass or reject the program at this session. As chairman of the Senate commerce committee, Jones will have charge of the members.

The Washington senator declared to postpone the legislation until next winter would be to throw away the chance for America to take her place on the sea.

Oakland High to Hold Senior Fete

The semi-annual Senior Day festival of Oakland high school will be held tomorrow noon at the school grounds with the usual contests between high and low seniors.

There will be two rival parades, with the victory going to the side with the most original "stunts." There will also be a boys' relay race, a girls' pie-eating contest, tug of war, girls' obstacle race, jousting contest and basketball game. The pie-eating contest is usually the most exciting contest on the program.

Jack Maginnis leads the low seniors and Edwin Duerr the high seniors. The other elements of the program are under control of Philip Berger, Carmen Anderson, George Blume, Louis Bullock, Florence Blume, George Oswell and Al Levit.

INDIAN MAIDS COME TO WORK ON VACATION

A half hundred real American girls—Washoes and Piutes—took possession of the Young Women's Christian Association this morning, their annual arrival the sign of hope to as many families where household assistance is the problem. The young women are students from the Stewart Institute in Carson, Nev. Each summer a company of fifty are brought to Oakland, where they remain through the vacation as helpers in Eastbay families. The girls are especially trained in home economics and household management. They range in age from 15 upward to perhaps 18. So enviable a reputation have the Stewart Institute students made in Oakland that their annual advent is hailed with eagerness and applications for their services each year exceeds the supply. Such was the situation this morning when they arrived in the Webster street building.

Smartly gowned, neatly coiffured, the group of Indian girls made merry in the court of the "Y" while they awaited the coming of those with whom they will make their home until September 1. The preliminaries to placing them were accomplished within a short time by the secretaries in charge of the students. The "Y" will arrange special programs and meetings during the summer for these visitors.

U. S. OPENS WAR ON BETHLEHEM STEEL MERGER

Federal Trade Commission Asserts Combine Menace to Public.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The federal trade commission today struck at the big Bethlehem-Lackawanna steel merger.

Charging that the merger, when consummated, will violate anti-trust laws and "contain a dangerous tendency unduly to hinder competition," the commission issued a formal complaint against the two companies.

As to the proposed Midvale-Inland-Republic merger, the commission stated this probable combination would be thoroughly investigated. This proposed merger, the commission said, has not yet reached the point where it can be charged that it violates anti-trust laws.

A report on the commission's action was sent to the Senate by Chairman Nelson B. Gaiskill, in response to the LaFollette resolution, recently passed, which asked complete information as to what action the federal government was taking against the combinations.

The formal complaint of the commission against the merger states that it "constitutes an attempt to monopolize and will monopolize interstate trade and commerce in certain sections and communities and particularly in the New England states, New York, New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania."

The merger, it was declared, will suppress and eliminate all competition hitherto existing between the two companies.

The commission stated that it started an investigation of possible combinations in the steel industry in December, 1921, when rumors were current of impending mergers.

Jury to Decide as To Jackass or Wine

Upon the ability of a jury to distinguish between a "jackass brandy" jag and a wine jag may depend the fate of Mrs. Helen Sarett, 1530 Twenty-third avenue, on trial before Superior Judge Samuels charged with selling liquor to a minor.

John Ingebretsen, a sailor 19 years old, when arrested February 4 for being drunk, said he and a companion, Thomas Thompson, had bought the liquor from Mrs. Sarett. According to Deputy District Attorney Snook, 25 gallons of brandy were found at Mrs. Sarett's home.

Mrs. Sarett declared that the two youths had become intoxicated on wine, and had accused her to shield another person.

NO CHAIN GANG, AVERS WARREN

A chain gang for men convicted of failure to provide for their families is not feasible is the substance of a report Deputy District Attorney Earl Warren will make tonight at a meeting of probation officials in the detention home at Eighteenth and Poplar streets.

The meeting is the result of a suggestion that men convicted of failure to provide should be made to work on chain gangs.

"Theoretically I'm in favor of it, but practically I don't think it would work out very well," Warren said today. "In the past year and a half only three men have been jailed for failure to provide. To assign a deputy sheriff at $166 a month to guard a chain gang of only three would be a waste of money."

Warren explained the courts usually find it more satisfactory to release delinquent husbands on bond, with the requirement to support their families.

Good Evening! Have You Heard Your Uncle Sam?

My Favorite Stories by Irvin S. Cobb

It Was "On Pa."

The gentleman from the city had rented a country-place in the White Mountains for the summer. Returning from a walk he noted, as he neared his front gates, signs that a mishap had occurred on the road. A load of hay had been overturned while in transit. It was piled in a great shock at the edge of the highway where its weight had caused it to slide from the wagon upon which it was being moved. The team were nibbling grass in the ditch. A 14-year-old boy, dripping with perspiration, and plainly very tired from his exertion, was forking the hay back upon the wagon with tremendous energy.

"What happened?" asked the gentleman—a somewhat unnecessary question in view of the evidence.

"The wheels went down in a rut," said the boy, "and this here jag of hay turned bottom-side up."

"Well, you look to be all tired out," said the sympathetic city man. "This seems to be a pretty big job for one of your years, too. Suppose you quit for a while and go on up to my house yonder with me and have a bite to eat and a drink of cold lemonade or buttermilk."

"I wouldn't dast ter do that," said the boy. "Paw wouldn't like it ef I didn't get this here hay put back right away."

"Oh, that'll be all right. Nothing is going to happen to your hay while you're gone or to your team, either. Come along with me; I'm sure your father won't mind."

Half reluctantly, as though swayed by conflicting emotions, the youngster laid down his fork and accompanied the hospitable stranger. Twice, during the course of the meal which was provided for him, he paused from eating to voice his fears that "Paw" would be seriously annoyed with him for his failure to complete the job of replacing the hay. Each time his host reassured him, meanwhile pressing fresh helpings of this and that upon his young guest.

Finally, at the end of half an hour or so, the boy pushed his chair back from the table and rose up.

"I guess I'll be goin' now," he said. "Paw'll want I should get that hay forked up. I expect he'll be mighty pestered with me."

"Why need your father know anything at all about it?" said the gentleman.

"Why, Paw knows about it already," explained the youngster.

"Where is your father?" asked the city man. "I didn't see him as I came along."

"He's under the hay," stated the youngster simply.

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE ROBBER BIRD

ONCE upon a time, as Uncle Wiggily hopping through the woods, twinkling his pink nose and wondering what sort of adventures he would have that day, the bunny rabbit gentleman suddenly heard the loud voices of birds. The birds were not singing sweet songs. Instead the birds appeared to be shouting like boys at a ball game.

"Robber! Robber! You're a robber bird!" screeched one feathered creature.

"Hay! Hay!" called another, like a traffic policeman trying to stop a runaway automobile. "Hay! Hay!"

"Fish hook! Fish hook!" another bird seemed to cry.

"Good gracious me, sakes alive and some huckleberry hash!" cried Uncle Wiggily, stopping short and sitting down on a green, mossy log. "What's all this? It sounds like trouble. I wonder if I can be of any help?"

The Bunny rabbit gentleman always wanted to do what he could to help in the world, so, when he heard the harsh voices of the birds, so unlike their sweet notes, and when he saw flashes of wings and tails amid the trees, Uncle Wiggily twinkled his pink nose again and called:

"Whatever is the matter here?"

"Lots is the matter," sang a Robin Red Breast. "This Blue Jay has taken eggs from my nest and has eaten them. He's a robber! A robber bird!"

"Fish hook! Fish hook! I'm not a robber! Anyhow, I only took one of your eggs, and I wouldn't have taken that only I was hungry and I couldn't find any acorns!" screeched another bird. This bird was blue instead of red, like the Robin. His tail was blue, with dark stripes on it, and his back and wings were covered with blue feathers. There was a ring of black feathers under his throat and on his head was a crest of feathers, like those a Kingfisher Bird wears.

"Who are you?" asked Uncle Wiggily of the bird who had been called "Robber" by the Robin.

"I'm the Blue Jay!" was the answer and however pretty this bird appeared, with his bright feathers, no one could say his voice was pleasing. It was loud and harsh. "I'm the Blue Jay!" he rasped out.

"And a robber! A robber! You're a robber bird! Don't forget that!" chirruped the Robin.

"Are you?" asked Uncle Wiggily, sorrowfully.

"You're a robber bird!"

The Blue Jay flitted from branch to branch; he flapped his tail and tossed his crested head.

"Well, I—er—now—I guess I did take one of the Robin's eggs from the nest," he confessed. "But I just couldn't help it, Uncle Wiggily. We Jays are all robbers. We're born that way, I guess. It is our nature to take the eggs of other birds."

"Yes," said the Robin. "And when we say anything about it you make a great fuss and shout 'Fish hook! Fish hook!' Or you cry 'Hay! Hay! Hay!' as if you saw some other bird doing the stealing and wanted to stop him."

"Do you do those things?" asked the bunny gentleman sorrowfully.

"I—I'm afraid I do," answered the Blue Jay. "I just can't seem to help it. But I do some good in the world. I catch some of the bad bugs and worms that would spoil your garden. I do that, Uncle Wiggily."

"Yes, but most of all you're a robber bird" caroled the Robin. "You took my eggs!"

"Well, I'm going to take something, too!" suddenly cried another voice, and through the bushes burst the Fuzzy Fox. "I'm going to take ears, that's what I'm going to take!" barked the Fox, almost like a dog, for a fox is a sort of wild dog, you know. "I'm going to take Uncle Wiggily's ears!" said the Fox.

"Dear me!" exclaimed the bunny gentleman. "Please don't!"

"Yes, I shall!" snarled the Fox. "I'll nibble your ears right now!"

"No, you will not!" suddenly shrieked the Blue Jay. "If you nibble Uncle Wiggily's ears I'll nibble your eggs, Mr. Fox. I'll fly off to your nest and nibble your eggs. I'm a robber bird; everybody knows it now, so there's no use pretending I'm not! I'll fly to your nest and nibble your eggs!"

Off through the woods, a flash of blue, flew the Jay. Before Uncle Wiggily could call out and say that the Fox had no nest and no eggs, the Fuzzy Creature, with his dusting brush of a tail, turned and ran away barking:

"Don't you go near my den! Keep away from my den! I haven't any eggs, but with your sharp bill you may pick my little foxes! Don't you go near my den, or nest, as you call it!" And the Fox was so afraid of what the Blue Jay might do that away he leaped, forgetting all about Uncle Wiggily's ears, for which the bunny was very glad.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the Blue Jay, as he came sailing back a little later. "I was only teasing him to make him let you alone, Uncle Wiggily. I knew a Fox didn't lay eggs. But now you won't think I'm all bad, will you, after I've helped you like this?"

"There is some good in you," said the bunny. "But please don't take any more of the Robin's eggs." The Jay promised he would not, and away he flew to find some bad bugs to bite. So everything happened for the best, and if the gas stove doesn't go out in the yard to see the back steps jump over the clothes post, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the happiness bird.

by Hazel Devo Batchelor

She is tortured with fear lest he discover the truth, for although she has done nothing wrong, he is very narrow in his ideas about women. When she discovers that Julie, Dane's little butterfly sister, is in love with Cranford Blake, the man from the past under another name, Hawthorne is horrified. She longs to tell Dane the truth, but Blake threatens to show her girlish love letters if she interferes. Hawthornt and Dane have their first quarrel over a matter of independence of attitude, and by her evasive answers, she arouses suspicion in Dan'e mind. In desperation, Hawthorne suggests taking Julie away for a time.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Rebellion

BUT on being approached with the suggestion that she go away with me for a time, Julie looked at me with a slow anger dawning in her eyes.

"Hawthorne, what are you up to?" she asked finally. "Have you and Dane been discussing me?"

I flushed under her indignant glance and tried to parry the thrust of her remark.

"It isn't strange that we should talk of you occasionally," I said lightly.

"You've been talking about Carroll, haven't you?" she said quickly. "I knew that mother said something to Dane about it the other night, and I suppose he went right to you with it."

"Yes, inasmuch as I was supposed to have introduced you to this man he did speak to me." The words were out before I thought what I was saying, but I hurried on. "He naturally holds me responsible. He has asked me all kinds of questions."

"You didn't tell him the truth."

"What truth?"

"That you had nothing to do with introducing us?"

I shook my head. "Certainly not."

Julie sat back in her chair and drew a long breath of relief.

"And so Dane wants you to take me away," she said after a long silence.

"Why don't you humor him, Julie?" I began eagerly. "You hardly know this man. How can you be sure that you like him as well as you think you do? We'll have a lovely time together and you can think things over. It's really better not to do anything hurriedly."

We were seated in the Merrill living room, a room I detested because of its heavy furnishings. It depressed me, and reminded me always of Dane's mother with her icy reserve and her conservatism carried to the nth degree. Even at this moment I felt that it was no place for a live, vivid young thing like Julie; she was like a flaming jewel among the somber browns and greens of the room. I felt her restlessness, her eternal conflict with the older generation, but in a way I was powerless to help her. She had been looking at me as I spoke, from under her lashes, and suddenly she stirred and sat up straight.

"Hawthorne, I think you have gone over to the ranks of the enemy. I'm sorry I told you about Carroll, or that I introduced him to you. Do you think I could go away feeling that you were my chaperone, that you would watch me, that I shouldn't be free? It's that that has driven me crazy here at home. It isn't strange that I should turn naturally to Carroll. He doesn't want to repress me. He's eager for me to be myself. I'm sick of this kind of life, and I won't have you and Dane discuss me as if I were a child. I'm nearly eighteen. I'm a woman and I know what it is to be in love. Do you think I'm going to let you spoil things for me? No, indeed. I'll take matters into my own hands. I'll tell Carroll. I'll ask him to take me away from it all."

Her voice rose to a sob, and she sprang to her feet.

"Julie," I protested. "Julie, darling, listen to reason. Don't be foolish."

I tried to put my arm around her, but she shook me off.

"Don't touch me, and don't try to influence me because it won't do any good. I'm going. I'm going now, and I'll never come back." She fairly flung the words at me, and before I could stop her she had fled into her own room. I heard the key turn in the lock and I stood in the hall dumbfounded. The blood was hammering in my head and my hands were icy cold, but I knew that somehow I would have to reach Julie; that I would have to force her to listen to reason.

PSYCHO-ANALYSIS

by ANDRE TRIDON

PRETENDING SICKNESS

ANDRE TRIDON

PLAYING sick is a dangerous game. If we only fooled others in order to secure their sympathy it would not be so bad, unethical as it might be. The trouble is, however, that other people's sympathy, even gained in that neurotic way, feels so pleasant that we are loath to lose it by regaining officially our health. We end by fooling ourselves and then things are not so very pleasant. Many children have imposed upon them lifetime suffering by pretending sickness in order to avoid punishment for some misdeed. A year ago a young girl went skating on sofe ice against her mother's wishes. She fell into the icy water but was rescued and brought home. To avoid a well-deserved scolding, she put on a most piteous mein and told her mother that she had injured her back in falling.

The mother felt so worried over the fake accident that she refrained from berating her daughter for her disobedience, the results of which might have been fatal. A physician, hastily summoned, took the child's word for the pain she was supposed to be suffering, and advised rest in bed. The family, and the neighbors, expressed deep concern and lavished attentions upon the "sick" girl. They made it all so pleasant that, what with the natural lameness she experienced after her dip in a frozen lake, the girl began to believe her own lie and imagined herself very weak and sick. She tried to raise herself in bed and could not. Fear did the rest. She became a bed-ridden invalid and would have remained one all her life but for an experiment tried by a clever physician well versed in abnormal psychology. She was placed in a hospital room with another patient who was supposed to be in a very critical condition. One day the "dying" patient was allowed to cry vainly for water. None of the nurses responded and after a while, our girl with the injured spine, yielding to her better instincts and forgetting the fake paralysis of her limbs in the presence of real suffering, got out of her bed and tended her fellow sufferer. After a few days of gradual exercise during which she regained the ability to walk she had almost lost during her long siege in bed, she became normal and in her eagerness to life shook off the pretense which might have blighted her whole existence.

Winifred Black Says

GETTING BACK HOME.

Mrs. Stratton has been gone for a year, and but just returned. She has lived so long in Bended Bow that we could hardly think of the little town without her—and she had not been away six weeks before the people in the place found that they missed her sadly.

Now Mrs. Stratton has come back and she told us all about her visits to the far places.

"I have been away and I have traveled and visited east and west, north and south. I have sailed the waters and I have raced in automobiles and taken a flight in an airplane, and ridden a mule in Yosemite Park. The Yellowstone is no more a mystery to me, and the snowy mountains of Canada and the great Northwest are pictured in my memory forever.

HOME FOR HAPPINESS.

"I have visited old friends and made new ones. Our country in all its grandeur and magnificent variety lies before my mind like a vast picture. Sometimes when I sleep Niagara thunders again in my ears. The prairies and the plains and the desert lie before me, and I seem to see once more the long trains crawling along over the level land as I saw them when I at times left the railway and only looked upon it and its tracks and trains. You really have to get outside of a thing to see it.

"But I am like the children in the Bluebird play. I have come home to find happiness. Yes, here in the little town where I have lived so long, where my children and my friends are—here is my happiness. Now I shall never want to go away again. But, mind you, I had to go away before I could realize that here is my place.

GOOD TO BE SURE.

"How I have looked for and lived upon my letters from Bended Bow, no one can ever know. I came to be so careful to give my address in the letters I wrote, because I felt a hunger for letters that I never knew existed before. All along the way I found good friends, old and new, but I had to have something from home even to enable me to fix my mind upon the delights of travel.

"I am happy and I am going to stay right here as long as I live. I am glad I went, though, for it has made me know that home is the best place, my neighbors the only neighbors I want, my home friends the delight of my life. The Bluebird of happiness is right here in my home."

All the world is not like Mrs. Stratton, but there is a good part of it which can appreciate her feelings. In travel we find ourselves sometimes. The restlessness of home-staying folks comes often from want of knowledge of the outside world. The migrating birds have probably their views about travel. No doubt they have their favorite places of residence, too, for there are many tales of their return to certain haunts year after year.

Who does not love the traits of humanity in all their infinite variety? There are charms in the lovers of change and constant adventure, and in firm advocates of Bended Bow like Mrs. Stratton. It is good to be sure that there is happiness in every place where the right sort of people live and are contented.

The MASKED MAIL MAN

Post-Scripts

Baby

Baby—
When first you came—
And I looked wondering down—
Into your funny little face—
And smiled—
As your baby eyes batted—
To shut out the light—
Of your new world—
Something—very tender—
That I never knew was there before—
Slipped out of my breast—
And found a resting place—
With you.
And months went by—
And the grinding hours—
Of my days of toil—
Seemed ages—
Ere I could reach your side again—
But the sweet picture of your face—
Was ever with me—
And your soft coo ever in my ears.
And no toil was so mean—
That I did not sing—
And mock the hardships—
That tore at my vitals mercilessly.
And so came the day—
That your baby treble—
Framed one word—
Daddie.
And happy tears ran—
Down my world-hardened face—
Because of you—baby—
And the haunting fear—
That somehow I might fail—
In the holy duty—
That had been given me.
And often in your sleep—
In the dead hours of night—
I would slip—
On cushioned toes—
To your bedside—
With the awful fear—
That you might be taken away.
And years sped by—
And years piled on years—
And you grew to be a woman—
And I jealously watched—
Lest the world might call—
And you'd smile and answer—
And it did—and you answered—
And that which had left—
My breast that day—
Went with you—
And the space that it held—
Is filled only with sighs—
And memories—
Sighs and memories—of you—
My baby.

The Invention of Writing

Paper, Pen and Ink

CHAPTER 67.

WHEN pyramids and sphinxes were built by the Egyptians, PICTURE-WRITING was often cut into the stone.

In the beginning this writing was made up of pictures of different things. These picture-words were put together in an effort to tell some story.

To cut picture-words in stone was a hard task, and the Egyptians did it only when a thing was supposed to be very important.

A more handy way to write was found when strings of pictures were made in moist clay. When the clay hardened, the words stood out clearly enough.

Sometimes picture-words were DRAWN on hard clay or bone.

WITH PEN AND INK.

The pen was simply a reed cut at one end into a sharp point. The sharp end was the first pen-point.

The ink was made by mixing water with soot taken from pots blackened while hanging over fires. Gummy juices from certain vegetables were added to thicken the ink and make it stick.

Later on, a still better substance to write upon was discovered. It was PAPYRUS, a rush-like plant which grows near the shores of the Nile. This plant sometimes reaches the height of ten feet.

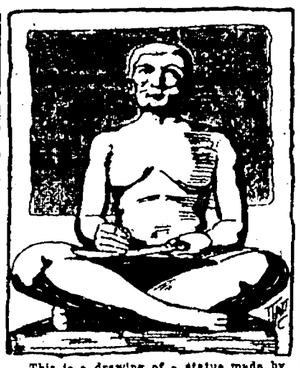
We get our word "paper" from papyrus, and indeed that plant was the first paper. Its stem was split into long, thin strips, and words were written upon the strips with the reed pens and the sooty ink.

There were two troubles with papyrus strips as writing paper.

They were too thin and too narrow.

In time, the Egyptians learned to make them thick enough by pasting one strip over another. To make the writing paper wide enough, papyrus strips were pasted edge to edge.

This provided a paper that was tough as well as smooth. Its color was pale yellow.



This is a drawing of a statue made by a sculptor in Egypt of long ago. The man seems to be a secretary who is being told what to write—perhaps by the king. A reed pen is held in the hand above a piece of papyrus.

USED TO IT.

Apple—My, it's chilly!

Egg—If you'de been in cold storage as long as I have you wouldn't mind a little thing like that!

CRY of Geraldine's SHOULDER

Trademark Registered.

Didjaever wet your finger and touch a hot iron? The result is Oswald. He's sizzling, having read the letter from Old Bach.

Old Bach made cute little remarks like these:

"Are we men to assume that this 'New Freedom' means woman's license to dare us and flaunt the dare in our faces?"

"There may be a few poor specimens of the male sex who will spend their time and their money on the girl who smokes, swears and shows her legs without a 'show-down' at a very early date, but not many."

Oh, there were a lot of them, a couple of columns, and I made my best little jump and, I think, landed pretty hard, but not hard enough for Oswald. Oswald, quite hot under the collar, wrote a letter that was smoking when I got it. I put out the flames and am printing PART of his letter. I have no desire to be "pinched," Oswald. I have no one to bail me out.

"Dear Jerry:

"If you never print another thing I write, I wish you would this time. I have come across so many men with the mental attitude of Old Bach that I think they need a jolt, and I hope this helps.

In Sunday's column I read an article on the double standard by "Old Bach," and upon finishing it I wondered at the wallowing of his mind. The key lay in his favorite literature—Snappy Stories and 'Three Weeks,' and 'I want to say right now that anyone who feeds up on that sort of literary filth is badly in need of mental housecleaning.

(A whole paragraph censored, expurgated and ruined.)

"People say that travel broadens the mind. It does if the traveler has one. I suppose Old Bach can only see the dirty side of everything but himself. He must be one of those 'He' men I hear so much about They tell you all about their wives. These men are so rotten that they think everyone is. I have read the literature(?) he speaks of, and I quit it in disgust. I don't consider myself a wi'se guy.' He does. But I am glad that I had the wisdom to throw the rubbish out of my mind that he still clings to. No one has ever had more opportunities to become rotten than I have, and I have been in a few ports myself.

"You are an over-sexed, neurotic old boy, and you are so conceited and ignorant that I can't think of anything to call you without insulting it. For every immoral woman in the world there is a whole flock of immoral men, and if the women had as much to say in running the world as your kind do, they would make at least as good a job of it—or better.

"I presume you hold Arbuckle and the Howard street outfits as martyrs just because they can't give all of you the same medicine. You and your kind are so (expurgated) weak that you belong in a hospital, instead of running loose. We can regenerate a fallen woman, but it's almost impossible with your type. You are too wise. You admit your wisdom. There is one thing you don't know, old boy, and that is that the Amazons are coming back and are going to knock your trible into a cocked hat. Next time you try criticising try it on yourself, or at least have something behind you that doesn't belong in the graveyard.

OSWALD, A YOUNG BACH.

It's a good thing that Consistency is no God of mine. If it were, I'd just naturally be bouncing around the ceiling like a kid's balloon, after reading the following letter. He assures me that I'm clever—IN THAT I MAKE THE OTHER FELLOW DO MY WORK. I throw out bait, and the gang bites, sending in opinions that I publish, thus saving myself labor.

Then he indulges my little whim of saving myself work, by sending in a long screed giving his opinion on married women who work.

"Dear Jerry:

"Aint we got fun, airing our views in your columns. You don't even have to pay postage. Poor simps, all you have to do is put out bait and the gang helps you bring home the Bacon. But maybe you have plenty of bacon and only wish to show us how intellectual you are. But anyway I think the majority of us love an argument. I could get up in the middle of the night for a good argument any time.

"I want to air my views on married women working, with your kind permission. We cannot expect peaches to grow on an apple tree. We educate our girls for office work. They know nothing of housework, so married or single, why not let them work at something where they get the best results? You cannot pick up a paper but that you do not see some sweet 'Bud' half naked doing the high kicking stunt. They call this Art. Well, let her stick with this Artistic Stuff. Why expect her to wash dishes and scrub floors? It can't be done.

"As for the average girl of today wanting a home and children—forget it. An expensive apartment and fine touring car sounds better. Maybe she will take the man's place, but why worry, boys, she is going to split fifty-fifty with you and you cannot possibly keep Madge going when it comes to living expenses, and we cannot blame the boss for economizing if Johnny has a hard time now competing with Madge. What chance has he later, when hundreds of Madges will flood the business he is engaged in? Looks to me as though the advice given in the Bible, 'Be fruitful and multiply,' has been heeded by the masses. What counts, anyway? The woman who raises the most children, the world will tell you. I don't know. It is too great a problem for me.

"Look at our unemployed and the thousands that are starving in Europe. Maybe we will not miss the children that Madge and Johnny do not raise. Not long ago I talked with an old woman who told me she sent four sons to the world war. Her hands were knotted from hard work. She proudly told me that she was only sorry she did not have four more boys to send to war. What for? To kill somebody. We Americans do not believe in killing people. That's what we say, anyway, isn't it? Poor old thing, she hadn't a cent in the world, old and dependent. Tell me, oh, ye wise ones, 'what counts.' 'Thou shalt not kill!' He said. No, he didn't say 'except in war.'

"Unpatriotic, a slacker, you will say. You would not think so if you knew me. I am a regular little Mollie Pitcher when my country needs me.

"Now, Jerry, don't get peeved because I state that the Gang helps you 'bring home the bacon.' They all love you and are only too glad to help. We all know that the newspaper game is no picnic. I would be glad to see you make a million, and you ARE intelligent, but I would not change places with you on a bet. I believe I am happier than you, even if I am not so brainy. Brains would make my head ache. Glad I haven't got 'em.

"AN OBSERVER."

"P. S.—Why doesn't Oswald write a book or hire a hall?"

I feel quite sure that the gentle art of sarcasm is being turned in my direction, but do you realize that men and machines have taken woman's work away from her? She used to weave the cloth that was used in the clothing of her family. She used to make the butter and "put up" the fruits and vegetables for her household. Machines and man-made institutions and industries have deprived her of her labors and she is turning to business as a new fort.

What is the man going to do who has three, four or five unmarried daughters to support? How is he going to dress 'em the way they WANT to be dressed? Come on. You say woman is taking man's place and I say that men and machines have taken women's place. How could you solve the question of supporting four grown daughters? Maybe YOU could, but how many men could? What is there to do in a modern house to keep four women busy?

Come on, help Jerry "bring home some more bacon," by answering those questions.

If mankind is BORN with a consciousness of RIGHT, why does he land in jail in one country and be elevated to prominence in another, for DOING THE SAME THING?

In answer to the question—WHY DO WE FEAR DEATH, D. A. B. G. writes that the man with a clear conscience does NOT fear death. With one God over all, but living in a world of man-made laws, a man in Turkey would have a clear conscience for doing exactly the same thing that sent a man to jail in this country—providing he was caught. Therefore is it a matter of conscience? Isn't conscience shaped by the lives of those around you, by the laws of the country in which you abide, by the love and understanding that is instilled into your heart in your childhood?

Is not the fear of death and the law of self-preservation the same? The law of self-preservation builds shells for snails—to preserve them; the same law protects sea urchins, and periwinkles with a covering so that they may not be eaten by other sea life. Is not the fear of death, of extermination, that protects even this low form of life? There is no "conscience" there. A horse will jump off a roadway—maybe to its death in a ravine—to escape the sting of a rattler.

Isn't the FEAR OF DEATH deeper even than conscience?

This is what D. A. B. G. says:

"Dear Geraldine:

"In answer to your question—'Why do you fear death?' I submit the following, my truest convictions. First I venture to say:

"The man of clear conscience does not fear death.

"The Creator endowed mortal man with a voice from within, commonly called 'The voice of conscience. Also, with a FREE WILL. With his advent into the world, the NORMAL child brings with him those two natural instincts, and that voice from within shouts a command, then a halt, knocks the door of man's soul and points out to him what is right and what is wrong, departs, leaving it to man's free will the working out of his destiny. The man who heeds the voice of Conscience, who follows it as a guiding star in life's firmament, though he may falter at times since it is human to err, (happily) to forgive, divine—he will NOT fear death.

"The fear of death comes from a consciouness of having transgressed with human or divine laws—or both. That same voice tells man most vividly and impressingly that goodness, here, everywhere, beyond the grave, is deserving of reward, and that wickedness brings punishment. Again, that if mere man dares to judge his fellow-man and hold him responsible for the voice of his conscience, in like manner shall he be called to an account for his transgressions before the court of Divine Justice. It is conscience that whispers to man—Beware! What are your reservations for Life Eternal—whether in the happy hunting ground, or where there are many mansions of gold?

"The man of sordid conscience does not enjoy the state of a true peace of mind. He fears death, life beyond the grave, and also his present life.

"In reference to influence of Christianity upon our present state of mind toward death, I say this: Christianity is a beacon on the ocean of life, leading the somewhat frail craft of human conscience away from dangers to be encountered amidst the roaring waves of human passions. It is my belief that man shall be judged according to his belief, the moral code established by his predecessors, be that what it may.

"In conclusion, I assert my belief once more, that THE MAN OF A CLEAR CONSCIENCE DOES NOT FEAR DEATH.

"D. A. B. G."

If every mother in Oakland town would read this letter, I'd be happy. I couldn't "preach" against whipping children one-half as effectively as this little girl has:

"Dearest Geraldine:

"Keep up the good work. I certainly think your column is just the thing, and every other sensible persons does, too. Daddy says that if there were more people in the world like you, the world would be a better one.

"I read 'A Mother of Four's' letter, and I think it was disgusting, and just as you said, Jerry, I would be ashamed to be the author of it. What will her daughter think of her when she grows up? Not much, I'm a thinking, if she has any backbone. Jerry, am fourteen, and have four older brothers and none of us have ever been spanked. When we do anything we shouldn't ought to, Mama or Daddy doesn't spank us—they talk to us, and they don't scold either, and, believe me, Jerry, we all certainly love them.

"Daddy is a doctor, and he says that spanking and whipping children ruins their health and nerves. It makes them become untruthful and tell lies. It also makes them nervous wrecks.

"Well, Jerry, this is all I will say, but I certainly like you.

"A DOCTOR'S LITTLE GIRL."

Geraldine

Listen, World!

THIS is my love letter to YOU. If you think of Love as I do, we will call it a love letter. By "love" I do not mean gooing at each other. Love to me, means cooperative, human contact, with all the joy and jumble that implies. It means a good deal of crisp conflict and healthy irritation. But it also means going on together, in the same general direction, with fairness to each other and loyalty to our mutual plan.

I am writing this to you because so many of you write to me, giving no name, so that it is impossible for me to answer otherwise. Your letters come from all sorts of homes and places. From hobo camps, and jail cells, and mansions and cottages. Some are friendly, some are hostile. But I treasure them all. And I feel that such human response lays a great obligation upon me and transforms my work from a mere personal job to a vital human service, in which it is up to me to give of my best.

This letter is my promise to you that I will do my best. It is my way of giving myself to you. If I knew where each one of you lived I would write to you instead. I would like to write to you. I would like to come to you, simply and without any reserve, and tell you that I am friendly, and that I want to help you in any way I can.

I wish you would write back to me and tell me about things. I am not very wise or very good, I do not always "do the best I can." But I think that you would find I am an understanding sort of person. I know what it is to be tired, and cross, and piggy, and proud, and to make a fool of myself. I know what it is to be glad in wildernesses and lonely in cities. I know these things so vividly that, although I have never seen your face, I can feel how they press on you too. And so I'd like to take your hand—if you'll let me.

I want to give you all I have, and I want to take all I can from you. If you like me, I wish you'd say so, and I'll send my liking back. But if you don't like me, say that too, and I'll like you just the same. I'll like you, not because I'm humble, which I'm not, but because I'm human, and I want to feel you touching me whether you're glad or mad.

This is my letter to YOU. My hand on yours, our feet set on the same trail, and the sharing of the same old human pack. I am so glad we've lived in the same day, Pal. Let's be Friends!

A CHARADE.

What is that sound the silence breaks?
'Tis martial music, loud and clear;
An army comes, the firm ground shakes
With their measured tread as my whole appears;
Their waving plumes, their helmets bright,
Proclaim my second's in my first;
My whole is, too, my first in fight,
As headlong on the foe they burst.
What is the word?

MEXICO'S OBLIGATIONS.

Secretary De la Huerta of the Mexican government is enroute to New York to attend a conference with American bankers and the international committee representing foreign holders of Mexican bonds, at which will be discussed proposals for Mexico resuming payment on her outside debts. President Obregon has been quite voluble in proclaiming as an important article of his foreign policy the assumpton of Mexco's financial obligations to citizens in foreign countries.

Recently he told a gathering of newspaper correspondents in Mexico City that he believed agreement upon a plan is possible. He said his government was treating these financial matters with every intention of settling them, and was confident the committee of bankers was actuated by the same motives.

So far as the principle for dealing with Mexico's outside obligations is concerned, it is admirable and wholly acceptable. President Obregon has declared from the very first his willingness to undertake the discharge of Mexico's foreign debt. But there is a long step between acknowledgment of a principle and the offering of real money to the foreign bondholders. So far no actual cash has been tendered, and so far as is generally known Mexico has made no suggestion of a readjustment proceeding which involved the early payment of real money. It is stated at Mexico City that the government has available a few millions of dollars it derived from taxes on foreign oil enterprises, but no part of this has been produced at the preliminary conversations over the debts of Mexico.

As a matter of fact, the Mexican government is desirous of concluding another outside loan, preferably from the United States, and of reaching an agreement to refund the foreign loans dating prior to the Obregon regime. There is no real reason why refinancing should not be sought, nor why the international bankers' committee should not seriously entertain a proposition from Mexico with these ends in view.

But while he is talking new loans and professing willingness to settle, President Obregon takes an entirely different attitude on another question of equal importance. He refuses to give the necessary guarantees of protection of established legitimate interests of foreign citizens in Mexico. He will not pledge exemption for investments against the confiscatory and retroactive laws enacted in the Carranza administration.

The stand of the Obregon administration on this issue has caused the American government to withhold recognition of the present Mexican government. Other great nations stand with the United States in this regard. President Obregon should not be disappointed, therefore, if he finds that the program for the settlement of the foreign debts is embarrassed by his refusal to give the common guarantees to foreign interests which have been sanctioned by centuries of international intercourse among civilized peoples.

AMONG THE LEADERS.

California has drawn $5,446,000 out of the federal treasury for building good roads. This is the sixth largest amount actually received by any State under the federal aid law for the building of highways. The five States which have actually spent more federal money for good roads within their borders are Illinois, $10,804,000; Pennsylvania, $10,675,000; Texas, $9,015,000; Ohio, $6,992,000, and Iowa, $5,440,000.

This State is therefore among the six busiest roadbuilding States of the Union as measured by the expenditure of federal money for approved projects. In all there has been apportioned to California under the federal act $10,846,000. This State has used or pledged to use for approved projects $8,463,000, leaving a balance available of $2,383,000. Up to May 1 of this year the Highway Commission had obtained approval for the expenditure of $1,066,000 of this balance on new roads.

Undoubtedly the State will qualify to receive the remainder of the balance apportioned before the end of the year. There is much highway building to be done and the people have voted ample funds for the use of the Highway Commission to enable it easily to meet all the requirements of the law in order to obtain the full apportionment.

THE VISIT OF THE REALTORS.

Yesterday was Oakland day with the delegates to the National Association of Real Estate Boards, which has just concluded a most successful and enjoyable convention in San Francisco. It perhaps was the most instructive day of the sojourn of the delegates in the bay district.

The three thousand men who attended the convention—and most of them visited Oakland yesterday—represent the highest character in the real estate business. They were privileged to inspect on the continental side of San Francisco bay a residential and industrial district of potentialities unsurpassed in any other location in North America. Being experienced men in the business of building cities, they inevitably sensed the future certainties, and left Oakland with an impression that will not soon vanish.

It is easy to "sell" a city to men who know what comprises the successful city and the natural elements that facilitate expansion and prosperity. It follows naturally that the realtors from other States were "sold" on the Eastbay district.

The local realtors who represented the city in acting as host to the visiting delegates performed the functions of appropriate hospitality in a highly creditable manner They are to be warmly congratulated.

Massachusetts will levy this year a tax of $12,000,000 for State government purposes. This is a reduction of $2,000,000 from last year's tax burden. Massachusetts has a population of 3,852,356, or 426,000 more than California. Wonder if the next legislature will reduce California's tax burden? Or will candidates for office attempt to smother the prayer for economy in agitations over the alleged Japanese land peril and Socialistic land settlement bond issues.

From the number of new divorces, marriage annulments, bigamy charges, etc., it would seem that the moving picture folk have not taken very seriously Mr. Will H. Hays' admonition to settle down and be respectable.

The warring Irish factions are saying a lot of things about each other that England, America or any other country could not get away with.

General Charles G. Dawes has been an unqualified success as director of the federal budget bureau. He is to resign at the end of this month and his place will be taken by Brigadier General Herbert M. Lord of the regular army. It is a big job to wish on General Lord but he is expected to carry on creditably and efficiently the important system inaugurated under General Dawes.

Lord Northcliffe of England the other day voiced his opinion that the late Theodore Roosevelt was the greatest man he had ever known. Of course the British publisher was speaking of men of his time, whom he had met. He had not met Lincoln or Washington or Napoleon. With the field of discussion thus limited, Lord Northcliffe has broad ground on which to sustain his opinion.

Within the same twenty-four hours in Chicago six automobiles were stolen and seven were recovered. If the Chicago police department holds up to that standard of efficiency it will soon have the automobile thieves on the run.

It would be a fine thing if Russia would hold a little conference off by itself and determine to give patriotic intelligence and business common-sense a chance for expression.

RAILROAD WAGE REDUCTION.

As if in answer to the frequent complaints that railroad regulation suffers from the assignment of rates and wages to two separate regulating bodies, the Railroad Labor Board announces a readjustment of wages close upon the heels of the Interstate Commerce Commission's cut in freight rates. The $48,000,000 reduction in the pay of maintenance of way employees is made effective for the same day that the lower freight rates come into effect. Other wage reductions are predicted to the point where the $600,000,000 wage increase of July, 1920, will be wiped out. The fall in the cost of living since then justifies the cut. It is also justified by the stimulus which lower operating costs for the carriers is bound to exercise on the revival of industry.

This first decrease in railroad wages since last year affects those workers who have profited most by the successive wage increases. It is therefore an approach to re-establishing the pre-war differential between the maintenance and shop-workers on the one hand and the trainmen on the other. At the same time we welcome the enunciation by the Labor Board of the principle that it is not bound to cut down the wages of common labor on the railroads to the level for common labor in other industries. The principle is a sound one. The railroads are plainly affected with a public interest, and the public interest is subserved by other considerations than the absolute play of demand and supply in the labor market. Last week the Interstate Commerce Commission declared that it regards itself as something more than a computing agency. Public psychology as well as arithmetic enters into its calculations. The Labor Board has now taken the same proper stand.—New York Evening Post.

"Frisco Tommy," reformed safe-cracker, addressed the students in the criminology class at the University Intercession. The following small bit from his speech is offered as one of the most remarkable results of the Volstead Act:

"After national prohibition went into effect a policeman friend of mine pointed out where I could make more money as a 'booze runner' than by cracking safes. It was a cinch. But this kind of work brought me into contact with honest people. I came to know rather intimately a number of best citizens. I studied them carefully and found there was something better in life than being continually hunted by the law. It was the first opportunity I had ever had to know that there were honest people in the world who really amounted to anything."

We cannot help but feel sorry for Ethel M. Dell. The lady is being pestered almost to distraction by publishers, editors and reporters who are determined to put her picture in the paper. To protect Miss Dell her publishers have put forth the following:

"We are requested by Miss Ethel M. Dell to protest against the way in which she is being persecuted by a certain section of the press for her portrait. She begs to say that if at any time any photograph of her is published it will absolutely contrary to her wishes. She has always had a great dislike for personal publicity, and she appeals to all editors and reporters to manifest their gentlemanly feeling and courtesy by respecting her desires in this matter."

One cannot understand the reasons for the lady's desire to pass unrecognized on the streets unless, perhaps, he has read one of her books.

Wives and "other women" should learn to count fifty before they pull the trigger.

"Rains Embarass Road to Yosemite" says a headline. Might even dampen its ardor.

"Guides are needed to show the visitors to places of vantage," another headline announces. Can it be "vintage" was meant?

Bryan, it may be, is planning to be a candidate for the presidential nomination on the anti-evolution ticket.

The monkey said, "Bill Bryan
Is a thankless sort of cuss,

Casting wicked slams at us."

A book to be called, "Who's Who in Radio" is to be published. Without pretending any lack of interest in the subject, and even admitting a thrill of amaze when jazz presumes to ride the moonlit ether, we will go so far as to say that Who may continue to be Who without even flickering our most idle curiosity.

One may find reasons for interest in the news that King Boris may be found any day "dressed in an old linen duster and, spade in hand, digging potatoes or planting cabbages."

What we would like to know is, why does the king plant his cabbages at the season for digging potatoes? Why, also, should he wear a linen duster when overalls and a soft shirt would be more in the picture?

What the item should have said, as any true press agent well knows, is that King Boris, smoking a corncob filled with the native tobacco grown by his well-loved peasants, could be seen in his garden every day, plowing, planting and cultivating the crops which he intends to distribute from the royal market place. Then there should be motion pictures and a leasing out of the privileges to an overall concern to claim it was one of that company's garments which made the labor possible and picturesque.

The Odd Facts Column which nestles on the Geraldine page with its content of surprise did a little better than usual the other day and the Almanac has been reminded by no less than eight of the faithful scouts. This "fact" appeared:

"England has a surplus of $2,000,000 women."

ANOTHER DIVORCE CASE.

NOTES and COMMENT

This appeared in the Watsonville Register: "Hayw[illegible] is a town about the size of Watsonville, with a less fertile surrounding country. The other day its chamber of commerce and realty board entertained 1000 delegates to the national convention of realtors. The realtors were brought from Livermore through the Dublin canyon, having been met by Hayward representatives at Merced. It was work, no doubt, but the kind of work that pays big returns." It is possible the clause, "with a less fertile surrounding country," will get a rise out of the Haywardites, who really would have an argument.

New York Herald on passports: "The return to pre-war conditions of tourist travel from this country to Europe is indicated by the demand for passports. Where in February of this year the State Department issued 7465 passports, the number rose to 15,825 for March and 19,000 or more for April. Thus American travelers paid their government $190,000 in one month for the privilege of taking a summer trip abroad."

THE DAYS.

There never was an ugly day,
A day from dawn to dusk so dark
But somewhere kindness showed a spark
And friendship smiled to light the way.

There have been bitter days of old,
And cruel days of loss and pain,
But Time has proved their golden gain
And now their splendor me. behold.

There never was a day so bleak
But brought its compensation, too,
Old friends returned or friendships new,
Strong hands to toil when ours are weak.

Our lives grow richer by the days
We live, and foul or fair,
Some treasure is recorded there
To brighten memory's winding ways.

Tomorrow we shall richer be
Than ever we have been before
For, having lived just one day more,
We shall have banked its splendid fee.

Out of the sorrow and regret,
The hurt and bitterness and pain,
Some lovely memory will remain,
Some joy which we cannot forget.

About YOUR HEALTH

Why Little Can Be Done In Treatment of "Shingles"

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D., Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Somebody has said we have three bodies. A bony body—the skeleton. A vascular body—the blood vessels. And a nervous body—the brain and nervous system.

The nervous body is really a double body or a duplicate body. The ordinary nerves which have to do with feeling and motion belong to the "cerebro-spinal system." But there is a finer and more complicated set of nerves which is called the "sympathetic nervous system."

The reason two systems are needed is because there are two kinds of messages which have to be sent out in order to keep this body going just right. Some of these messages are under control of the mind and regulate all of our voluntary acts.

For instance, you can direct your eyes to look at the lines you are reading at this moment, or you can order your eyes away from this page to gaze at something across the room. These movements are under control of the cerebro-spinal system, a term, by the way, meaning simply "brain and spinal cord."

There are other movements absolutely essential to life which are not under voluntary control. For instance, the beating of the heart, the contraction of the stomach and intestines, and, to a great extent, the breathing movements are controlled and kept going by the sympathetic nervous system.

The breathing is practically voluntary. You may stop breathing and hold your breath for a few moments, but as soon as fresh air becomes absolutely essential to life, voluntary control is lost and the sympathetic nervous system exercises its prior right of oversight and control.

The two nervous systems are largely interlaced and intertwined. In a sense, one is like a shadow of the other.

Thus, when we consider each individual spinal nerve, we find it consisting of two parts or roots, and as it passes outward it is reinforced by filaments from the corresponding part of the sympathetic system. There is at the root of each of the spinal nerves a little swelling from which come the fibres making up the sympathetic portion of the nerve. This swelling is called a "ganglion."

This sounds like a pretty complicated arrangement. It really is complicated and rather difficult to understand fully. But you must remember how necessary it is to guard and protect the body from harm, as well as to have it prepared to perform its more difficult functions.

An army wouldn't be counted as amounting to much if it had but one branch. There must be artillery to prepare the way from a long distance. The infantry engage in hand-to-hand conflict and the cavalry pursue the enemy. But with it all there must be a spy system, a secret service department, reaching everywhere to make absolutely certain that the protection is perfect.

Besides the essential part it plays in the circulation of the blood and in digestion, the sympathetic nervous system is part of the spy system, on guard at all the outposts of the body. Its fibres are distributed everywhere nerves of sensation go, so that every part of the skin is ready to notify the brain of danger or disturbance to the body.

Of necessity such a delicate and complex system is likely to get out of order. Its blood supply may be damaged or actual injury may derange its functions.

The ganglion I have described is in a sense the brain or central office of the sympathetic fibres of that particular nerve. If something causes hemorrhage within its structure, or if inflammation attacks the ganglion, there is disturbance in all the fibres of the nerve, and this is noticed particularly in the surface areas supplied by the endings of the nerve.

Trouble of this sort is called "shingles" or "herpes zoster." It is given the former name because the trouble takes the form of an eruption extending around one side of the body like a girdle.

It is characteristic of the disease that the disturbance is limited strictly to one side. It never crosses the middle line. First there are redness and slight swelling. Then little blisters form.

Herpes zoster is a painful and disagreeable condition. It is not at all dangerous except in the very old, but certainly it is decidedly uncomfortable. For days before the eruption appears, there may be pain. For instance, there may be pain in the side of the chest, in the back of the neck, on the point of the shoulder, or over the eye and up the side of the head.

The location of the pain depends, of course, on what nerve is involved. If it is one of the scervical nerves, the pain is in the neck, shoulder and upper part of the arm and chest.

Old people suffer more than do younger persons and severe neuralgic pain may persist for months after the eruption has healed and the acute symptoms have subsided. The skin may be tender for weeks.

Unfortunately, treatment is of little avail. Powder of starch and zinc may protect the parts, and dry powders are much better to use than ointments or liquids. The affected parts should be protected and the patient made as comfortable as possible. The end of the trouble is seen usually in ten days or two weeks.

REALTY MEN GUESTS OF EASTBAY

Delegates to Big Convention, Many Friends Take Part in Tour of Oakland, Vicinity and Enjoy Big Barbecue

Delegates who remained in the bay region after the close of the fifteenth annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards in San Francisco Saturday in order that they might take advantage of the sight-seeing trip yesterday through Oakland, Alameda, Berkeley and Hayward, were leaving for their homes in all parts of the country today enthusiastic over the beauty spots and the possibilities of the Eastbay cities.

More than 2000 delegates to the convention, half of whom were visiting representatives from various parts of California and other States were conducted in a caravan of 500 automobiles on a tour through Alameda county yesterday, and given an old-fashioned Spanish barbecue at Montclair by the Eastbay realty men. The visitors arrived here early yesterday and remained on this side of the bay throughout the day.

Before they departed last night for San Francisco, which had been their headquarters during the convention, they were shown all of the places of interest here and tracts of land suitable for sites for great industrial plants.

WHAT VISITORS SAW.

The visitors were convinced that the Eastbay region is the seat of great industrial development possibilities and one of the chosen spots on the earth for scenic beauty.

The convention delegates were driven across Webster street bridge to the Alameda beaches. Many bathers were in the surf at Neptune beach as the caravan rolled through the grounds.

The route of the caravan lay through the tree-lined drives past the Alameda high school and over Park-street bridge to East Twelfth street, Oakland. Lake Merritt and the municipal auditorium were first seen as the caravan entered the downtown business district of this city. Many rowboats and canoes were on the lake.

Lakeside park, with its trees, rose bushes, green hedges and beds of blooming flowers, was shown to the visitors on the way to Excelsior avenue and Trestle Glen, where many new homes are under construction.

The line wound its way over the rolling drives of Piedmont, the city of elegant homes, well-kept lawns and beautiful flower gardens, up the hills to Montclair.

Fifty Eastbay society girls welcomed the sightseers with arms full of flowers. They placed a red rose on the lapel of each man and presented each woman with a boquet of white roses. They played the part of "Peter Pan" girls.

PICTURES TAKEN.

L. F. Eppich, elected president of the National Association at the election of officers Friday; Fred E. Reed, chairman of the day; F. F. Porter, Oakland board president; F. Bruce Maiden, first vice-president of the Oakland board; J. Henry Wolboll, chairman of the Berkeley board committee, and prominent delegates from other parts of the country, posed with the "Peter Pan" girls for pictures, and then escorted the visitors to view the "Doughnut Tree," a large pine on the very summit of Montclair.

Beef barbecued over pits in which fires had been burning for eight hours and other delicacies prepared in the open comprised the feast of the 2000 realty operators. City and county officials and local real estate operators welcomed the visitors, and the caravan wound its way down Hampton road to Berkeley, where a musical program awaited the sightseers at the Greek theater. President Emeritus Banjamin Ide Wheeler welcomed the visitors to the campus of the University of California. The caravan was then conducted through the residential district of Berkeley and back to Oakland.

On the way to the University of California, the visitors were taken over the Sky Line boulevard, and declared this to be one of the most beautiful drives they had ever seen.

Traffic officers from Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley acted as pilots for the caravan and guided it over the entire course.

Borree Steps on Gas, Is Arrested For Speeding Auto

BERKELEY, June 5.—When State Adjutant General J. J. Borree sped through Albany yesterday en route to San Francisco from Sacramento he didn't know that a war was being waged on speeders by the police of that city.

As a result Borree is booked to appear before Judge John H. Paul on Thursday to explain why he was going almost forty miles an hour when the speed limit is less than half that amount.

Borree explained to Deputy Marshal Charles Hardie that he was in a hurry to catch a ferry to San Francisco. He didn't deny that he was stepping on the gas. The official charge placed against the state officer was driving thirty-seven miles an hour.

Borree was one of thirty autoists arrested over the week-end by the Albany police.

PETERSEN'S PAY PUT UP TO COURTS

City Auditor Harry Williams Will Refuse to Honor the Back Salary Demand for Reinstated Police Officer

Preceding a scheduled conference between Commissioner Frank Colbourn and former Chief of Police Walter J. Petersen, late this afternoon, City Auditor Harry Williams this morning asserted that he will not honor the demand for Petersen's back pay unless attorneys, and possibly the courts, so advise.

In reinstating Petersen as captain of inspectors, the civil service board awarded him his back pay from the time of his dismissal till the time he took a position with a private San Francisco organization. The outcome of this is doubted by some, as it is held that if Petersen is reinstated he is entitled to all his back pay from the police fund, no matter how many outside jobs he accepted.

Williams, however, intimated today that the matter must ge up before the courts before he will allow payment.

"I am under heavy bonds as city auditor," says Williams. "I cannot take chances. Let the law decide it."

Commissioner Colbourn said this morning that he had received no formal verdict from the civil service board concerning the Petersen case, and does not know what Petersen intends to do.

"Captain Petersen will be reinstated to office if he wants it," says Colboudn. "We will talk it over thoroughly."

Dope Addicts Fail In Suicide Attempts

Two dope addicts, who are serving time in the city prison, who the police say were desperate for the lack of narcotics, attempted to end their lives yesterday by cutting arteries in their arms. Thomas Foley, a chauffeur, and Thomas Meighan, a marine engineer, are the victims. Foley wounded himself at two different times with a butcher knife which he smuggled into his cell from the kitchen. Meighan made a similar effort at suicide with a safety razor blade following Foley's attempt.

The condition of the men is not serious.

KOPF, KEISER AND WINN ARE GIVEN GATE BY THE OAKS

SEALS CROWDING LEAGUE LEADERS AFTER SUCCESSFUL WEEK WITH HOWARD'S ATHLETES

SEALS SATISFIED; OUTSWAT OUR OAKS SEVEN TIMES IN ROW

Local Hurlers Given a Good Bumping in the Double Bill; S. F. Wins 10-5 and 4-2.

By DOUG MONTELL

Galloping goldfish! Ring up two more for the pastimers of the city by the Golden Gate. Taking advantages of Sunday, the Oaks playfully presented San Francisco with a double victory by scores of 10 to 5 and 4 to 2. All in all it was a day of great activity for the transbay delegation who welcomed the Oakland hurlers with open arms and a flock of base hits and added insult to injury by sending an outfielder in to do the pitching in the morning game. And he got away with it, for while the Oaks hit Charlie See for thirteen bingles, his team-mates made merry at the expense of Messrs. Jones, Winn and Keiser and won by such a margin that the decisions of the umpires were not questioned.

Seven times in the same place. Wow! The morning game yesterday looked like a dramatization of Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" when the Oaklets hit safely 13 times and gathered but 5 runs while the title of the afternoon performances should have been labeled "Comedy of Errors," by the same author. All in all, the Seals had a fine track meet interrupted only by time out for lunch between sessions.

Might Build Scenic Railway in Infield

It was rumored that after the day's events were over and the smoke of battle had cleared away that Manager Jack Miller asked Ivan Howard if there were any other forms of athletic exercise his men knew how to play, to which Howard is said to have responded that he understood that the president of the Seals was considering letting a contract for the construction of a scenic railway over the humps in the infield of the Valencia street lot. From the way ball hopped high, wide and handsome over the head of Brubaker in the shortpatch without provocation the scenic railway project might not be such a bad hunch.

Undoubtedly the result of the series was different from what had been expected at the start of the week by the local club and the repeated beatings at the hands of the Seals undoubtedly became tiresome. Smart baseball was not put on display by the Oaks yesterday and a change in the batting order failed to bring men to bat in the pinch who could click the agate.

Seals Bombard a Trio in Morning

Jones started throwing baseballs for the Seals to hit in the morning contest but the Seals prevailed upon him to depart at an early hour. Jones walked three in the first and escaped without damage but a four hit bombardment in the second sufficed to overcome the three-run lead the Oaks had given him and sent Winn to work. The Seals scored four in that frame and picked up others as they went along, keeping sufficiently ahead of the Oaks to prevent their backers from worrying about the outcome. Winn worried along until the eighth when Ivan Howard remembered that he had a date to give the boys a batting lesson and went in as a pinch hitter and walloped out a double. Keiser was the victim of volley fire by the Seal gunners in the last of the eighth and four more hits spelled three runs after which the Oaks flied out in order. At one time during the proceedings the Oaks had a chance to tie the score with runners on first and second, no one down and three balls and no strikes, but Ted Cather elected to hit into a double play instead of advancing his comrades in arms and opportunity passed on without knocking a second time.

Ernie Alten Is Winner Second Time

Returning from lunch the Oaks were confronted with a lefthander in Ernie Alten who promptly set them down for the second time in the series. For the first four frames Denny Wille was the only one who had the solution to Alten's delivery while the Seals chased the Oak outfielders to the fences to recover drives in the first frame. Joe Kelly singled and stole second. Koehler's throw to head him off was caught by Cooper and Kelly perched on third. Willie Kamm lifted one behind second that "fell to earth they knew not where," none of the Oakland players being on the spot when the ball arrived. Kelly scored. Bert Ellison hit one of the best to the clubhouse and Willie Kamm had time to amble in from first, bad leg and all while Ellison pulled up at third. Those two runs were sufficient to discourage the Oaks until the fifth when Koehler doubled, and Koehler found no reason why he should not score when Cooper did likewise.

Oaks Come Close to Starting Rally

Further activity with the willow chalked up another for the Seals in the sixth. O'Connell singled and Rhyne gained a life on Marlott's error. Kilduff scored O'Connell with a single to center. In the seventh Joe Kelly, who had hit safely three times previously, walked to start the inning. Compton sacrificed and Kelly took third on a passed ball and after Kamm had flied out Ellison hit one to Cather that should have been an easy out but the throw to first was both high and wide, Kelly scoring and Ellison being credited with a hit. Our Oaks looked to be ready for a rally in the eighth and Manager Miller hauled his surplus pitching talent out of the dugout to warm up when Brown singled and LaFayette doubled with one out. Brown scored when Cather was an infield out and Marlott, still lacking his eye after his long absence from the lineup, died by the Kilduff-Ellison route.

Art Koehler had his best day of the week with the willow, getting two out of three on one double, but in the ninth he was hauled from the lineup to allow Pete Read to foul out to Ellison when a hit might have started a rally.

ROBERTSON LOSES TOUGH ONE.

Pitcher Charley Robertson of the White Sox, who pitched a perfect game recently, lost a tough game to St. Louis yesterday in ten innings, 3 to 2.

BEES DIVIDE DOUBLE BILL WITH INDIANS

SEATTLE, Wash., June 5.—Winning the first game by a score of 6 to 5 and losing the second 3 to 1, Salt Lake won the honors in the series with Seattle yesterday by a margin of five games to two. The Lewis tribe continued their batting rampage in the first game of the Sunday bill and pounds out fourteen hits from the delivery of Gardner while the Indians were collecting an even dozen from Myers, who did mound duty for the Bees. Four errors in the field behind him aided in the downfall of the Indian hurler. A belated effort to tie the count fell one run short in the first game, Seattle registering twice in the ninth.

In the second game Stubby Mack won the argument from Elmer Reiger with both teams playing errorless ball in the field.

Dutch Leonard Is Winner for Fresno

FRESNO, Cal., June 5.—With Dutch Leonard on the slab, Fresno defeated Dinuba here yesterday, 6 to 5, in a loosely played game. This was Leonard's first game in the San Joaquin Valley league and he had difficulty locating the plate, although charged with only four bases on balls. He struck fourteen Dinubans out and was nicked for eleven hits. Fresno won by taking advantage of the wildness of Touts Schultz and his lax support. A boot by Bunny Fabrique let the winning run over in the ninth inning. Jim Blewett of Fresno got two triples and a single. Score:

Fittery Turns In Win, But Senators Drop Second Game

PORTLAND, Ore., June 5.—Fittery held the ambitious Beavers completely at his mercy in the first game here yesterday and allowed but three hits, Sacramento scoring a 8 to 0 shutout. Spurred to greater endeavors by this beating, the Beavers turned around and won the second game 4 to 3, which gave them the series from the visitors by a five to two margin.

While Fittery was twirling giltedge ball his teammates were batting Crumpler for a total of thirteen hits, the majority of which were bunched in the last three frames, when six of the eight runs were scored.

In the second game Hampton was given a two-run lead for the first six innings, but was unable to hold the Portland batters in check in the seventh, when they scored three runs. Sacramento tied it in the eighth, and the Beavers broke it up in the last of the ninth.

ANGELS WIN FINAL GAME FROM TIGERS

LOS ANGELES, June 5.—By dividing honors with the Tigers yesterday afternoon Los Angeles barely nosed out the league leaders for a series. The Tigers evened the week's argument when they won the morning game 7 to 5 with the veteran Wheezer Dell twirling better ball than Thomas. In the afternoon contest Doc Crandall was in charge of the twirling department for the Angels and won the argument from Gilder 9-3. The first game was in the nature of a seesaw affair with the Tigers scoring first blood only to have the Angels tie the count on two different occasions. Two runs by the Essick men in the seventh proved sufficient and Dell blanked the Killifer men in the last two frames.

In the second game Crandall was presented with an eight-run lead and was never in danger.

Del Monte Nine Defeats Tractors

The Del Monte Cafe baseball team traveled out to the San Leandro park Sunday and easily defeated the Best Tractors by a score of 9 to 1. Larry Hellar was invincible, allowing only seven scattered hits while the winners combed fourteen hits off the delivery of Kardoza. "Dutch" Thompson led the assault with three safe drives. The Del Montes are open to meet the fastest bush teams around the bay, Mothers Cookies preferred.

Giants, Yanks Expect Another Hard Week

Separated by the narrow margin of only a game and a half from their nearest rivals, the league leading Giants and Yankees were marshaling their boards of strategy today for another of the season's crucial tests. The Yankees were on their way westward to open a western invasion in Chicago tomorrow, while the McGraw men had a day of rest, entertaining contenders from the other wing of the circuit, beginning with the Chicago Cubs.

OAKLAND CLUB MAY LAND NEW MATERIAL WITHIN PRESENT WEEK

Kopf Turned Back to Brooklyn; Winn and Kaiser to Be Shipped to Southern Assn.

By EDDIE MURPHY

Following yesterday's double defeat of the Oaks at the hands of the San Francisco Seals, the officials of the local club held a meeting, and decided to tie the tinware to a few of their athletes. So before the end of the present week, Pitchers George (Lefty) Winn and Earl Keiser, along with Infielder Walter Kopf, will be cut from the payroll. The players have already been notified that they are about to be sent elsewhere. Winn and Keiser are to be shipped to the Nashville club in the Southern Association, while it has yet to be determined where Kopf will land. The Oaks sent a wire to the owners of the Brooklyn Dodgers, stating that Kopf could not fill the bill and he was being shipped back east. But a return wire requested the local club to try and place Kopf elsewhere. The local management met with no success in trying to place other members of the club, and do not expect to be able to place Kopf. Herbie McFarlin, secretary of the Oaks, who made the announcement of the release, says that the best thing the Oaks can do is to let Kopf go outright.

Winn will probably start for his new camping grounds today, but Keiser will not leave until next Sunday night, after the Oaks complete their series with the Vernon Tigers at Los Angeles. Keiser would be on his way today but for the fact that his leaving would leave the Oaks with only five pitchers for this week's series, as Hod Eller is on the disabled list. It is believed that Eller will be able to take his regular turn on the hilltop starting next week.

Pitchers Were Given Every Chance to Deliver Goods

Kopf came here, hoping to fill the shoes of Jack Knight at second base. He got off to a good start on the local diamond, but it seemed the more games he played the poorer his work got, and Manager Ivan Howard figured that the local club cannot afford to fool around too much in hope that Kopf will show better later on. There were games when it looked like Kopf did not know what it was all about.

The showings of Keiser and Winn were disappointing to the leaders of the Oakland club. Both hurlers had set good pitching records with the club last season, and Manager Ivan Howard hoped that they would do likewise this season. Winn's record last year was fourteen wins and seven defeats, while Keiser won three and did not suffer a defeat. Keiser joined the club late in the season. Both hurlers were given every opportunity to make good this season. Winn could not get into shape, while Keiser claimed that his pitching arm felt good but could not get going right. The releases come as no surprise, as fans had been expecting the local manager to cut his pitching staff long before this time.

New Pitcher Or Infielder May Be Signed Very Soon

Along with the announcement of the shakeup on the club last night, Herbert McFarlin also said that every effort is being made to get some new material with which to strengthen the team. Herbie has hopes of making an interesting announcement to the fans within a few days. The chances are that some new man will be signed to join the club before it leaves Los Angeles next Sunday night.

Just who the new player or players Herbie hopes the local club to land, he refused to mention. The Oaks can use another infielder and one of two pitchers, so it is up to the fans to do some guessing until such time that the new material is landed. Players are so scarce these days that big league clubs do not want to let any come to the coast or any other minor league. What ones they do let go are either old timers or rookies who lack the experience to play even fair ball in the Coast league. The Oaks pleaded with every club in the major league to send them help. The Brooklyn Dodgers thought that Kopf would be a good man for the Oaks, so he was brought out here only to prove a flivver. Clubs taking players of unknown quality from the big leagues these days are trusting to luck.

P. C. L. Clubs May Have to Develop Own Talent

Professional ballplayers are becoming more independent each day. In the last couple of years many players have jumped from professional ball into semi-pro leagues in the east rather than be shipped from the majors to the minors. It looks like the time has come for the Coast League clubs to get busy and start developing some youngsters from the sandlots. It should not do any great harm to carry a couple of promising kids on the payroll. A lad like Jimmy Foster could learn a lot by being around with the Oaks for a full season, and would probably be ready to step in as a regular next season. If the Coast League clubs are not going to get any more help from the majors next season than they are at the present time, it is going to be mighty tough for some of the managers to present strong lineups. Developing kids for future use looks like the best way for the clubs to protect themselves as long as the majors are not going to lend a hand. The majors are ready to grab every good player they can from the minors, but they are not willing to send any good players down to the minors, as they need them up there themselves.

Any time a major league manager talks of sending one of his athletes to the minors the player threatens to desert organized baseball and jump to the semi-pro clubs, which are taking a strong hold in the East. The league around Chicago which grabbed Dick Kerr from the White Sox is going big and has the big league clubs owners worried, according to reports.

COASTERS IN THE MAJORS

Babe Pinelli contributed a bobble in the ninth inning yesterday that allowed Marty Krug to drive in the runner for the winning run in the Cubs-Reds game. Krug's double was the second of two hits.

Bohne grabbed two hits, while Caveney and Pinelli got one for the Reds, but their stick work was not sufficient to put over the win. The Coasters in the Cub lineup did equally good work, Krug getting two bingles and Hollocher, Statz and Terry one each.

Dutch Ruether was sent in as a pinch hitter in the ninth inning of the Dodger-Giants game yesterday but failed to connect.

Dave Bancroft and George Kelly dented the hit column for the McGraw team with one each and displayed some speed on the paths, each stealing a base.

Eddie Mulligan and Earl Sheely each gathered one of the seven hits the Chicago White Sox made off Pruett and Shocker, the St. Louis Brown pitchers. The Browns won the game 3 to 2. Ernie Johnson of the Sox went hitless.

The Detroit Tigers were given a 14-to-5 pasting by the Cleveland Indians. Fred Haney made two boots while playing first base in place of Lou Blue, who is on the injured list. Haney hit a single.

Lou Blue went in as pinch hitter and delivered a single. Harry Heilman hit a double, while Cutshaw hit one single and Bassler two.

Bobby Meusel hit a single and sacrifice for the Yankees, who defeated the Athletics 8 to 3.

The Senators were defeated by the Red Sox 2 to 1. Peckinpaugh got one hit and scored a run for the losers.

Jake Daubert Hits Safely in 14 Games

Jake Daubert, the veteran first baseman of the Cincinnati Reds, has hit safely in fourteen consecutive games, making four hits, including two doubles, in the Sunday game against Chicago. He had a record of 22 consecutive games up to May 15, before he was stopped.

AMATEUR BOXERS OF ALL WEIGHTS ARE ON EDGE FOR FAR WESTERN CHAMPIONSHIP TOURNEY

NATIONAL AMATEUR BOXING CHAMPIONS ASSEMBLE FOR BOUTS

Entries for Tournament of Ring Stars Close Tonight; Olympic Club Holds Workouts.

National amateur champions in every weight class except one arrived yesterday from the east ready to participate in the Far Western boxing tournament at the Oakland Auditorium next Wednesday and Thursday. The boys are in charge of Bennie Levine of New York, assistant secretary of the A. A. U. of the United States, and recognized as the greatest authority on amateur boxing in the country.

Boxers Said to Be in Prime Condition

Bernie Levine, manager of the team, states that all his boys were in first-class condition when they left New York. Levine put them to work in the Olympic Club gymnasium yesterday afternoon and will have them work again today. "We understand you have some classy boys on this coast," said Levine, "and the boys don't want to take any chances. They will put in as much work as possible prior to the matches and I think when they wear off the train tiredness they will be all right and show their real class. The boys with me are the best of their class in the East and must be to win the titles they hold."

The tournament is being staged by the Native Sons' Athletic Club, and a committee headed by Jack Lane met the Eastern boys on arrival of the Overland yesterday and welcomed them to the city in the name of the organization.

The tournament is open to any amateur boxer. Entries must be received at the Pacific Association headquarters, 317 Flood building, before 6 o'clock tonight.

Wally Bates Is Defeated By Kumage

TOKYO, June 5.—Wallace Bates, star player of the University of California tennis team, now staging a Nippon invasion, this afternoon lost his match to Kumagae, Japanese national champion. Kumagae won, 6-0, 6-2.

Bates and Wilson defeated Kumagae and Nomura, ex-champion of Japan, in the doubles, 0-6, 6-2, 6-4.

The Californians are winning all of their collegiate matches.

Venice Hi. School Seeking California Swim Championship

VENICE, June 5.—The Venice High School swimming team, having annexed all Southern California's laurels and established a string of state and national records, will meet the Stockton team in their home waters on Saturday, June 10. Following the meet there Billie Fair, Wallace O'Connor and John Kenney—perhaps some others—will participate in the national amateur contests in San Francisco on June 14.

Stockton has offered to contribute $300 towards the expenses of the Gondoliers for the trip, and at the request of Coach Weissman of Venice High, Gil Rankin of the Kinney Company publicity department has agreed to go out among the people and organizations of Venice to raise the additional $200 necessary. The expenses of the boys who enter the national events in San Francisco, swimming for the Venice Swimming Association, have been subscribed by Thornton Kinney.

The Venetians are in high spirits, and Coach Frank Rivas—who will accompany them to the north—states that he is confident they can trim any prep school aggregation of swimmers in the country.

Tony Prior Winner In Transbay Shoot

Highest honors in the monthly shoot of the San Francisco Gun Club were carried off yesterday by Tony Prior on the grounds at Fort Winfield Scott. Low scores prevailed generally as conditions under which the shoot was held were not favorable, the weather handicapping the gunners.

Jack Nelson was runner up in the shoot. Prior turned in a score of 48 while Nelson registered 45. By his performance yesterday Prior also won a leg on the Ellery trophy.

Tendler Ready for Bout With Barrett

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—Lew Tendler, challenger for the lightweight crown of Benny Leonard, and Babby Barrett of Clifton Heights, Pa., will meet here tonight in a scheduled 8-round bout.

Tendler, who has been matched with Leonard for a 12-round bout at Jersey City in July, said he expected Barrett to give him a hard fight. He was confident, however, that he would win. Barrett was equally confident of victory.

Trapshooting Assn. Recognizes Record

NEW YORK, June 5.—A new world record of 99 hits out of a possible 100 at double targets has been recognized officially by the American Trapshooting Association, it was announced today. The mark is held jointly by E. F. Woodward of Houston, Texas, and Frank Hughes of Mobridge, S. D., and was made by both gunners at the Mississippi state championship tournament. The former doubles record was 96 out of 100.

Leslie Thomson Is Best Trout Fisher

SANTA CRUZ, June 5.—Prizes awarded by James E. O'Connor in a trout catching contest were as follows:

Largest trout—Leslie Thomson, rainbow trout, length 21¼ inches weight 3 pounds. Second largest trout, Bob Evans, rainbow trout, 20½ inches, weight 2¾ pounds.

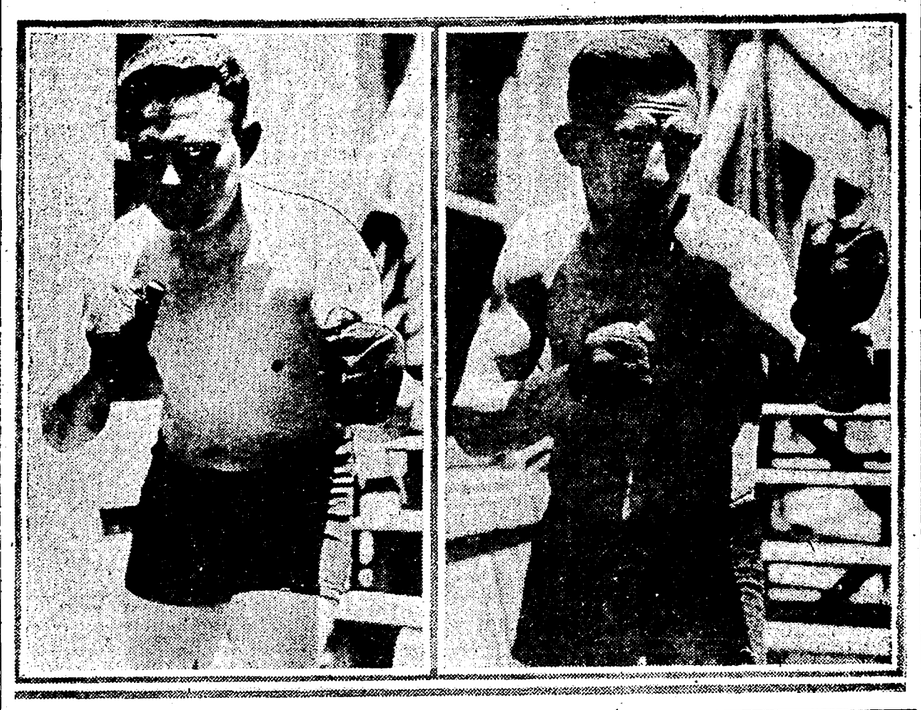
Ready for Far Western Boxing Tourney

The pair of glove swingers shown below are here for their first visit to the Pacific Coast and to show the boxing fans of the bay district what they can do in the way of handling their dukes. They will take part in the Far Western A. A. U. Boxing Tournament which is to be staged at the Oakland Auditorium next Wednesday and Thursday nights. On the left is STANLEY SEACRIST, runner-up for the amateur welterweight title, and right is HARRY D. SIMMONS, welter champion. Both come from Gary, Indiana.



GOLF

By W. D. McNICOLL.

At Claremont next Saturday probably over a hundred players will tee off in the annual club event, already 75 players have signified their intention of competing. A qualifying round of 18 holes will be played from which the champion flight of 16, and subsequent flights of 16 will be selected. The match play at handicap, which follows, will be the real contest. The course at Claremont has never been in better condition, and approach shots have to be via the air route to reach the green. A generous watering of the greens makes a pitched shot holed, while the old reliable run up that could be played so successfully a year ago has now to be discarded.

The inter-club matches with San Francisco and Sequoyah will probably be the next events of importance. The former event was scheduled for last month, but had to be abandoned. The home and home match with Sequoyah is always an interesting event, despite the fact that Sequoyah has yet to register their first win. Who is to have first claim on players in inter-club matches will soon have to be decided. Already many golfers are members of several clubs, and are in demand to represent them in team matches. The Encinal Golf Club, which is the latest addition to the rapidly increasing number of bay city clubs, will have many among its members, who are already members of the older clubs, but who might have a preference to represent a certain one of the many courses they are attached to.

The mixed foursome event, which takes place at Sequoyah next Sunday afternoon, has already received an encouraging number of entries. Mrs. Clyde Waterman and her committee hope to make an important announcement about next Wednesday regarding this event, which is sure to attract the largest entry on record.

Piedmont Hi. Ball Team Going Strong

PIEDMONT, June 5.—University, Martinez and Vocation high schools are among the teams that have been defeated by the Piedmont High School baseball team this season.

Piedmont High now boasts a fast infield consisting of Koser and Gibson, first base; Oliver, second; Lund and Fister, short; Hicker, third base; Captain Ede, catcher.

The pitching staff has had some good twirlers on the list. Gibson started off the season in good style but developed a sore arm. He also played second, short and first. Jim Lund was the main support, pitching great ball besides playing short and third base.

Hotle, "Bambino" Sherman and Joe Moore played in the outfield.

Santa Clara Loses To Oakland Riders

The polo team of the Oakland Motorcycle club defeated Santa Clara in the stadium at Idora Park yesterday afternoon 1 to 0.

A unique feature of the day was a chariot race staged by the Oakland Motorcycle club. The chariot, a barrel-shaped affair, was attached to a sputtering motor bike.

The Oakland Motorcycle Polo team comprised Dewey Jeffery (captain), "Swede" Matson, Hans Meyer, Fritz Kearney, "Soapy" Sudemeyer and substitute, George Gramer.

Santa Clara was represented by I. "Spike" Lundquist, Leslie Vandemark, Harry Westcamp, George Shaw, J. E. Heffelfinger, with Russell "Doc" Brown as substitute.

GOLF FACTS worth knowing

by INNIS BROWN

Q.—Has the United Golf Association taken any action toward lessening the penalty of loss of stroke and distance in the case of a lost ball?

A.—No change in the rule has been made, but in the latest draft of the official rules, sanction is given to local rules remitting the penalty stroke.

Q.—Can a player be charged with a stroke when his ball moves after he has taken his stance and touched his club to the ground, though the clubhead has not even touched the ball?

A.—Yes, he is charged with having caused it to move after he has taken his stance and grounded the club, or is in a hazard, after he has taken his stance.

Q.—Where the player with the honor or a hole drives his tee shot out of bounds, has he the right to have his opponent play before he drives a second ball?

A.—Yes. However, the opponent has a right to learn definitely whether or not the first player's ball actually is out of bonds or not.

Q.—In a recent tournament my opponent claimed a hole on me because I allowed by club to touch the ground on the slope of a ditch recognized as a water hazard, although the slope where the ball stopped was thickly covered with grass. Was his claim justified?

A.—The situation is the same as where a ball stops on the sloping wall of sand trap which is covered with turf. This is not strictly speaking a part of the hazard.

Q.—Can a protest over some incident that happened during the round be filed at the close of the round?

A.—Presume you mean, is it permissible to wait until the round is finished before making a protest. If that is so, no. A protest must be made before the players drive off from the next tee, or in case of the last hole of the course before the players leave the putting green. This doesn't refer, of course, to submitting facts to the committee at the close of a round where a protest has been made earlier in the round.

If any golf rules puzzle you, write Innis Brown, care of our Sporting Editor, enclosing stamped, return envelope.

Tilden Wins From Bettens in Finals

PHILADELPHIA, June 5. — William T. Tilden, world's tennis champion, yesterday won four matches, including the finals in both singles and double, in the tournament for the tennis championship of eastern Pennsylvania.

After eliminating Dr. P. B. Hawk, of Cynfyd, in the fourth round and beating Carl Fisher, former University of Pennsylvania star, in the semi-final, Tilden won the final match from Philip Bettens of San Francisco, 6-4, 5-7, 6-0, 6-0.

Paired with Sandy Wiener, his 14-year-old prodigy, Tilden won the final in doubles from Carl and Herbert Fischer, after a hard fought five-set match. The scores were 6-4, 5-7, 2-4, 6-3, 6-4.

Billy Evans Greatest Umps In Game Today

Diplomacy Secret of Success of "Best Guesser" in the Big Brush.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, June 5.—According to the belief of Billy Evans, an umpire's efficiency, aside from the mere matter of eyesight and judgment, may be reckoned by his ability to make himself as inconspicuous as Mrs. Astor's second footman. No immoderate gestures for Billy, no vocal flourishes as he renders decisions, no frowning or posing; in fact, his idea is to make the fans forget he is on the ball field as much as is humanly possible. He nimbly makes his decision by a definite, decisive jerk of his thumb, or the leveling of his hands, palm downward, and proceeds to fade into a self-created background of low visibility.

"That is where a lot of umpires make a mistake," Billy told the writer. "They get the crowd looking at them too much and that is a very bad thing for the umpire, unless his decisions are infallible.

"I'll never forget the first game I worked in the American League. I was teamed with Tommy Connelly and thought I getaway with the thing in great shape. Later, in the dressing room, I asked Tommy how I had done.

"'Very well, young fellow,' says he, 'but I want to ask you a question. Were you ever a railroad brakeman?'

"I was considerably mystified by the question until he informed me that I had made more motions than a traffic cop.

"'Never do it,' was his parting injunction. And I never have since."

The writer happened to be a witness of the first encounter between Bob Shawkey and Umpire Hildebrand in Boston several years ago, when a serious-looking situation became quite peaceful in less time than its takes to tell it.

Shawkey, in his great rage, had refused to leave the field and was making vain efforts to get at Hildebrand again when Evans was seen to approach the agitated player. He said something to Shawkey and the latter immediately walked off the field without further ado. It was amazing.

Evans' explanation was characteristic.

"I just asked Shawkey to leave the field, if only for my sake," was his explanation. And, of course, Shawkey did. He merely reacted to a kind word spoken among a flurry of fists.

Diplomacy. That is why Billy Evans is the greatest umpire in the game today.

'Toots' Mondt Is Seeking Match With Karasick

Big Fellow Claims He Can Throw Local Boy Twice Within An Hour.

Al Karasick, the local middleweight wrestler who has yet to meet with his first defeat, may have to defend his perfect record before another couple of weeks pass. Joe (Toots) Mondt, who has been entertaining the wrestling fans of the bay section for the last month by taking on all comers, is hot on the trail of Karasick and says he will force the local champion into a match. Mondt has five hundred dollars to wager that he can put Karasick to the mat at least two times in an hour. He has placed a check in the hands of The TRIBUNE Sporting Editor and now he wants Karasick to accept his challenge. Mondt says that if he fails to throw Karasick twice in an hour, the check will belong to the local boy.

Joe Khoumrian, local wrestling promoter and manager of Karasick, was informed last night of Mondt's challenge, and Joe got all excited. He was unable to get in touch with his champion early this morning, but he guarantees that Karasick will be only too glad to accept the challenge of Mondt. Karasick has never sidestepped any of them. He has taken on such noted wrestlers as Walter Miller, Al. Pall, Roy Anderson, "Demon" Tutty, Ted Smith and Doug Parks, and never met a defeat. Mondt weighs more than two hundred pounds, while Karasick tips the scales around 170, but Khoumrian says Karasick will not let the weight worry him. Ted Tye refused to meet Karasick, so the local boy must be considered quite a grappler. Karasick also wrestled to a two-hour draw with Mike Yokel. Looks like Mondt is getting careless with his money.

Khoumrian, believing that Karasick will accept the challange, is now making arrangements for a wrestling show to be staged at the Aahmes Pavilion, Thirteenth and Harrison streets, in this city on Friday night, June 16.

HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETICS

Playing on Saturday at Madera, Berkeley High's tennis team acquired the singles championship of the state, while the doubles title went to Los Angeles High. In the finals, Chandler of Berkeley beat Perry of Corcoran, 6-0, 6-1, 6-1, and in the semi-finals, he won from Bryant of Hollywood, 6-1, 6-1. Wahchter and Ordway beat Tate and Nixon of Red Bluff 6-0, 6-1, and Hyde and Prestwood beat Peck and Brown of Madera, 6-2, 6-2.

The final baseball game of the league season will be played Wednesday with Fremont opposing the Vocational nine. The game was postponed from last Friday.

San Francisco and Oakland High Schols will both have entries in the inter-city crew race and exhibition at Lake Merritt on the 14th of the month. The affair will be in honor of the visiting Shriners. The crews of Fremont and Oakland High schools from this side of the bay and Mission, Commerce, and Polytechnic from San Francisco, will be the contestants. Elimination races to decide the champion of each city, followed by a final event between the two winners to decide the inter-city championship, will be the program of the prep school blade wielders. In the similar event held at Black Point Cove last Saturday, Oakland High won the local championship over Fremont and Mission High won the San Francisco championship over Polytechnic. In the finals, Oakland High lost to Mission by a boat length. The lack of proper boats on the San Francisco course may account for the defeat of the locals, because the boats were unequal. The crew which rowed in the best of the two boats possessed the advantage. In the local elimination race, Oakland High's crew raced in the better boat and won, and in the finals, the San Francisco crew rowed in the better boat and won. English Os will be awarded to the members of the Oakland High school crew for their win over the Fremont crew. An effort is being made to popularize the crew sport so that by next year, all of the high schools will have one or more crews on the lake and block letters will be awarded for participation.

San Franciscan Is Motorcycle Winner

DENVER, June 5.—Bud Perkins of San Francisco won both events for professionals in the motorcycle hill-climb up Green Mountain, near here, yesterday. Perkins' time in the event for motors of 61 cubic inches was 36 1-5 seconds, and in that for motors of 80 cubic inches was 25 seconds. The climb was staged under the auspices of the Denver Post and the Western Motorcycle club and the course was 900 feet long. Floyd Clymer of Denver was second in both events for professionals.

Sacramento Tennis Tournament Closes

SACRAMENTO, June 5.—The Central California championship tennis tournament was brought to a close here yesterday with the defeat of Marjorie Thorne and Mrs. Imogent Allen, both of San Francisco by Mrs. Loretta Lennon and Lucille Murphy of Sacramento in the finals of the women's doubles. The score was 0-6, 6-4, 6-2.

The mixed doubles were won by Marjorie Thorne and Harry Randall, both of San Francisco over Aileen Brown of Sacramento and Marywin Griffin of San Francisco. The score was 6-4, 6-2.

Santa Rosa Horses Entered at Latonia

CINCINNATI, June 5.—The entries of two more thoroughbreds have been received as competitors against Marvich and other fast ones in the $50,000 Kentucky special race to be run at Latonia June 24. Colonel Matt J. Winn, general manager of the Kentucky Jockey Club, announced last night. They are Singapore and Supercargo, both owned by J. H. Rossetter of Santa Rosa, California. Entries for the race will close on June 12.

Detroit Driver Is Killed in Smashup

TOLEDO, O., June 5.—Sterling Porter, Detroit race driver, was killed here yesterday when his machine crashed through a fence at the Fort Miami track during an automobile race. Porter apparently lost control of the car during the first lap of the race and was crushed to death when it turned over after leaving the track.

WINDSOR DELEGATION CALLS ON T. RICKARD AND REQUEST BIG BOUT

Champion Jack Dempsey Getting in Wrong Around N. Y. Refusing Montreal Match.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, June 5.—With a prospectus full of good things, representatives are here from Windsor, Canada, seeking the Jack Dempsey-Harry Wills heavyweight championship fight.

It is not a "sugar king from Cuba" stunt or a steam-up for the fight. Windsor simply wants it if Tex Rickard wants to put on the bout.

The Windsor delegation claims to have more advantages than Montreal, and that it does not need a national holiday to get the crowd. Rickard wants to stage the heavyweight battle in Montreal on July 1, but Dempsey said he couldn't get ready by that time.

Just across the river from Detroit, Windsor claims to have access to a million population consisting largely of good spenders and it is within a good drawing zone of Chicago, Cleveland and New York.

Dempsey is showing no great desire to meet the big negro fighter. Jack Kearns says he ought to get $500,000 to defend his title and the mere suggestion of a purse like that leaves every promoter out of the running with the exception of Rickard.

The champion is beginning to get the pan around New York because he would not consider the July date in Montreal. Everything was about set when Dempsey returned from the other side and balked the deal. However, he was right in declaring that he needed more time to get ready.

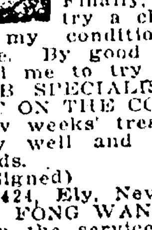
TRAVELED HUNDREDS OF MILES FOR TREATMENT—FINALLY HELPED IN OAKLAND.
Ely, Nevada.


For years I suffered from rheumatism and severe pain in my back and limbs. I could neither walk nor sit down without intense pain. My kidneys and bowels troubled me terribly. I tried many doctors in Nevada, none of whom helped me. Finally, I was advised to try a change of climate, but my condition became even worse. By good fortune a friend urged me to try the FONG WAN HERB SPECIALIST, THE VERY BEST ON THE COAST. Now, after a few weeks' treatment, I am entirely well and have gained ten pounds.

Romance and Evil Found In Underworld of Rio

By PHILIP AQUILA KEMPSTER, United Press Staff Correspondent.

CHAPTER IV

RIO DE JANEIRO (By Mail to United Press).—The streets of Rio, among the most beautiful of the world by day, seem at night to be permeated with an atmosphere of tropical romance.

Some, brilliantly lighted, are filled with pleasure-seeking crowds, going to and from the theaters, filling the cafes, or standing idly on the street corners.

Others, dark and lonely, seem to have a sinister aspect. One feels in them an atmosphere of passion, love, and crime. And such is really there. Violent murders are almost an every-day occurrence, in most of which the eternal triangle figures.

The street of the clubs is well-lighted, and its cheap cafes well patronized. Of the latter, perhaps the best known is the "Glue-Pot." By day, a most innocuous, uninteresting-looking place, almost empty; with the approach of the evening hours, it changes as with a magician's wand.

SORDID REVOLTING.

At night it is transformed into probably one of the least innocent resort in South in South America, sordid and revolting in aspect, where crime and vice flourish amidst a garish cheapness.

Always a haunt of the sailors from every port, the Glue-Pot is filled until almost day-break. There one finds the club girls of years ago, now frankly admitting that they have seen better days. Drunken seamen, doddering derelicts, and the underworld of a dozen nations mingling in a fraternity of degradation.

A wailing native orchestra drowns out raucous feminine voices speaking in many tongues. A fight, bottles thrown, a few shots fired, brief intervention of the police, and all goes on as before.

The inquisitive sight-seer draws a breath of relief as he emerges from the swinging portals into the fresh night air.

Through some sections of obscure narrow streets, one sees many faces peering from within through half-closed shutters, and many beckoning voices speaking in various languages call to the passer-by. French, Italian, Spanish, Argentine, Russian, Greek,—all are mingled in sinister harmony. The night brings them to life again, and with that the need for life and the means of living.

GAMBLING FLOURISHES.

Many clandestine gambling establishments are operating in Rio, places where one must be known to be admitted. These are winked at by the police, who know that a share of the profits may come their way. Occasionally a raid is made, when an injured public demands restitution, but the houses remain closed for only a short time, and are soon in full swing again.

A number of seaside roadhouses and restaurants are popular with the automobile crowd. There again nightly one may find dancing, drinking, gambling and revelry, and once more the "cocktail trail" of Havanna is put to shame.

However, with all its vice, the night life is an intimate part of the city. Rio would not be itself without it, just as the tropics without palm trees would not be tropics.

Strikes Increase Fire Cracker Price

NEW YORK, June 5.—When you pay more for your Chinese fire-crackers next Fourth of July, you may take comfort from the fact that the men who made them over in Canton are getting a 15 per cent increase in wages, according to a report of labor conditions in China made public today by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, here.

Canton, says this report, has seen having successful strikes in hundreds of trades with resultant increase in wages and improvement in the living of the workmen. The makers of firecrackers got the lowest increase.

The fifty-nine Presbyterian missionaries in Canton report that contributions to their work must be increased to correspond with the new scale of wages and the higher cost of living.

Working Women To Hold Session

WAUKEGAN, June 5.—Organized working women from all parts of the country and from virtually every occupation will attend the eighth biennial convention of the Women's Trade Union League here starting today and continuing until June 10. The Women's Trade Union League of Chicago will be the hostess organization.

The affiliated membership of the League included national, international and local unions with women members affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, as well as thousands of members-at-large, among them many women and men not themselves wage-earners, but allies of the labor movement.

The organization seeks to further the organization of working women into trade unions under the American Federation of Labor, to broaden the educational opportunities of workers, and to "create a public opinion which understands the labor movement."

Smallpox in Mexico Menace at Calexico

CALEXICO, June 5.—Complying with an order received by telegraph from the surgeon general of the United States public health service at Washington, local authorities closed the Mexican-California border at this port, today except to persons who could show successful vaccination within the past year and those who have had smallpox.

The order was issued because of an epidemic of smallpox in Mexicali, Mexico, where there are about one hundred and twenty-five cases of the disease. A request for such an order from the surgeon general was made yesterday by W. M. Dickie, secretary of the state board of health, following an investigation of the epidemic at Mexicali.

Prune Association Buys Packing Plant

SAN JOSE, June 5.—Another unit was today added to the already extensive holdings of the California Prune and Apricot Growers' Association when papers were signed for the purchase by the association of the plant of J. W. Chilton in North First street, adjoining the Southern Pacific freight yards.

General Manager H. G. Coykendall today informed The TRIBUNE of the deal, stating that the new plant will be used almost exclusively for the packing of prunes in cartons. The association's plant No. 4, in the southern part of this city, has been found inadequate for handling the large demand for this class of produce.

The association will add an extensive amount of machinery to the Chilton plant, it was stated. A number of other improvements will be carried out also, officials state.

In announcing the purchase of the Chilton plant Manager Coykendall stated that negotiations are now under way for the purchase of other packing plants in California and that the closing of these deals is anticipated at an early date.

Chilton, in speaking of the sale of his plant, declared:

"The association, in which I have the greatest confidence, gave me a very fair price for my plant, but I am not at liberty to say what it was. I am retiring to engage in the brokerage and agency business. I have clients in the East that I will buy fruit for and I also have taken over some manufacturing agencies for California."

Chilton, a close observer of crop conditions, predicts the prune crop for this year to be no larger than that of last year.

Two Bond Issues Go to S. F. Bank

THE Alameda County Board of Supervisors, in meeting today, sold Oakland school district and Oakland high school bonds, amounting to $743,000 and $717,000, respectively, to the Anglo-California Trust Company of San Francisco, the highest bidder.

The premium on the bond issue was $46,611 for the school district and $44,313 for the Oakland high school bonds.

Other bidders were Stephens & Company, school district bonds, $34,379; high school, $32,590; Mercantile Trust Company, $42,908 and $41,407; Blythe-Witter & Company, $44,988 and $43,414, and Anglo-London and Paris Company, $30,543 and $25,867, respectively.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

With only 16 out of 65 cities failing to show increased operation in industries in May and with further expansion indicated for June, industrials showed a buoyant tone at the opening of the New York stock exchange today.

Transactions in groups were marked by advancing prices in Cuba Cane common and Cuban American. Fisher Body of Ohio made a new high at 99⅞ on buying in anticipation of the fact that holders of stock at the close of this month will be entitled to the special dividend of $8 a share. Texas Gulf Sulphur also reached a record price for the year at 52 and Speyer Manufacturing at 23½.

Burns Brothers "A" was active around the year's high on realization that the stock rates are selling level in the neighborhood of 150. Tobacco Products was freely offered on the curb, preferred "A" breaking to 78¾, off 5⅛ from last week's high, and common at 55¾, off 6¼. This selling caused a decline in Retail Stores, which sold off to 63⅝, against last week's high of 71¼.

American Car and Foundry made a new high at 168 but Baldwin and American Locomotive failed to respond.

Issues prominent in the three-company steel merger were under further pressure, Republic Iron and Steel soon declining 1½ points, with a fractional reaction for Midvale Steel. Du Pont was again the sensational feature among specialties, its initial quotation adding 9¾ points to last week's gain of almost 25 points. National Biscuit and U. S. Rubber were responsive to favorable statements of earnings. In the foreign exchange market early quotations for demand bills on London rose to the new high record of 448½.

Lake Erie and Western common and preferred again represented the stronger rails with Canadian Pacific and Delaware and Hudson, but transportations as a class were lower. Call money opened at 4¾ per cent, easing to 4½ per cent, however, before noon.

Total sales were 1,250,000 shares. Some selling of North American Steel on the curb was attributed to statements made Saturday at the housing committee investigation, but that stock, after falling from 48¼ to 47½, found support. Atlantic Fruit, when issued, was dealt in for the first time, curb sales being made in the forenoon at 3 and 2⅞.

Imperial Oil of Canada opened down 2¾ at 120. Standard Oil of Kentucky ranged from 105¼ to 102, and Indiana dropped from 118 to 116¾. South Penn was exceptionally strong, advancing 7 points to 247. Independent oils were generally firm, Fensland selling at 18⅞ to 19 and Cities Service moving up from 231½ to 234½. Carib Syndicate was dealt in on a large scale over 3000 shares changing hands, before noon at 8⅝ to 8⅞.

IMPROVING AGRICULTURE IS FEATURE OF MAY.

Steady improvement in the indicated yield of the principal agricultural products has been an outstanding featur in the development of the past month, says the Federal Reserve. Improvement in the prices of cotton, grains and other products is also a noteworthy feature of the month. In appraising the manufacturing situation a distinction must be drawn between basic commodities and those of a more highly finished sort. The marked improvement in the case of iron and steel noted in business surveys of previous months has continued during May, unfilled orders increasing materially and ingot production being the greatest in any one month since November, 1920. Muh the same may be said with respect to copper and the other nonferrous metals. The situation in other important lines of manufacture is less easy to characterize. Due to the continuation of the textile strike the output of cotton goods has been materially lessened, although in the Southern cotton mill districts, plants are reported as operating near the full capacity. There was a recession of activity in woolen manufacturing during April, especially in the worsted branch of the industry, while the silk industry is suffering from a condition of continued depression and inactivity. A mixed situation confronts manufacturers of boots and shoes. In the St. Louis district activity has been well maintained, but in the Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago districts, some recession has apparently occurred. A portion of this must be ascribed to seasonal reaction.

Expected Revival in Rumania Fails

Trade revival in Rumania, so confidently expected to begin aftetr the elections, has not materialized; trade is not improving perceptibly. Petroleum production for March was the largest monthly output since the war. A seasonal revival in lumber exports occurred with the moving of the ice from the Danubian ports. Spring sowings have gone far to make up the great shortage of winter sowings, and the crop outlook is better. Railway and port conditions are still deplorable, and it is reported that enormous quantities of lumber are rotting at distant points in Bucovina and Transylvania because of the lack of freight cars.

LONGER LOANS DECLARED NEED OF AGRICULTURE

Real Demand for Readjusting Machinery of Financing Farmer, Says Bank.

The need for better facilities for providing credits of intermediate length to farmers seems well established, the National Bank of Commerce in New York believes. There is a real demand for legislation by Congress to readjust the machinery for making agricultural loans having a maturity of from six months to three years and plan to amend the Federal Farm Loan Act for this purpose and the temporary extension of the life of the War Finance Corporation, it believes, merit serious consideration.

"Commercial banking agencies are in a position amply to provide for agricultural advances of a maturity up to six months, and paper taken on such advances is rediscountable at the Federal Reserve Banks. However, commercial banks are unwilling to take any great amount of paper the maturity of which is for more than six months, partially because it is not rediscountable. It is just here that some sort of rearrangement recommends itself," says the bank.

READJUSTMENT NEEDED.

"That steps should be taken to make financing of such activities easier is one of the conclusions reached by the Joint Commission of Agricultural Inquiry. In its report on 'Credit' was included the draft of a bill which subsequently was introduced into both houses of Congress in the form of an amendment to the Federal Farm Loan Act. The bill is designed to provide credit machinery which will meet this demand for agricultural advances of a maturity of from six months to three years. Due to the press of other legislative business this bill has received little attention in either house of Congress. However, it seems to have been based upon a thorough investigation of the fundamentals of the problem and merits the serious consideration which it no doubt will receive in time.

"Another move in the way of legislation to cure agricultural ills is the extension of the life of the War Finance Corporation. The work done by the War Finance Corporation together with continuing business uncertainty no doubt warrants the extension of life for another year of this temporary organization."

OTHER PROPOSALS.

Regarding other proposals for remedial legislation which are being advanced at this time, the National Bank of Commerce says:

"Some of these propose to put at the disposal of the farmers huge amounts through various existing banking agencies, the funds involved to be advanced by the government. Other plans are revolutionary and would establish complete new systems of rural credit machinery. Notable among these is a bill providing for the establishment of a landschaft system which would advance money on short-term mortgages. The plan as outlined bears much resemblance to our present Federal Farm Loan System in function and organization. Such a duplication of machinery would appear wasteful upon its face.

"Those who now propose the pending legislation should show that the experience of the last few years has established that the farm loan system as designed and operating is deficient, and that there is a legitimate demand for additional machinery to grant loans on the basis of farm mortgages."

CHICAGO, June 5.—Ideal weather for the ripening of harvest fields in the Southwest led to general selling of wheat today during the early part of the Board of Trade session. Slowness with which wheat that has accumulated in Chicago was moving out tended likewise to depress values and so did deliveries here this morning of 130,000 bushels of wheat on June contracts. Buyers were few until declines in price tempted bears to take profits. The opening which ranged from ⅜ to 2¾c lower with July $1.13¼ to $1.14 and September $1.12¾ to $1.14½, was followed by moderate additional setbacks.

Corn and oats reflected the weakness of wheat and oats touched the lowest prices yet this season. After opening ⅛ to ⅜c off, July 60¼c to 60⅝c the corn market continued to descend.

Oats started ⅛ to ⅜c down, July 36⅞ to 38⅜ and later underwent a further sag.

Notwithstanding higher quotations on hogs the provision market declined with grain.

EUROPE ON GOLD BASIS DECLARED WORLD NECESSITY

Money Must Be Re-established on Some Metallic Ratio to Do Business.

The question which is uppermost in the minds of American observers and students of the European fiscal situation, says the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, is that of the ultimate stabilization of the value of European currencies in terms of gold. This must be accomplished at some ratio, not necessarily the pre-war parity, if the world is ever again to be able to carry on international or domestic trade without the hazard of widely fluctuating exchanges.

"The position of the paper currencies and the impounded gold reserves of the different European countries," the Survey of this bank continues, "presents a confused variety of factors which makes a study of the situation as a whole desirable. The paper currencies have practically ceased to expand in some countries, in others inflation is going on at a more rapid pace than ever before, while in a few countries material contraction has already taken place.

"Large and small countries alike are represented in each of these classes. The most prominent among those which are contracting their paper money circulation are the former neutrals and Great Britain. France and Italy may be classed with these or among the countries, like Czecho-Slovakia, the volume of whose currency appears to be relatively stabilized, but France and Italy continue the expansion of their short-term debts. Currency inflation, however, is still proceeding at a rapid pace in Germany, Austria, Hungary, Poland and several other Eastern European states.

OUTLOOK IMPROVED.

"Looked at from the standpoint of gold reserves, the European situation appears somewhat improved, although the gold is not in free circulation and is held also as a reserve against deposits in the note issuing banks. The fiscal situation in various European countries shows wide differences, however, for some have surprisingly large amounts of gold on hand while others have virtually no gold at all.

"The question which is uppermost in the minds of observers is that of the ultimate stabilization of the value of these currencies in terms of gold. This must be accomplished at some ratio, not necessarily the pre-war parity, if the world is ever again to be able to carry on international or domestic trade without the hazard of widely fluctuating exchanges. This, however, cannot be brought about until the governments which are increasing their fiat currencies through their banks of issue either balance their budgets by increased taxation and reduced expenditures, or finance their deficits by some sound means.

STABILIZATION PLANS

"Doubtless it is too much to hope that either of these methods will be applied at once by governments which are too weak to raise the needed funds by taxation or direct borrowing. Such a program rests upon the ability and willingness of a people to bear burdens which are now being shunted off until omorrow, though they are thereby increased. This observation of course, does not apply to all the European governments, for some are clearly pursuing the proper course. Time, however, is required to produce results by this means, for taxes cannot be suddenly increased nor government expenditures decreased on a large scale without upsetting whatever internal balance may be in existence at the moment.

"In fact, it may be questioned whether immediate stabilization is really necessary or desirable until a more nearly permanent commercial equilibrium is achieved. The exchange values of certain of the European currencies, notably sterling, have advanced so far in recent months that they are now within measurable distance of their former parities, and this improvement has been attained without apparently intensifying the depression through which Europe has been passing.

PAPER CURRENCIES.

"Indeed, the firmness with which relief by inflation from present economic ills has been renounced by some governments is a fine tribute to the wisdom and courage of their peoples. But, unfortunately, such fortitude is not the attribute of all the European countries. The more we examine the progress of currency expansion, unavoidable though it may be, the more apparent becomes the necessity for eventual revaluation of certain paper currencies.

"Already Russia is reported to have revalued her currency by decreeing that 10,000 of the old rubles are worth one new 'gold' ruble, but such a revaluation is illusory, since it rests on the fiat of the government, rather than on the convertibility of the new rubles into gold. In fact, Russians, outside of a few cities, are doing business by barter economy, and the new rubles must continue to depreciate as they are issued.

"The essential difficulty with most proposals for revaluing depreciated currencies, expedient and inevitable though the process may be in many instances, is that they make no provision for convertibility into gold or any other commodity the value of which is relatively stable. Until the convertibility of a currency into some recognized standard of value, which is itself slow to change its worth, can be established and maintained, proposals for its revaluation without provision for such redemption will be premature, and the process, if carried out, will mean no more than a new start on the same course of inflation."

8-OUNCE BASKET FOR BERRIES IS ABOUT AT END

Ban of Market Inspectors Bears Fruit; Lamb Takes Jump of 2 Cents.

The order from Market Inspector Edward Strowbridge banning the 8-ounce basket for containers for berries began to bear fruit today with but very few exceptions all the strawberries coming in were packed in 12-ounce baskets. Some chests in the banned smaller containers were immediately "red-tagged" and held "contraband."

Lamb took another jump again today of 2 cents a pound, setting a top price of 24 cents. The market was not entirely unprepared as the supply is limited in the face of an active demand.

Arrivals included four cars of bananas and one of oranges. Asparagus consignments were nominal. The demand is not very keen and the quality of the vegetable is deteriorating as the end of the season, about July 1, approaches.

Cherries were scarce. The season for the black varieties from the river sections is about at a close and tomorrow or next day the bulk of the shipments will be from the Santa Clara valley. The Hayward crop has not yet begun to move to market, cold and foggy weather delaying ripening.

ALONG THE WATERFRONT

The tug Sea Fox brought the gasoline schooner Mae Hyman into port yesterday afternoon and as soon as she is righted, will be placed on the drydock, repaired and placed on the run again between this port and Point Arena. The Mae Hyman sailed from Point Arena May 29 and was reported bottom up the next day. Captain Birschild and his crew of three men are missing. They are thought to have been drowned when the little craft shipped a sea and filled.

During the past 24 hours 63 vessels of all descriptions passed the Golden Gate. Of these 31 arrived and 32 sailed with freight and passengers. The principal arrival was the Japanese steamer Tenyo Maru, from the Orient. She brought 5000 bales of raw silk valued at $5,000,000, which is the largest single shipment of raw silk that ever came to this coast from Japan. This silk was loaded on cars and passed through Oakland on its way to the Atlantic coast.

The steamer Port Angeles with the barge Rufus E. Wood in tow arrived from Puget Sound. The barge was docked at the Sunset Lumber wharf to unload one million feet of lumber and the steamer proceeded to Los Angeles. During the day nearly three million feet of lumber was brought here from the north.

It was announced today that the steamer Eastern Merchant, 5099 tons register, has been purchased by the Luckenbach Steamship Company from the U. S. Shipping Board. The price paid for the vessel was not given. The Eastern Merchant has been lying at Seattle since March 20. The Eastern Merchant was built in Japan during the war for the Shipping Board and has made two voyages.

Kerr Gifford and Company has chartered the British steamer Benlawers, 2521 tons register to take a cargo of wheat from Portland to the United Kingdom.

The British steamer Cape Artegal left Portland today for the United Kingdom loaded with 268,000 bushels of wheat, valued at $336,000.

The steamer Victoria sailed from Seattle yesterday on her first voyage to Nome and St. Michael this season. She had 500 passengers and a full cargo of freight. Among her passengers was Captain Roald Amundsen, the Arctic explorer who is en route to Nome to join his ship, the Maud. Captain William Fisher, United States inspector of hulls, also went north on the Victoria. He will inspect the steamers on the Yukon and in the vicinity of Nome. On the return voyage of the Victoria she will bring several passengers, who have wintered at Nome, several cases of furs and ivory, besides much gold dust.

The tug Sea Lion, which was sent from this port to Columbia river some days ago, left Astoria yesterday for Naknek, Alaska, with the ship Chillicothe in tow. The ship is loaded with cannery supplies which is being sent north to replace the cargo lost on the ship Berlin when she was wrecked some weeks ago. The tug will leave the ship at the cannery and will return home light, while the ship will remain north all summer and bring the season's pack of salmon and the fishermen home.

ALMOND OUTLOOK NOW PROMISING SAY OFFICIALS

Industry to Enter the 1922 Market With Strongest Organization Known.

The California Almond Growers' Exchange will enter the 1922 crop sales season with the strongest co-operative organization in the history of the industry, according to its president, George W. Pierce.

It is announced that approximately twenty-five hundred almond growers of the state have signed the five-year crop pooling agreement.

According to Pierce these agreements represent a greater tonnage than the Exchange has ever handled in its history and it was stated at the meeting before the Exchange membership rolls are closed there probably will be another 500 agreements signed and delivered to the Exchange.

TUCKER IS OPTIMISTIC.

T. C. Tucker, manager of the Exchange, says: "The action of the almond growers of the state has guaranteed the future of almond growing in California, provided Congress grants our tariff pleas now before the Senate for action. With such a strong co-operative as has been formed, and with the modicum of protection the import duties we are asking from Congress will afford, California almond growing has a bright future before it. Our figures show that under the 2500 agreements which we have in hand, we will handle a greater tonnage of almonds than we have ever sold before. In signing these agreements the almond growers of the state have at last put their industry and their organization on a sound business basis, and I am sure that they will never regret their action."

HISTORY OF ORGANIZATION.

The California Almond Growers' Exchange was formed in 1910 and has been operating for the twelve years since on a seasonal pooling agreement between the grower members. The arrangement proved inadequate to obtain the necessary banking credit to finance the obligations of the Exchange which have increased from $350,000 per year in 1910 to nearly $3,000,000 at the present time. During the years that the Exchange has been in operation owing to its success in obtaining a fair return from almonds to the growers of the state, almond plantings have increased until now approximately 100,000 acres of California soil is given over to almond production. Only a small fraction of some 7,000,000 almond trees are actually producing the almond output of 15,000,000 pounds at present. It is estimated that within the next ten years the state will be producing 70,000,000 pounds of almonds annually with a yearly return of something like $20,000,000.

Bulgarian Prices Are Going Skyward

Stationary exchange and rising prices have become noticeable in Bulgaria. Resolute efforts to achieve further retrenchment in government expenditures are being made. The experiment with conscripted labor will be continued. Reports on the practical working of the law in compulsory labor in Bulgaria indicate that this experiment was not wholly unproductive during 1921. Large projects are said to be in hand for its continuation in 1922. In 1921 the value of the work done under the new law is officially estimated to be 640,376,000 leva. The maintenance of the workers cost 113,000,000 leva and the gain to the state, claimed by officials, was thus 527,376,000 leva. No estimate is offered of the wealth which would have been produced by the labor conscripts if they had spent the same time at their regular occupations. It is estimated that the value of the work contemplated for 1922 under this act will be 961,000,000 leva, and that the expenditure will amount to less than 200,000,000 leva.

ALL EASTBAY UNITES TO DAZZLE VISITING NOBLES

Municipal Authorities, Business Leaders and Citizens of Cities Co-operating in Big Program

Full co-operation of the Eastbay municipal authorities, business houses and citizens has been enlisted for the week's festivities attending the Shriners' Imperial Council sessions, Thomas W. Norris, potentate of Aahmes temple, asserted today.

"We are gratified by the disposition we have found everywhere to promote the success of the Imperial Council, and particularly the spirit in which the people are lending their time and efforts towards giving Oakland and other cities east of the bay a creditable showing," Potentate Norris said.

"County and city officials have invariably shown a readiness to assist and have assisted to a noteworthy degree in the preliminary work. We are especially pleased by the voluntary proffers of cooperation from the police department of Oakland. It is reassuring to know that Commissioner Colbourn and Chief of Police Drew are giving their personal attention to the preparations under way for handling the vast crowds that Oakland will entertain next week. They are of invaluable assistance in working out the perplexing traffic problems for us, and Chief Drew has told us that he will have every member of the department on duty Oakland Day, thereby making it certain that all the elements of the big gathering will be moved with the proper control and order.

"Then there is the matter of decorations. The city authorities on this side of the bay are doing their part on an elaborate scale. Berkeley is in full festive attire now, and Oakland and Alameda are flinging out the Shrine colors at a snappy rate today. Business men and citizens generally have shown commendable promptness and thoroughness in putting their establishments in order and dressing them for the occasion. This week will see all the principal thoroughfares aglow with the national colors and the red, gold and green of the Mystic Shrine."

Harry S. Anderson, chairman of the committee in charge of the attractions at Lake Merritt, has promised to spring his big surprise this week. The shores of the lake, the wharves and boat houses are being wired for brilliant illumination with alternating lights in red, green and yellow and all city and privately owned craft are being dressed in Shrine bunting and lights. Anderson says this will be merely the setting for the most dazzling spectacle ever undertaken in the west.

The overland caravan of Shriners now nearing California will usher in the gayeties of Imperial Council week for the Eastbay next Sunday. This contingent, which started at Washington, D. C., is traveling in automobiles and will reach Stockton next Saturday night for the ceremonial to be held by Aahmes temple for the initiation of candidates. The journey will be resumed Sunday morning, and the travelers are due at Hayward for a barbecue at noon.

Romaine W. Myers, chairman of the automobile committee, is still listing machines for use in showing the visiting Shriners the places of interest in the Eastbay district. It is his plan to have automobiles at hand every day for excursion purposes.

SHRINERS' MOTOR CARAVAN SCOUTS HERE FROM EAST

President Harding Sends a Note of Greeting to Conclave Envoys in S. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5. — Bearing a letter of greetings to the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine from President Harding, Congressman Clifford Ireland and Richad O. Sharon, both past potentates of Mohammed Temple, Peoria, Ills., arrived here yesterday.

The two Shriners left Washington, D. C., on April 25, as scouts for the Shrine automobile caravan of 300 cars, which left the capital a week later, and which is now in New Mexico, making its way to the coast. Congressman Ireland and Sharon had an interview with President Harding just prior to their departure, at which the chief executive, himself an enthusiastic Shriner, expressed the best wishes for the success of the Imperial Council sessions. President Harding's letter is addressed to Imperial Potentate Ernest A. Cutts and reads as follows:

The White House,
April 18.

My Dear Mr. Cutts:

I am writing to ask you to extend my fraternal greetings to the members of the Shrine on the occasion of the annual conclave in San Francisco. For a time I entertained a persistent hope that it might be my good fortune to get to the Pacific Coast in time to see something of the conclave this year. But that is now obviously impossible, as public business will make an absence from Washington at that period quite out of the question.

As a poor substitute for the pleasure of meeting and greeting the nobles, I am asking you to convey my best wishes to all of them with my hope for the prosperity and expanding usefulness of the order. Very sincerely,

WARREN G. HARDING.

OVER SANTA FE TRAIL

During their trip, Congressman Ireland and Sharon, who traveled the Santa Fe trail, remainedd in telegraphic communication with the auto-caravan, which is under the command of Captain Bernard McMahon. The caravan will spend two days in Los Angeles, and comes to San Francisco by the valley route. Near Merced the caravan will be met by Ireland, Sharon and a delegation from Aahmes Temple, Oakland, on June 10. To Aahmes Temple has fallen the honor of meeting the different parties approaching the San Francisco bay region on the overland trains and by automobile from the East.

Congressman Ireland announced that Mohammed, his home temple, leaves Peoria to the number of 300 by special train on June 6.

Clarence N. Dunbar, imperial first ceremonial master of the Shrine, arrived at the St. Francis today. He is a member of Palestine Temple of Providence, Rhode Island.

Syria Temple, of Pittsburgh, numbering 450 delegates ,also is en route per special train, according to word received yesterday.

DETAILS OF PAGEANT.

Details of the great historical pageant and parade to be staged by the Shriners in San Francisco Thursday night, June 15, were announced today. There will be forty electrically illuminated floats in the pageant, and fifteen bands, including those of Islam and Aahmes temples, the Sciots and the Order of de Molay. All of the floats will be drawn by tractors. The tableaux will tell the story of the development of Masonry, and its influence on world affairs from ancient times. The pageant will move from Egypt, the cradle of mystery, and from the court of the wise King Solomon, to the birth of the English Masonic lodge in 1717, and modern times. In American history the part played by Masons will be depicted. There will be scenes of the death of Grand Master Jacob Warren at Bunker Hill, of the Signing of the Declaration of Independence, of Poul Revere's ride, etc. Following the pageant there will be a unique display of fireworks at the civic center.

George Robert Puckett,, chairman of the dance committee for the entertainment of th Shriners and their families and friends, announces that a special dance will be introduced, known as the "Islam wave," which, he says, is a cross between the two-step, the schottische and the tango, but so simple that it can be mastered in a few moments.

TWISTED SOULS IN CRIME FIELD ARE ANALYZED

"Army of a Million Crooks" Dissects Underworld Heart for Tribune Readers.

Can there be a million crooks in the United States? It seems incredible. Yet actual census figures show that more than 565,000 persons pass through prisons, jails and reformatories yearly. That is, there are considerably more than half a million jailbirds in America.

One person of every 200 in the United States is a jailbird.

And this is no mere sensational guess. The United States census figures do not lie.

"The Army of a Million Crooks," written for The Oakland TRIBUNE by George C. Henderson, who wrote The TRIBUNE prison stories and who made the expose of the narcotic slave traffic, is the most comprehensive survey of lawless conditions in the United States ever compiled.

From the laboratory and workshop of Chief August Vollmer, of Berkeley, scientific criminologist and president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, has been gleaned the material for The TRIBUNE story, that will make history in the field of crime study

ITRODUCED TO CRIMINALS.

Readers are introduced intimately to dips, automobile bandits, moll buzzers, jewelry thieves, swindlers, opium eaters, gentlemen burglars. They are told how these lawless persons operate.

"The Army of a Million Crooks" is a photographic copy of life at its worst. One sees through the veneer of the society thief straight into the depth of his twisted soul. Friend bootlegger and the obnoxious blackmailer are treated with equal impunity.

No type of criminal is omitted. This is the first time that a writer has ever assembled so colossal a study of outlaws en masse. Individual types have been discussed exhaustively everywhere, but never in the history of criminology have robbers, murderers, thieves, ravishers, blackmailers, dope fiends, terrorists, swindlers, confidence men, bunko artists, firebugs, counterfeiters and scores of other criminals been assembled in one work in such a complete survey.

CAN STUDY CRIMINALS.

The reader is allowed to peep into "The Criminal Mind" and study the dementia and mania, the mental inflation, fanaticism, senility and diseases that are found there. He is introduced to the distorted point of view of the lawbreaker who has no sense of right or wrong.

Next he may step into the crook's workshop and inspect his tools. Burglar kits, firearms, gas pipes, bludgeons, brass knuckles, explosives, knockout drops, chloroform and poisons are displayed there by every class of violator from the garroter to the bank robber.

Through the smelly corridors of dank jails and prisons the reader is led by the author of "The Army of a Million Crooks." Into the execution room of penitentiaries, to the Bertillion office, to the solitary cells and "crazy row" he goes in this voyage in the heart of the underworld.

"Police Methods," both modern and ancient, European and American, are compared. The writer, who knows prisons as few other newspapermen, carries the reader through the modern processes of justice, straight into the depth of the penitentiary.

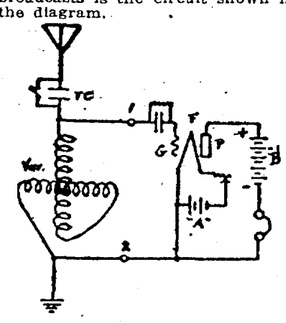
LESSON NO. 72.

The Single Circuit Receiver.

(Copyright by Edward N. Davis.) (All Rights Reserved by United Feature Syndicate. Reproduction Prohibited.)

The tremendous interest in radio reception among the laymen due to the entrance of the radiophone broadcasting stations brought forth a demand for simple receiving sets. Perhaps the most popular and simplest circuit for all-round reception of radiophone broadcasts is the circuit shown in the diagram.



Single Circuit Receiver

The single circuit receiver consists essentially of an inductance coil inserted in the antenna circuit across the terminals of which are connected the detector and telephone circuits. The value of the inductance in circuit, hence the wave length of the system may be varied in a number of ways. A number of popular sets employ a variometer as indicated in the diagram, while others make use of a taped coil with two or possibly only one switch. If a variometer is employed the condenser marked "FC" in the diagram may be a fixed condenser or may be omitted entirely if the antenna is not over 150 feet long. However, if the inductance coil is not fitted with switches and taps or if a fine adjustment is desired the condenser "FC" should be of the variable air type with a maximum capacity of about .001 microfarads.

A crystal detector may be employed in place of the vacuum tube detector shown in the diagram by connecting a pair of telephone receivers in series with a crystal detector across the terminals marked "1" and "2" instead of the vacuum tube. A small fixed condensor shunted across the telephone receivers will increase the efficiency of the set and improve the quality of the signals in the telephones.

The principal advantages of the single circuit receiver are its simplicity, moderate cost and ease of operation. Practically all the tuning is done with a single adjustment, a feature which appeals particularly to the newcomer in radio.

The principal disadvantage is the small degree of selectivity obtainable with the single circuit receiver. This short-coming is particularly annoying when attempting to listen to a broadcasting station when a nearby amateur or commercial station is transmitting messages in the telegraphic code, using spark or damped wave apparatus. In outlying districts, however, the single circuit receiver continues to give satisfaction.

Single circuit receivers employing the vacuum tube type of detector can be made regenerative, resulting in much stronger signal, by the addition of a so-called tickler coil inserted in the plate circuit of the vacuum tube and placed near the inductant coil so as to feed back to the grid circuit. Careful adjustment of this tickler coil is necessary to avoid distortion of the incoming signal due to too much coupling between the plate and grid circuits. By a gradual increase of tickler coupling the circuit can be made to oscillate and thus become a generator of continuous waves.

Radio Stations for Amundsen Planned

SEATTLE, June 5.—Captain C. H.H. Burkhead of the Signal Corps and a detachment of men were passengers yesterday on the steamer Victoria, bound for Nome. The detachment will construct radio stations at Nome, Bethel, and Point Barrow.

On the same ship was Roald Amundsen, who will drift from a far-north point this summer toward the north pole. Amundsen plans to keep in touch with the outside world by wireless communication with the stations that Captain Burkhead will establish. Amundsen will carry radio transmitting apparatus on board his ship, as well as a receiving outfit.

It is believed Amundsen will be able to communicate with the outside world throughout his expedition.

Affair with Toreador Proves Dangerous for Yankee Beauty

MAE MURRAY, beautiful screen dancing star, who portrays piquant blonde senorita in her new, great picture "FASCINATION," now at the AMERICAN theater

"Fascination," Mae Murray's Latest Film Production Now at the American Theater

It was the day of the great Easter bull fight in Madrid. Excitement was at fever pitch. The old Spanish city was a mass of color and pageantry.

But the real thrills of the occasion were not furnished by the bull fight. It was a pretty senorita who unloosed a torrent of Yankee pep upon the unsuspecting populace, which shocked the city and embroiled it in a scandalous fight and near-bloodshed.

The senorita is Mae Murray, the beautiful screen dancing star, and her unusual experiences are unfolded in "Fascination," by far her most delightful production, which is now at the American theater.

The story cleverly shows the disparity of American and Spanish temperaments. Miss Murray as the dancing senorita who owns a head of blonde tresses through virtue of an American mother, is exceedingly charming, and in a series of Spanish dances again displays her illimitable versatility. The brilliant scenic effects of the production include an actual bull fight of thrilling realism.

"Fascination" will be at the American all this week.—Advertisement.

CORNERSTONE FOR SCHOOL LAID

ALAMEDA, June 5.—Alameda's Catholic population gathered in front of St. Joseph's church, San Antonio avenue and Chestnut street, last evening, while Archbishop Hanna laid the cornerstone of the new St. Joseph's parochial school. More than 1000 people, including 700 school children, were present. Many visiting clergymen also assisted.

The ceremonies weer participated in by the local Catholic organizations of Knights of Columbus, the Young Men's and Ladies' Institutes and kindred societies. Major C. L. Tilden represented the city of Alameda, as did W. H. L. Hynes, who spoke on behalf of the parish. The Rev. Bernard Praught, pastor of St. Joseph's, was master of ceremonies. The Rev. Father Ralph Hunt, superintendent of Roman Catholic schools of the archdiocese, also assisted.

Within the cornerstone was placed records of the church and parish.
